Ransburg Family Honored By Naming Of Auditorium

The 918-seat auditorium in the Academic Hall at Indiana Central College has been christened the Ransburg Auditorium in honor of a family which has been affiliated with the church that sponsors the college since the founding of the denomination a century and half ago.

The decision to name the auditorium, heretofore nameless, was made by the executive committee of the college board of trustees. A printed copy of the board’s resolution, signed by Dr. I. Lynd Esch, president of the college, and Dr. L. L. Huffman of Dayton, Ohio, board chairman was presented to Harper J. Ransburg, Indianapolis industrialist.

The board’s resolution pointed out that at the time the Church of the United Brethren in Christ originated in Baltimore—the first church denomination with its beginnings on American soil—members of the Ransburg family were associated with it.

Succeeding generations of the family have continued an active relationship with the church, and for three generations Ransburgs have been connected with the denomination in Indiana.

The trustees stated that “the present living members of the Ransburg family have been generous in their devotion to and support of Indiana Central College, as well as numerous other worthy, character-building civic and religious agencies in the community,” and added:

“Now, therefore, be it resolved: that in recognition of the high standards of moral, ethical and spiritual integrity exemplified and devoted service rendered by members of this family through the years; and with special appreciation for the leadership and inspiration given by the Harper J. Ransburg family in the development of this institution, this college auditorium of Indiana Central College shall be named the ‘RANSBURG AUDITORIUM. Mr. and Mrs. Ransburg are members of the Park Avenue E. U. B. Church in Indianapolis, and he is a trustee of the college.”
Alumni Groups Meet at Muncie

At the usual time, the second Sunday in January, January 8, at the usual place, the social room of Riggins Dairy, the Muncie Area Alumni Club met at 1 p.m. for the usual pitch-in-dinner.

In spite of snow flurries throughout the day, there was a good attendance, 25 adults and 12 children. These included Gordon France, Mr. and Mrs. Meredith Delph, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Collier, and Mrs. and Mrs. Robert Waggoner of Anderson; Dr. and Mrs. John Roberts of New- castle; Rev. and Mrs. Russell Hiatt of Hartford City; Mr. and Mrs. Albert Findley, Rev. and Mrs. Dave Hancock, Mrs. M. Ruth Stewart, Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Barnett, and Carl and Treva Miser Rieglin, the host of Muncie; and Helen Richey Trueblood of Scottsburg, temporarily in Muncie. In addition to the alumni executive secretary, Prof. Frederick Hill and the girls’ trio represented the college and furnished the afternoon program. Professor Hill preached at the morning service of the Industry E.U.B. Church of Muncie and the trio furnished some special music.

All the current officers of the club were reelected for the year 1961.

A Second Guided Tour

For the second time Professor James A. Weber of the Bible and Religion Department will guide a group through the Middle East. Cities to be visited will include Rome, Cairo, Beirut, Damascus, Athens, Delphi, Corinth, Mycenae. The path of Jesus through Jordan and Israel will be followed, five days will be spent on the blue Mediterranean, and whenever possible the homes of people will be visited. The group will travel by air, leaving New York June 30 and returning July 31. Reservations should be made at once. The plan is to keep the group about fifteen in number.

A Superb Performance

On January 4 in the Ransburg Auditorium an appreciative audience was entertained by one of the most delightful performances witnessed in a lifetime. This was George Barnard Shaw’s “Saint Joan” presented by the Canadian Players, the same that so effectively gave us Shakespeare’s “Tempest” last year, which, to quote from Walter Whitworth of THE INDIANAPOLIS NEWS, “was a neat performance, but... gave no hint of the real abilities of the players...”

“Pat Galloway, in the name part, must be given first praise for the dramatic climaxes and for all the moving scenes. She was... a peasant girl clothed in dignity by her simplicity, her dislike of falseness, and her unwavering belief in her ‘voices.’”

“(Her) acting became artistry, for the audience was more conscious of Joan than of the actress.”

The men, only slightly less gifted, had each at least two roles and sometimes three. However, they differentiated one character from another remarkably well.

The play was done in modern clothes, all alike in cut, material and color, which gave a hint of timelessness.

The play reached a tremendous climax, which Shaw almost spoiled by adding a needless epilogue.

College Parents Name Officers

The two organizations of parents of Indiana Central College students have elected officers to serve until next year’s Dad’s Day.

The Mothers’ Association chose Mrs. Myron K. Lamm, 808 E. 15th St., Sterling, Ill., as president; Mrs. James F. Gilmore, 110 Layton Rd., Anderson, vice president; and Mrs. Clarence F. Roembke, 1284 Windermire St., Indianapolis, secretary-treasurer.

ICC Library Receives $20,000 Grant From Lilly Endowment

Indiana Central College has been granted $20,000 by the Lilly Endowment, Inc., of Indianapolis to buy additional books for its library. Dr. I. Lynd Esch, president of the college, has announced.

The conditions of the grant stipulate that the money be used for books, journals and other reading materials which will not duplicate any of the library's present holdings. None of the $20,000 is to be spent for equipment or staff services.

The purchases are to be made during a period of two to five years, during which time Indiana Central must continue its normal appropriations for the library.

President Esch, in expressing the college's gratitude for the grant, said each volume purchased with the fund would carry a special bookplate.

The library now contains 29,679 books and about 3,000 bound volumes of periodicals. It has facilities for 100,000 volumes.

The grant followed an examination of the college library by a committee designated by Lilly Endowment. The members were Arthur T. Hamlin, librarian at the University of Cincinnati; Maynard Mylin, '28, president of the college; Dr. Manning M. Pattullo, associate director of Lilly Endowment; and Elwood McBride, '42, assistant director of Lilly Endowment.

In announcing the grant to Indiana Central, Dr. Manning M. Pattullo, associate director of Lilly Endowment stated: "Lilly Endowment is indeed happy to be able to assist in the strengthening of the libraries of selected colleges and universities. This grant to Indiana Central College is one of seven approved at this time for Indiana institutions. It is the conviction of our board that the library, undergirding, as it does, all the academic departments, is a strategic influence on both student and faculty scholarship."

The foundation granted a total of $150,000 to the seven Indiana schools. In addition to Indiana Central, they are Anderson, Goshen, Hanover, and Manchester Colleges, Rose Polytechnic Institute, and Valparaiso University.

Please, Please

If you still have your questionnaire—and many of you do—won't you please send it in? It is very embarrassing when someone comes into the office and asks about you, to have to say that nothing is known about you but your address.

DO YOU HAVE INDIANA CENTRAL IN YOUR BUDGET?

Mansfield Conducts Reading Program

The following is a quotation from a bulletin entitled READING IMPROVEMENT OFFERED TO STUDENTS and issued by Eastern Michigan University:

East Michigan University is attempting to alleviate the common lament of many university and high school teachers that "most students can't read" by offering a reading improvement program to its students. The program, conducted by guidance counselor James L. Mansfield, is primarily designed to improve reading speed and comprehension, but counseling is also offered on such problems as how to establish a good study schedule, how to apportion study time to each course, and how to write effective essay examinations.

Mansfield was graduated in 1951 from Indiana Central with a major in English. He earned a master's degree from Indiana University in 1955 and is now working toward a doctorate from the University of Michigan. His wife Barbara, to whom he was married last April, is an art teacher in Ann Arbor Public Schools. They live at 957 Sheridan St., Ypsilanti, Michigan.

Two Centralites Honored

Among seven South Side residents honored recently were two Centralites, Richard E. Emery, '38, principal of Harry E. Wood High School, and Angus Nicolson, '42, Athletic Director of Indiana Central College.

These people were honored at a banquet of Greater Southside, Inc., held in Academic Hall, and plaques were given for "outstanding service and achievement, resulting in personal honor as well as prestige and credit to the community."
From The President’s Desk

There never was a better winter to try out our new decentralized heating system on the campus. This year it is the lovers of balmy weather who are looking for the “old fashioned” winters. But in spite of the records which the weatherman has been setting, activities on campus are moving along on schedule, or almost on schedule. Construction work on the new dorm has been slowed down by cold and snow, but will move again at a rapid rate as soon as the weather breaks. September isn’t very far away as construction calendars go.

We have been pleased and encouraged with the year end responses of our alumni to the appeals which went out from the alumni office. Those who responded did so generously, which is very gratifying. We are still waiting for replies from the others. A relatively small gift from each alumnus and former student would go a long way to help solve some of the pressing needs at this time. The administration is in the throes of trying to arrive at the faculty salaries for next school year. It is when we try to balance the income which we can realistically anticipate against the funds which we should have to provide reasonably for this important educational service that we realize how much just a little help from all those who have benefited from this service would mean. Those who have not responded to the annual roll call could hearten concerned budget makers by enrolling at once.

This is being written just as the new semester is getting under way and the enrollment is about what we anticipated it would be. The day school will have the normal adjustment due to drop outs and those completing their work. The Evening Division which had such remarkable increase in the first semester will hold this level for the spring term. The work of the college continues to move forward on all fronts. All who are interested in Indiana Central owe a real debt of gratitude to the dedicated, hard working members of the faculty and staff who carry the day by day responsibilities.

I. Lynd Esch

Attention: Members of Reuniting Classes

Are you members of the classes of ’11, ’16, ’21, ’26, ’31, ’36, ’41, ’46, ’51, ’56 making plans for Alumni Day, June 3? One member of the class of 1926, living in North Carolina, has written to inquire about dates and activities in order that he may arrange for his vacation at that time. In a farewell poem written by a member of the class of 1951 is this couplet:

We’ll always know, dear ICC
Is standing behind us as true as can be.

ICC is glad of your confidence that she will stand behind you wherever you are. Can she be equally confident that you will stand behind her? Will you help to establish this confidence by returning to the campus on Alumni Day. We promise you a good and full day. Last Alumni Day the class of 1950 returned in good numbers and had a wonderful reunion. We hope each ten-year class will do likewise.

Do Not Forget

Do not forget March 8, the date of the appearance in the Ransburg Auditorium of the Robert Shaw Chorale, perhaps the leading choral group in the United States. Indiana Central College, its alumni and friends are indeed fortunate to hear this noted group and owe a debt of gratitude to Dr. Parker Jordan and Prof. Victor Danek for bringing it to our campus.

Remember also the date of April 12, when Rey De La Torre, classical guitarist, will present this season’s last program of the William A. Atkins Artist Series. These performances are all at 8:30 p.m. Eastern Standard time.

Anderson Establishes Institute

The Rev. Richard W. Anderson, '54, is the director of the Antioch Institute for Alcoholism, which is being established on a rolling, wooded 100-acre farm near Corydon, Indiana.

The attempt to find a cure for alcoholism is an undertaking of the undenominational Wayside Christian Mission in Louisville, Kentucky. Rev. Anderson is superintendent of the Mission also. The city mission and the rural retreat are 28 miles apart, on opposite sides of the Ohio River.

"What we will be operating is a school for living," the minister says of the project. "We're going to try to show these people that life can be worth enjoying without their being half tanked up."

Anderson's concern grew out of the large number of alcoholics who come to the mission. He hopes the farm can begin operations in the fall with six men, but what they'll get first will be a physical build-up. When a drunk comes off a binge, he can't sleep and he won't eat. We've got to build him up before we can do anything else with him."

Applicants will be accepted only after they admit they have a problem which is impossible for them to solve alone.

"Alcoholics lack the inner resources to cope with life," the minister adds. "We'll try to show them that they can enjoy life without being dependent on the bottle, by switching their dependence to God and by developing a spirit of wanting to help other."

(The above is from a news item in the Louisville Times.)

ICC Sports

Midway in the Hoosier College Conference basketball race the Greyhounds had their work cut out for them if they were to retain the championship. When the second semester opened, Indiana Central's team had won 12 games and lost 6 altogether, and in the conference its record was 3 and 2, giving it a second-place tie with Franklin and Taylor.

Anderson, the leader, stood 5-0 in ICC play after narrow victories over Central and Taylor. Bringing up the rear were Manchester 1-4, and Hanover, 0-5.

At this point Jerry Lewis, a junior guard, was leading the Greyhounds in scoring with 278 points. He also was one of the nation's top free-throw shooters with an .870 average. Juniors Harold Boyd and Charles Spurgeon led the Hounds in rebounds.
