"Milady's Day on Campus" began two new courses November 10. "Interior Decorating" was the title of the morning course which began at 10:15 a.m. and lasted until noon on six consecutive Tuesdays. Thomas E. King '59, of Kittle's Home Furnishing Store, was the resource person for the course. His course outline included a decorating project for group participants, a field trip, and all the important aspects of interior decorating.

The afternoon course beginning on the same day was entitled "Our Family Members Between Twelve and Twenty." Mrs. Rosemary Peterson, dean of women, and Nathan Wooden '47, dean of students at Indiana Central College, were resource persons for the course. Subject areas discussed included physical, mental, and emotional growth; sex education; influence of church, school, friends, and home; the positive and negative approaches to discontent and unrest; areas of discipline; and the difficulties facing young people in making decisions.

HIGHTOWER GIFT TO ESTABLISH FIRST ENDOURED CHAIR

President Gene E. Sease, in paying tribute to Dr. Hightower and his strong interest in Indiana Central College indicated that the money, which is presently invested, will be used to establish the Hightower Chair in Psychology and Counseling. It will provide funds for salary expenses of a faculty member in that area of study. He said that Dr. Hightower is highly interested in counseling and has served as a counselor both in education and psychology, and hopes that pre-theological students and others interested in service professions will take advantage of the courses to be made available. Dr. Sease indicated that he hopes the Hightower Chair will be the first of a number of endowed professorships which will strengthen academic areas in which donors have specific interests.

Dr. Hightower, a man of many interests, has had experience as a shingle-maker like his father, an educator, a psychologist, a college president, and a farmer.

The son of Sylvester Hightower, of Logan Township, Pike County, Ind., and Christiann Mayfield Hightower, of Greene County, P. R. was one of ten children. He describes his parents as "two noble people" who, though unable to give their family much in material things, "gave us something more important — character." Dr. Hightower was the only child who continued into higher education. He worked his own way through high school, college and university.

Hightower, who completed four years of high school and four years of college in five years, attended his first college years at Oakland City College. His final year was spent at Indiana Central, from which he received his degree in 1914. His masters degree was earned from Indiana University and his Ph.D. in psychology from the University of Iowa.

Always earning his own way, Hightower worked at Oakland City College's library for 5¢ an hour. His introduction to Indiana Central came through some friends he met at a Christian Endeavor meeting. They encouraged him to come to ICC and, since he was a member of the United Brethren Church, he decided to enroll. While a student here, he taught an English class in the high school division, referred to then as the academy.

His interest in Central has remained because of his involvement in the church and in spiritual things. He has seen the college grow from one building to the campus as it is today, from a handful of teachers to its faculty of today, and from "poor Job's Turkey" to a budget of over $3 million dollars. Dr. Hightower said the main credit is due to Dr. I. Lynd Eash who "knew good business methods."

"The good Lord looked on it [the college] with smiles," added the philanthropist. "And the church is more interested, too."

After his graduation from ICC Dr. Hightower became principal of an elementary school in Mt. Carmel, Ill. He then went to Indiana University to do his graduate work.

Following his I.U. graduation in 1919 he travelled to the Philippines to teach for two and a half years. While there he also served as principal of two high schools and worked as supervisor of the grammar grades in Manila.

From the Philippines he continued on around the world and then returned to Oakland City. While at I.U., Hightower had met Ethel Hutchison and following his years in the Philippines, they were married in 1929. She was also a teacher and held both bachelor and master degrees. Her home was near Frankfort, Ind., where Dr. Hightower, now a widower, resides at the present time.

In 1922 he took a position at Butler University where he taught and counseled for eleven years. While at Butler he was given an assistantship to study in the Institute of Character Research at the University of Iowa. At Iowa he earned his doctorate under the direction of Dr. Edwin D. Starbuck whom he names as "the greatest psychologist of his time." Dr. Starbuck had studied with Dr. William James, the internationally famous educator and psychologist.

During the Depression Dr. Hightower was called to the Indiana State House to organize an Emergency Education Program. He directed the project throughout the state. Its purpose was to offer adult classes, pre-school classes and to help employ many of the teachers out of work.

Later he joined the faculty of Central Normal College in Danville, Ind., as supervisor of instruction. He was also responsible for writing the syllabi for education and psychology instructors. He helped organize a free kindergarten for the community and involved both the teachers and students at Normal.

Hightower later became head of the education and psychology department, then dean of the college and finally, president and dean. Originally a teachers' college Normal, under Hightower's leadership, also added programs in business, pre-law, pre-medicine, pre-dentistry, and pre-nursing. The school offered both the bachelor of arts and bachelor of science degrees.

Later on Dr. Hightower became very interested in land and in farming. For a time he owned a herd of registered Hereford cattle, as well as hogs and other stock. He also accumulated several hundred acres of farmland. The gift to Indiana Central was the result of a sale of part of his land.

Dr. Hightower served for several years as a consulting clinical psychologist to an Indianapolis Methodist
The largest day school enrollment in Indiana Central's history passed through the registration lines on Sept. 14, with the total reaching 1,112.

'Teahouse' Comedy Delights Audience

One of the greatest stage hits of the mid-1950's and a Pulitzer Prize winning play, Teahouse of the August Moon was presented by the Indiana Central Players on November 12, 13, and 14 in Ransburg Auditorium.

A comedy about American occupation forces in Okinawa, Teahouse ran for 128 weeks in New York City and won the Pulitzer Prize, the Drama Critics Award, and many other citations for being the best play of its time. Playwright John Patrick is known for such other stage successes as The Curious Savage and Hasty Heart. He is also responsible for the movie hits, “Three Coins in the Fountain” and “Love is a Many Splendored Thing.” Most recently he co-authored with James Kennaway the screenplay for “The Shoes of The Fisherman.”

Indiana Central's production of Teahouse had one of the largest casts ever to assemble on the college stage, consisting of both faculty and students. Mr. Richard Williams, professor of speech and drama, directed the production.

Dr. Eliseo Delfin, professor of biology at Indiana Central College and a native of the Philippines, played the leading role of Sakini, the native Okinawan interpreter with the brilliant homespun philosophy. Dr. Marshall Chambers, director of church relations, had the role of Colonel Wainwright Purdy III. The role of the American officer Capt. Fisby, assigned to bring democracy and economic revival to the little Okinawan village, was played by Andy Lindauer, a sophomore English major. Gail Stahlhuth, a junior drama major, was cast in the only female lead Lotus Blossom, the Geisha girl who is presented to the embarrassed Capt. Fisby as a gift.

The comedy's gentle mockery of the planning arranged in Washington, D.C., that cannot be made to work in occupied lands thousands of miles away has caused it to become one of the most entertaining and significant plays of the present time. Teahouse portrays how a U.S. officer "democratizes" some Japanese villagers on Okinawa. The admirable Fisby, besides accepting his Geisha girl as a gift, helps the villagers brew seven-day brandy, doffs his Army uniform to put on native costume, and wins over an Army psychiatrist who is sent to spy on his odd behavior. As his crowning deed in the play Fisby uses some lumber, sent by the Army to construct a pentagon-shaped schoolhouse, to build what the villagers really want, a handsome new teahouse.

Central Reaches Record In Enrollment, Freshmen

Indiana Central's classes serve a total of 2355 persons this year, with an all-time high of 1112 enrolled in day school and 1243 in evening division classes.

Full-time day school students total 1078, including 521 men and 557 women. Part-time day students number 33. Full-time evening division students include 749 men and 468 women. This year's graduate students number 102, including 30 men and 72 women.

The freshman class in day school is the largest ever to enter Indiana Central and numbers 448. There are 253 in the sophomore class, 183 in the junior class, and 172 in the senior class. These figures include full-time students only.

Indiana Central's 1970-71 student body includes a larger cross-section of the country than ever before. The largest representation is still from Indiana with 1009 persons. Indianapolis students make up 419 of that number. The next state with the largest representation is Ohio with 32 students, followed by Illinois with 22. New York is represented by nine students, and New Jersey and Michigan each have five in the student body. Kentucky has four students at Indiana Central, and Colorado, Pennsylvania, and Missouri each have three.

Other states represented by one or two students include Massachusetts, Maryland, North Carolina, Florida, Tennessee, Iowa, South Dakota, Nebraska, Oklahoma, New Mexico, California, and the District of Columbia. There are three foreign students at Indiana Central this year.

As expected the United Methodist denomination has the largest representation in the student body. There are 478 students who listed the United Methodist Church as their denominational affiliation. The next largest church body among the students is the Baptist Church with 150 full-time students represented. There are 89 Roman Catholic students enrolled at Indiana Central College. Other churches with a substantial number of students enrolled are the Christian Church, Presbyterian, the United Church of Christ, and the Lutheran Church. The student body also includes members of the Episcopalian and Jewish faiths.
Inaugural Festivities Honor New President

Activities for the inauguration of Dr. Gene E. Sease as president began with Homecoming Day Oct. 3. "Church-College Day" was declared on Oct. 4 to honor the church support and interest for ICC throughout the college's history.

Monday evening Oct. 5 of inauguration week featured the Indianapolis Symphony Orchestra conducted by Dr. Izler Solomon '59. The program included Carnival Overture by Dvorak, Ballet Suite by Gretry Mottl, and Suite from "The Red Pony" by Aaron Copland. The second half of the program was Tchaikovsky's Symphony No. 6 in F-minor. The performance, which was free to the public, was made possible by Lilly Endowment, Inc.

On Oct. 6 the Indiana Central Players presented The World of Carl Sandburg by Norman Corwin. The production was directed by Richard Williams, professor of speech and drama, and was a free, informal presentation of parts of Sandburg's work, including verse, prose, folk songs and witticisms. The play, given in two acts, cast only four players — students Gretchen Peterson, Jeffery A. Trees, Glenn C. Weaver and Helen C. Whitelowe. One portion also featured Gayle Stahluth dancing to the tune of one of the folk songs.

The opening performance received an excellent critique in the Indianapolis News the following day. The World of Carl Sandburg was given also on Oct. 9 and 10. The ICC production was judged for possible performance at the Regional Festival of the American College Theatre Festival later this year.

Inauguration Day itself began with the arrival and registration of delegates from universities, colleges, the military, and learned societies on the morning of Oct. 7. Over 75 students acted as hosts and hostesses for the visitors showing them around the campus and offering help and information. The noon luncheon offered an opportunity for the ICC faculty and the delegates to get acquainted.

The delegates assembled for the procession and the inaugural ceremony began at 2:30 p.m., with Dr. L. L. Huffman '46, chairman of the college Board of Trustees, presiding. The Symphonic Wind Ensemble, conducted by Professor Lowell Boroughs, played for the procession and recessional.

Following the processional, the presentation of colors, and the singing of the national anthem, the invocation was given by Dr. Harry J. Fisher. The College Choir then sang "The One Hundred Fiftieth Psalm" by Howard Hanson, directed by Mrs. Elise Marshall.

Salutations to Dr. Sease were given by Indiana Governor Edgar D. Whitcomb, United Methodist Bishop R. H. Mueller '60, Indianapolis Mayor Richard G. Lugar '70, Alumni Association president Dr. Ronald J. Hauswald '54, Central Council president Michael A. Shurn, and faculty member Mrs. Eldon (Lois Taylor '32) Fouts.

The main inaugural address was given by Dr. William P. Tolley, chancellor emeritus of Syracuse (N.Y.) University. He stated that a college president must serve as a kind of "ecologist of human resources," and that colleges and universities must be concerned about "spiritual and moral pollution" as well as environmental pollution.

MUSIC SORORITY NAMES FIRST PATRONS

Dr. Izler Solomon '59, Dr. I. Lynd Esch '70 and Dr. and Mrs. Gene E. Sease were installed Oct. 5 as the first honorary patrons of the Beta Phi chapter of Mu Phi Epsilon, international music professional sorority.

The ceremony, which preceded the inaugural tribute performance by the Indianapolis Symphony Orchestra, was conducted by Ruth Anne Gallatin, junior from Speedway, who is president of the Mu Phi organization at Indiana Central. Attending the ceremony also was Mrs. Frank E. Gerke, national president of Mu Phi Epsilon.

Dr. Solomon, music director and conductor of the Symphony, received an honorary degree in 1959 from ICC, the first Indiana college to recognize him in that fashion. Following the installation ceremony the orchestra presented a concert in honor of Dr. and Mrs. Gene E. Sease. Preceding the second portion of the performance the new patrons of Mu Phi were introduced to the audience by Miss Gallatin.

The change of college administration became official when Dr. I. Lynd Esch, president of the college from 1945-1970, presented the presidential medallion to Dr. Gene E. Sease, the new president, at Inauguration ceremonies Oct. 7.

Central First To Offer Finance Degree
In Cooperation With A.I.B. Chapter

The recent affiliation of Indiana Central College with the Indianapolis Chapter of American Institute of Banking has resulted in another first for the college. Local bank employees may now earn both an associate of science degree in finance and their three A.I.B. certificates at the same time. Indiana Central College is the first in the nation to offer such a program and is already discovering many imitators.

The courses offered in this program are designed to provide basic training in the theory and practice of banking, to lay the foundation of sound business principles, and to develop attitudes which will encourage personal competence and advancement. The content areas of the two-year program include foundations of banking, banking functions, management and supervision, language and communications, and general college electives.

All directors, officers, and employees of financial institutions that are members of the American Bankers Association, who are members of an A.I.B. chapter, are eligible to participate in this program. There are two levels of participation: degree credit or certificate credit. High school graduates and college transfer students are eligible for degree credit.

The Indianapolis chapter has underwritten the cost of this program, pays all registration and tuition fees, and purchases the necessary textbooks. This fall, 285 bank employees are involved in the program. This represents a thirty-three per cent increase over last year's A.I.B. educational program.

As a result of this pioneering effort, Dr. Leonard Grant, Dean of the Evening Division, has been elected to the five-member national advisory committee for A.I.B. This committee meets typically twice a year to advise the national staff of A.I.B.

After Tolley's address, Dr. Huffman, Dr. E. Craig Brandenburg ’30, and Dr. I. Lynd Esch took part in the investiture of the new president. The final act of the transition came when Dr. Esch placed the medallion of the college presidency around the neck of Dr. Sease.

Following another anthem by the College Choir, Dr. Sease responded to his new challenge with a few remarks on his hopes and plans for Indiana Central. "My reflective moments shout to me that a major part of our problem is an overabundance of self-pity and a short supply of optimistic self-direction. I could not, I dare not, accept this responsibility without an enthusiasm for private higher education," he said.

Indiana Central will not try to be "a custodian of truth," but a "searcher after truth," the new president stated.

Following Dr. Sease's response, he awarded honorary degrees to Dr. Esch, Bishop J. Gordon Howard, and the Rev. James Allen Woomer. The benediction was given by the president's brother, the Rev. Don Sease of Pennsylvania.

Homecoming Highlights

With “A Time for Us” as its theme, the 1970 Homecoming activities began on Oct. 1 with the showing of the campus movie “The Graduate” in Ransburg Auditorium.

Friday evening there was the traditional Homecoming Queen’s walk, followed by a pep rally in front of the gymnasium. President Gene E. Sease led the crowd of 200 students in a cheer for the Greyhounds to begin the pep session for the ICC vs. Manchester game.

The Queen’s court included junior Jan Halik, Greenwood, Ind., an elementary education major; sophomore Mary Rucker, Seymour, Ind., elementary education; senior Debbie Stohler, Markleville, Ind., physical education; sophomore and transfer student Cynthia Stith, New Albany, Ind., physical education; and sophomore Melanie Padgett, Lebanon, Ind., elementary education major. The court members are selected by the “C” Association. The Queen is elected by the entire student body.

Homecoming Day Oct. 3 began with a Queen’s breakfast, honoring the candidates and families and students who worked on the Homecoming plans and program.

Alumni registration for the day began at 8:30 a.m. Judging of the displays started at 10:30 a.m. Announcement of the display prize winners was made at half time of the game. Over 140 persons were served at the annual Fellows luncheon, and many other alumni and friends were served in the regular dining room.

Prior to the Manchester-ICC bout the new Key Stadium was dedicated in a brief ceremony conducted by Dr. Gene E. Sease, college president. A plaque of dedication and appreciation was presented to Mr. and Mrs. Sheldon A. Key ’29 for their financial support of the new facility. Dr. I. Lynd Esch then offered a prayer and dedication for the stadium and the school.

Summer Admissions Program Covers Many Miles For ICC

The three traveling students sponsored by the Admissions Office in their Summer Visitation Program traveled 20,598 miles in the summer of 1970. It was the responsibility of juniors Tad Ransopher, Carl Herbert, and sophomore Robert Biggs to telephone and/or interview as many prospective students as possible during the months of June, July, and August.

Names of the prospective students were received mainly from ministers throughout the state of Indiana, as well as from the admissions persons at the college. The three representatives personally contacted 162 ministers in the state, speaking with them about their young people before contacting the students for interviews.

Altogether 1405 students were contacted, resulting in personal interviews with 556. The interviews were offered with the purpose of acquainting high school students and their parents with general admission requirements, procedures concerning college enrollment, and specific information concerning Indiana Central.

The services of student representatives such as Tad, Carl, and Bob, are sponsored by the Admissions Office for two main reasons: to better acquaint qualified high school students with college life, wherever they may choose to go, and to specifically recruit for Indiana Central.

Of the students contacted during the 1969 Summer Visitation Program, 63 students made application to the college for the 1970-71 school year. Of those, 58 were admitted and 29 eventually enrolled in this year’s freshman class.

At Inauguration Ceremony

Three honorary degrees were conferred by Dr. Gene E. Sease at his inauguration on Oct. 7. Recipients were Dr. I. Lynd Esch, president emeritus of the college; Bishop J. Gordon Howard, bishop of the Philadelphia area of the United Methodist Church; and Rev. James Allen Woomer, superintendent of the Western Pennsylvania Conference of the United Methodist Church.

Dr. Esch, who retired from Indiana Central on June 30, served as president of the college for 25 years. Under his leadership the institution experienced the greatest development in its 68-year history growing from a small non-accredited school to a fully accredited, well respected suburban liberal arts college. For his efforts Dr. Esch has become nationally known as a speaker, educator, and able administrator. A native of Beaver Valley, Pa., he was ordained as a minister in 1938. His first assignment was as pastor of a United Brethren Church in California. He is a graduate of Chapman College and received his Ph.D. from the University of Southern California in 1942. He came to Indiana Central as president in 1945. Dr. Esch received the degree Doctor of Letters.

Bishop Howard was born in Tokyo, of missionary parents and lived in Japan until he was 12 years old. He obtained his A.B. degree from Otterbein College and a B.D. and M.A. from United Theological Seminary. He was ordained a minister in 1925 and served as president of Otterbein College from 1945-1957. He was elected a bishop of the Evangelical United Brethren Church in 1957, was bishop of the Pittsburgh area and in 1968 became bishop of the Philadelphia area of the United Methodist Church. Bishop Howard received the degree Doctor of Humane Letters from the College.

The Reverend Woomer was born in Tyrone, Pa., and received his A.B. degree from Juniata College and a B.D. from United Theological Seminary. He has held pastorates in Phillipsburg, Oh.; Altoona, Pa.; Portage, Pa.; and Johnstown, Pa. In 1958 he was appointed district superintendent of the Western Pennsylvania Conference of the United Methodist Church as succeeding Dr. Sease who had joined the Indiana Central staff.

Rev. Woomer is a member of the association for Clinical Pastoral Education, serves on the Jurisdictional Committee on Ministerial Education, is a past president of the Blair County Council of Churches and serves on numerous other committees and boards of the United Methodist Church. Rev. Woomer received the Doctor of Divinity degree.

All three of the honorary recipients have had personal influence in the life, ministry and education of Dr. Sease.

THE FINAL TEST OF A COLLEGE
By President Gene E. Sease

The final test of a college is not in its ability to balance the budget. Financial solvency is essential; expenses must be scrutinized with an eagle-eye and funds of generous donors must constantly be sought, but more than a balanced budget is needed to make a good college.

The final test of a college is not in constructing bigger and better buildings. Adequate libraries, laboratories, and classrooms are a necessity and physical facilities must keep abreast of academic and social needs, but more than buildings and facilities are needed to make a good college.

The final test of a college success does not lie in its competent faculty and diligent students. Faculty with earned doctorates and high SAT scores and top class ranks on the part of students are all essential to a college, but the final test of a college lies in its alumni. How well were the lessons of the classroom learned? Was the curriculum challenging, purposeful, and comprehensive? What life philosophy was built and is being constantly pursued? What effect did the college really have on the graduate for his entire life?

Unless a college can proudly point to its alumni and proclaim THESE ARE OUR PRODUCTS, its facilities, funds, and faculty have doubtless failed. Indiana Central passes or fails its test as a successful institution through its graduates. The nine thousand living alumni of ICC attest to the strength of this school. We salute you and solicit your help in assisting future generations. You are our final test of success or failure as a college.
Hamlet Troupe Falls ‘In Love’ With England

“The English people and the Indiana Central kids had a ‘mutual admiration society,’” commented Richard Williams, professor of drama and speech and director of the Hamlet production which toured England this past summer. “We fell totally in love with the English people.”

Mr. Williams was relating some of the many wonderful times from the trip to England and Scotland taken by the ICC Hamlet troupe in July, 1970. The travellers included 21 students and five adults.

They stayed in Keswick, a small town in the lake district of northern England. The hotel, which only accommodated 25 guests, was a large stone house that was 15 years old. The innkeeper and his wife, who became top favorites of the Central crew, considered the students “visitors in their home.” The group got very attached to the people and their little daughter. Mr. Williams said the nicest compliment the group received was when the innkeeper’s wife referred to them as “our boys,” meaning they were considered part of her family. Mr. Williams himself complimented the group on their courtesy and attitude throughout the trip. He said the Central group was by far the most presentable and most courteous, and least critical of all the American student groups there for the Festival.

The Indiana Central students gave an American party for the innkeeper and his family the last night in Keswick. The girls cooked an American-style dinner with all the trimmings.

Food differed quite a bit, related Williams. The English serve boiled potatoes every night and lamb almost every night. Beef, which is very expensive there, is rarely served. There is a water shortage also; a person is never given water in a restaurant unless it is requested. But the pastries are “the most delicious in the world,” in Williams’ estimation.

Hamlet was presented in a school one mile outside of Keswick and also in The Theatre in the Forest—a converted hayloft in a barn—25 miles south of Keswick. The audiences were generally small, due to a foul-up in publicity by the American Theatre Festival, but were very warm and appreciative. The highlight performance came one evening in The Theatre in the Forest when the ICC production received three curtain calls and a standing ovation, which is a rare thing for English audiences to do. The reception of the IC performances made the trip more than pleasant.

Williams commented that Englishmen knew their country’s history and they know their Shakespeare. Even the common man-in-the-street knows his Shakespeare. And, Williams observed too, Englishmen are not easily impressed by Americans, nor are they hateful toward them. Being in England made the Americans realize how very young the United States is as a country.

The students and adults did some touring and saw some theater themselves. They visited Shakespeare’s birthplace and tomb. They saw a performance of Measure for Measure given by the Royal Shakespearean Company at Stratford-on-Avon. The Centralites were privileged to go backstage following the performance. The new officers for Alpha Psi Omega, the drama fraternity, were installed at Stratford-on-Avon.

There were, of course, several other colleges and universities involved in the Festival. So each viewed the productions of the others. All the schools suffered from the publicity mix-up, some worse than Central, with various performances forced to cancel.

In London the Central group all saw the mystery-comedy Who Killed Santa Claus? Others also got tickets for the musical 1776. While in London Mr. and Mrs. Williams (Murriel) saw a production of Home (a new play) with Sir John Gielgud in the lead. Sir John is considered by many as the world’s greatest actor. After the performance the Williamses met with Sir John in his dressing room and talked for about 15 minutes about theatre and their respective Hamlet plays. “There he sat in a chair in his ‘grubbies’ talking to us!” exclaimed Williams. “It was the greatest night of my life!”

Because the group loved Keswick and its people so much, London was somewhat anti-climactic. But they did some important sight-seeing and memory-collecting, nevertheless. They saw the cathedrals in Coventry in central England. Some attended services in Westminster Abbey in London.

The tour included a brief visit to Scotland. Mr. and Mrs. Williams had a mock wedding ceremony at the border of Scotland to celebrate their wedding anniversary. The entire group went to Edinburgh for a day and saw the castle there. It rained all day, however, and most caught colds from the cold and rain.

They visited Blackpool which is called “the Las Vegas of England.” Many things are less expensive to Americans in England, and the Centralites saw a two-hour Vegas-style show for only 45p in American money.

Mr. Williams gained a new title while on tour. Their bus driver was always calling him “the governor” or “the head bloke.” The other adults included Prof. Ross Ludwig and his wife, Rena; Mrs. Charles Bailey (Louise Drago ’50); and Mrs. Richard W. Yoder, a student at Christian Theological Seminary.

The students included the cast members and a small crew for production and staging. They were Charles D. Eckert, as Hamlet; Joan Kaelhner, as Queen Gertrude; Steven D. Miller ’70, as King Claudioius; David F. Geible ’70, as Polonius; Randall Kraft, as Horatio; and Jeffrey A. Trees, as Laertes.

Other students in the group were: Pamela Abbey, Roberta Coombs, James Emrich, Nathan Everett, Philip Haas, Judith Hill Hollowell, Ronald Hollowell ’70, and John Hopping. Completing the list of the troupe were Leva Hammond, Joyce Johnson ’70, Steve O’Reiley, Gretchen Peterson, Caroline Pippert, and Glenn Weaver.

It is an understatement to say the Centralites enjoyed their experience in England. As Mr. Williams said, “We are all going back. It’s just a question of how soon!”

Orientation Introduces Frosh To College Life

Beginning with "Central's Better Than Ever" as their theme, the sophomore class welcomed the new freshmen to the campus with the beginning of Freshman Orientation on Sept. 11.

Most of the first day was spent moving in and getting acquainted. Sophomore men were available for baggage help and informal coffee hours were held for students and parents to meet with other classmates and residence directors.

A buffet style dinner in the college dining hall was served at 6 p.m. the first evening of orientation. President Gene E. Sease spoke briefly to the new students and their parents. Later in the evening, students were invited to attend "The Move-In Collapse" in the Schwitzer Center concourse.

The first item on the agenda for the next day of orientation was the English Proficiency Test. All freshman, transfer, and evening division students who had not previously done so took the examination which helps the college determine the English and literature program each student will follow.

The two convocations of the day introduced the new students to the sophomore class officers, the faculty advisors, and other information necessary for their successful adaptation to their life at Indiana Central. Following the second convocation the freshmen met with their advisors. The afternoon also included foreign language proficiency tests for students enrolled in language.

In the evening the movie "Cat Ballou" was shown in Ransburg Auditorium, followed by a mixer later in the evening. Sunday's special event for freshman and new students was the annual President's Reception in Nelson House, where they were greeted by President and Mrs. Sease, sophomore class officers, orientation committee chairmen, and several faculty members and administrators from the college. In the evening the sophomores presented a talent show in Ransburg Auditorium.

Following registration on Sept. 14, another general convocation with the Dean of Students and the Dean of Women, a picnic supper in the park, an all-school mixer, and the donning of the traditional green beanies, the freshmen were considered ready to plunge into their first year of college life.

Dear Editor...

Note: Delilla Boyce '65 is teaching freshman and sophomore English and coaching drama at Red Bird Mission High School in Beverly, Ky., this year. The following is an excerpt from her letter about her experiences.

I can't really say that these kids are so much different than those of the last five years. Accent is definitely different.

I am also lucky enough to be the drama director. I have scheduled the senior play "You Can't Kiss Carolina" for Oct. 24. As of today I am short one actor and a possibility of a second one. One of the boys in the play ran away from the dorm Friday night and may be expelled...

In addition to twelve actors and actresses with southern accents, I have an exchange student from Norway and the minister's son who is Canadian. As you can imagine, we have a few communication problems. The other night Ottar (from Norway) used moonshine instead of moonlight in a line. Naturally the cast roared. We finally explained to him the meaning of moonshine.

We hear so many bad things these days but really, don't you think it is a wonderful world?

Sincerely,
Delilla

Note: Neva (Snyder '37) and Earl Masters '68 have recently moved to Ardmore, Okla., where he is working in a new Uniroyal plant. They write of the lovely area in which they live:

Ardmore is half way between Oklahoma City and Dallas, Texas. It is in the Red River valley, south of the Arbuckle Mountains and Oklahoma's most famous waterfall, Turner Falls. Turner Falls Park has many mountain springs that form Honey Creek, that in turn feeds the clear water rushing over rocks until it cascades 77 feet to form the falls. A pool at the base served as an ideal spot for camping and swimming. The smallest national park is in the area. It contains less than 1,000 acres, and ranks fourth in attendance among national parks. We also have Lake Arbuckle, Lake Murry and Lake Texoma. There are unlimited recreational facilities with wide open spaces and a leisurely pace.

If anyone is out our way we would appreciate a call and a visit.
Best wishes,
Earl and Neva Masters

Note: The Alumni Office received this cheerful letter from Mrs. Ruby (Velander '30) Martin, catching us up on news about her family.

... our experiences would fill several books, and I am afraid "you all" would get tired reading it. We have lived in Texas, Colorado, Kentucky, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Georgia, Pennsylvania, Alabama, New York, Tennessee, Virginia and South Carolina. ... we have a daughter who just returned from Japan, and a daughter who is living in Spain right now. Our two sons settled for Atlanta, Ga., and Charleston, S.C.

My husband is finishing his 36th year with the same company, so we are... hoping we might get to stay in South Carolina when he retires. It is a beautiful, beautiful state where anything seems to grow, and the sun shines almost every day. There has been something wonderful about every city we have lived in, and we have made so many friends.

We hear so many bad things these days but really, don't you think it is a wonderful world?

Sincerely,
Ruby Velander Martin '30

Note: Bob Dellinger '65 and his wife Susan are living in Boulder, Colo., and attending the University of Colorado. Their current address is 1951 Grand View, Apt. 4E, Boulder, CO 80302.

I am here in Colorado at the University of Colorado, getting my doctorate in educational administration.

While teaching in Japan I fell in love with middle schools so I've concentrated in middle school administration. Last year I was assistant principal of a middle school in Willis-ton, Fla.

... Susan is getting a Ph.D. in communication and theatre. I am an administrative intern... at Cherry Creek High School in Denver — Cherry Creek is a very progressive high school in an extremely wealthy district, and Susan teaches undergraduate speech education at C.U.

We'll be here about three years... then probably off to Europe to work in middle school administration with D.O.D. Dependent Schools.

Give my best to all... Sincerely,
Bob Dellinger

Note: The following is a portion of a letter received from Benny Townsend '66, 658 N. Saguaro Lane, Mesa, AZ 85201.

The population of Mesa is 80,000. We have 19 grade schools, five junior highs, and two high schools. My job at Westwood High School consists of teaching five health education classes and working as an athletic trainer in football. Currently our football team is rated fourth in the state.

Our basketball team is coached by Tom Bennett. The old-timers will remember Tom playing basketball for Southport High School and Wabash College. Last year Tom was rated number one in the state for 16 weeks.

Dick VanArsdale is very well known in the valley. He has his own TV sports show during the off-season.

Note: The following is an excerpt from a letter received from Sharon Bitzer Ball '66, who recently moved to 411 8th St., N.W., Albuquerque, NM 87102.

We moved here in mid-August so that my husband, Mike, could start on his Ph.D. in American Studies. I loved my job [in California] and the San Francisco area. We are hoping to go back some day.

I am teaching at a junior high in eighth grade language arts and journalism. It seems that my career has gone rapidly downhill... from college teaching to high school teaching to junior high.

Best wishes and hello to everyone,
Sharon Bitzer Ball

ESTATE PLANNING CORNER

MORE ABOUT INSURANCE GIFTS

By Lynn R. Youngblood,
Director of Development

Since considerable interest was shown in the article in the previous issue of Alumni News on the subject of the insurance gift, we take the liberty of elaborating.

We had mentioned the gift of a current policy to the college, which would provide the donor with a charitable gift tax deduction of the approximate cash surrender value of the policy in the year of the transfer. Also, when a new policy is taken out, where the college is the irrevocable beneficiary, the donor could pay the premiums and receive a tax deduction for such payments.

We also mentioned that in the case of a paid-up policy being donated, there is a tax deduction for an amount equal to the replacement cost. For example, a donor has a $25,000 paid-up life insurance policy. At this particular donor's age, and if he were in good health, it might cost him about $12,000 to replace the one he has donated. Thus the government allowed this individual a $12,000 charitable gift tax deduction regardless of whether he replaced the policy! If he could not utilize all the deduction in one year, he could spread it over the following five years. If he were in poor health, a replacement policy would cost more, which means the tax deduction would be even greater.

Another plan is to make the college a revocable beneficiary of an insurance policy. This means that a donor can change his mind at any time. There is no income tax deduction advantage, but if the donor does not change the beneficiary, the college ultimately receives the proceeds and they are not taxable to his estate.

The gift of a matured Endowment Policy can best be explained by an illustration. Smith wants to assign ownership to Indiana Central of a $10,000 policy just before it matures. There is a tax as ordinary income for the difference between the $10,000 policy value and what it cost Smith, which was $7,000. If he were in the 25% bracket, he would have to pay $750 in taxes (25% of $3,000). However, if he makes the college the beneficiary and assigns ownership of the policy, he has made a $10,000 charitable gift and in his tax bracket would receive a $2,500 tax savings, more than offsetting his $750 tax.

It is sometimes wise to make such a contribution before retirement when a donor is in a higher tax bracket, thus receiving a higher contribution deduction than he would later when his income, and therefore his tax bracket is lower.

It is also possible to provide a member of the family, for example one’s wife, with a life income, and still provide a charitable gift to the college. Here is how it may be done. The donor makes the college the beneficiary of his life insurance policy, but provides that at his death the proceeds be invested and the income be paid to his wife during her lifetime. He thus makes a gift, saves present income taxes, provides for his wife, and frees her of the management of the fund.

Assignment of the dividends of a life insurance policy to the college is a way of making regular annual contributions, and they are tax deductible. Here are some advantages of a gift of an insurance policy:

1. It is not subject to probate or open to contest. Not subject to delay in estate settlement.
2. The amount is guaranteed and simple to arrange.
3. Income tax savings are assured.
4. One’s heirs are not adversely affected. In effect a separate, added estate has been created.

Note: The above material has been prepared in simplified and, we hope, readable language. However, when you plan to make an insurance gift, first clear it with your insurance counsel.

Taylor Receives Appointment At Holy Cross College

Gilbert L. Taylor '58 has been appointed director of the newly created Center for Human Relations at Holy Cross College in Worcester, Mass. In making the announcement Rev. John E. Brooks, S.J., president of the College, said Taylor's appointment was effective immediately.

"Basically, we'll try to interpret the needs of students, and to eliminate the bureaucratic red-tape that often delays meeting those needs," said Taylor. According to the new director, the purpose of the center is "to resolve conflicts which arise in the course of human interaction on a college campus" and to "keep the lines of communication open."

The center also will devote attention to the college's community relations. The utilization of Holy Cross students in a wide variety of community projects, including tutorial programs and motivational consulting services for high school students is key to the success of the center, in Taylor's opinion.

A graduate of Crispus Attucks High School (Indianapolis), Taylor received his bachelor of science degree from Indiana Central. In 1969 he earned his master's degree in education from Indiana University.

Taylor has diverse experience as an educator. He served as an assistant in the music department at Indiana Central from 1955 to 1959 and as a teacher in the Indianapolis public schools from 1959 to 1963. From 1963 to 1966 Taylor was an educational consultant in the Presbyterian school system in Monrovia, Liberia, West Africa. Before joining Holy Cross he was a counselor in financial aid at Indiana University. Taylor was the director of the college center at Knoxville (Tenn.) College and administrative assistant at Indiana Memorial Union from 1968-69.

Taylor received a Danforth Foundation award in 1955 and a Valley Forge Freedom Foundation award in 1965. He has traveled in Africa, the Middle East, Europe, Mexico, Canada, and the Caribbean area.

Such an index is the equivalent of a straight B average or higher on the basis of 12 points for a straight A. Dr. Breneman addressed the students on "Population, Pollution, Poverty, and Peace," after which the awards were presented.

Among the honor students 21 were elected by the faculty to membership in Phi Alpha Epsilon, freshman honor society. The requirements for membership state that a freshman must earn at least 30 credit hours with an index of 9.75.

NEWSPAPER HONORS
A MOTHER'S LOVE

FOOTBALL SEASON ROUND-UP

With the 1970 football season over, Coach Dick Nyers has been pleased with the way his young Greyhounds have progressed throughout the year. The team has played good football and the scores are a matter of record.

Coach Nyers indicated at the start of the year that a large number of freshmen and sophomores would see action, and the season record would depend on how quickly these young Hounds would adapt to game conditions. He feels that we have a good crop of freshmen and that future years will depend upon the players to be recruited for next year.

Alumni football coaches are urged to contact the coaching staff with good prospects. Recruiting is vital and Coach Nyers stresses that our alumni can be the key to contacting these football players that will help build the gridiron program.

Frances attended Indiana Central two years, then transferred to Purdue University to complete her degree.

Choir to Tour Pennsylvania

The college choir makes a tour every year at semester break, usually visiting within the Indiana-southern Illinois area. However, with a new president who hails from Pennsylvania, the choir will move out from home base and into the area of Pittsburgh and Johnstown, Pa., this year.

Approximately 40 members of the college choir will make the tour. The plan is to give a program each evening in a church and a program in a nearby high school the following morning.

Concert confirmations have been received from Beaver Falls, Altoona, Johnstown, and Greensburg, Pennsylvania. The minister of the Second United Methodist Church at Altoona is the Rev. William D. Schmeling '55. Both Rev. and Mrs. Schmeling (Sandra Anderson '56) were members of the choir when they attended Indiana Central.

Another concert will be given at Trinity U. M. Church at Altoona where Rev. Don Sease, brother of the president, is the pastor. The minister at Beaver Falls is the Rev. Gerald McCormick, a former pastor of Dr. Sease. The choir will also sing at Otterbein U. M. Church in Greensburg, Pa., where Robert B. Baker is minister.

church. The church began a program in pastoral care and counseling. During this period Dr. Hightower realized the great need for better trained counselors.

Hightower is a member of the International Platform Association. Membership to the association is by invitation only and a person must be recommended by an active member. The association meets regularly in Washington, D.C., and includes many world leaders such as the U.S. President.

He also belongs to the American Society of Clinical Hypnotists, and attends its national convention every three years. The organization includes medical doctors, dentists, and psychologists. A prospective member must hold a doctor's degree in his field and must be a member of his profession's national association. The ASCH does not advocate hypnosis as a means of entertainment or its use by untrained people. All members of the association must continue to obtain further training in hypnosis and its uses.

Dr. Hightower practices hypnosis on patients for the control of pain. He has trained under several doctors including psychiatrist Dr. Milton Erickson who "knows more about hypnosis than any living soul," in Hightower's opinion.

Dr. Hightower gets "more joy out of this work [helping patients through hypnosis] than any other I've ever done." But he does not claim any credit for those persons who are cured. He believes that any healing is done through the power of "the greatest Physician, Jesus of Nazareth."
