TOMORROW COMES SUDDENLY
by Dr. I. Lynd Each

Some years ago while spending the Christmas period with my family in California, the five-year-old granddaughter was extremely anxious for Christmas to arrive. The day before Christmas, she inquired often regarding when it would arrive and was told “tomorrow.” Early Christmas morning I awakened to the sensation of someone shaking me. Opening my eyes, I was looking into the granddaughter’s face and heard her saying with delight, “Grandpa, wake up; it is tomorrow.” Yes, tomorrow does come suddenly — and often before we are ready for it.

We spend much of our lives preparing for tomorrow. It is a laborious and often monotonous, uninspirational procedure. The years which are required to reach an educational goal are often tedious. We think they will never end. We are impatient with the requirements and anxious to get on with the business of life for which we are preparing ourselves. Then suddenly the day arrives. The finals are over; commencement is here. And with it the tomorrow when we are on our own. It is the day to which we have looked forward for years, and we move into it with enthusiasm and expectation.

For those who will graduate from Central this year, tomorrow is almost here. It is our hope that the years the youth have spent here have prepared them well and that they will go out from this institution with confidence that they are prepared to make significant contributions to life in the areas of their professions.

We look forward to the commencement time too because it is a time when those who have gone out in former years return to renew acquaintances. We are anxious to visit with them and to learn how they have used their tomorrows into which they have moved during the intervening years.

Tomorrow also comes suddenly for institutions. Through all the years of its existence, one of the prime activities of Indiana Central has been preparation for tomorrow. Each new building, each development and enlargement of the curricular offerings, and each advancement in standards of quality have been part of this preparation. Each succeeding generation of students will benefit from these preparations.

But in another sense tomorrow is already here. The tomorrow of yesterday is the today of every day that we live. There is a sense, then, in which tomorrow never comes because it is always here. Today is the tomorrow to which we looked forward so fondly only yesterday.

Yes, tomorrow is here! It comes suddenly with each new day. May each tomorrow for each alumnus, for each member of our total college family, and for Indiana Central be a day of achievement and progress toward the goal of worthwhile service to mankind. This is my most sincere wish and prayer.

Whippets Go International

The Whippets, women’s basketball team at IC, played in the 17th Annual International Women’s Basketball Tournament held in Hamilton, O., the first week in April.

Fourteen coeds represented Indiana Central at the tournament. They were accompanied by their coach, Mrs. Joanne Alexander, assistant professor of physical education.

College Announces Staff Changes

Five alums and two present staff members are among the persons who will be assuming new duties at the college. John G. Swank, assistant professor of speech and chairman of the department of speech and drama, will become director of public relations at IC on July 1, 1970. Mr. Swank will be responsible for the institution’s total program in community and college relations, including the school’s news bureau. His background and competence in mass media communications will be especially helpful in this new role.

Swank came to IC in Sept., 1964, from Michigan where he had been a pastor in the EUB churches for 11 years. He holds a bachelor of arts degree in history, religion, and philosophy from Otterbein College, Westerville, O.; a bachelor of divinity degree from United Theological Seminary, Dayton, O.; and a master of arts in speech and public address at the University of Michigan. Swank’s wife, Eleanor, is a public school teacher. They have a daughter, Vicki, who is 12.

Working with John Swank will be John E. Hill, associate director of the Evening Division. Hill will become director of the news bureau. The bureau will be responsible for supplying news and photos to the public and campus publications. Hill has been with IC’s Evening Division since Sept., 1965. He also has taught classes in speech. He received a bachelor of arts degree in English and religion at Earlham College in 1942. He has taken graduate courses in English at Butler Univ. Hill’s wife, Kathryn, is a music teacher in the Warren Township schools. Their daughter, Joanna Hill Garrison, is an IC senior.

Lynn R. Youngblood ’63, director of admissions, will become assistant to the president and director of development on July 1. Youngblood received a master of arts degree from Butler Univ. in 1966. He had taught mathematics at Indianapolis Northwest High School. Youngblood will be responsible for the areas of public relations, church relations, alumni relations, admissions, and data processing. In addition to this, he will assist Dr. Gene E. Sease, president-elect, with administrative duties.

About the Cover

You'll have these moments to remember on Alumni Day, June 6, 1970.

1. Dr. I. Lynd Esch crowns a freshman with the traditional green beanie.

2. Posing for the cameraman at the Junior Class Carnival are '53 grads (1 to r) Jess Smither, Jerry Spitzer, and Harold Wright.

3. The Class of '63 quiz team seeks a victory. Members are (1 to r) Jim Miller, Dr. Larry Thompson, Richard Hughes, Jerry McClain, and Dick Martin.

4. Dr. Esch presides at commencement ceremonies as Rev. Walter Smith, Jr., '49 receives his degree.

College Admissions Spiral

The Class of '74 will be a large one if the applications which have already come in are a good indicator. The April 1, 1970, report of the Admissions Office shows an increase of 145 applications over the figures for 1969. The Admissions Office had received only 445 applications by April 1, 1969, compared to 590 by April 1 of this year. Only 273 had been admitted by April 1, 1969, compared to 343 admitted by April 1 of this year.

Nursing applications for the fall of 1970 have doubled last year's figures.

It appears that the fall freshmen will represent more states than ever before since out-of-state applications have also increased in 1970. More of the new students will be living on campus, too. Of the students who have applied, 76 percent have requested dormitory housing.

Director of Admissions, Lynn R. Youngblood '63, and his associates, Dave Huffman '64 and Beverly Gorbett '66, have had a busy season visiting high schools in Indiana, surrounding states, and the East. Lynn is optimistic as he reviews the admission statistics for this season but cautions that "the proof is in the pudding!"

He plans to specialize in psychiatry or obstetrics and gynecology.

Eleven students in the Evening Division were invited into membership in Alpha Sigma Lambda, the Evening Division honorary society. Members were inducted at a banquet in May.

COLLEGE HONORS SIMS

Virginia Sims, director of the Department of Nursing, holds the bronze nurse’s cap presented to her by the college at the annual capping ceremony in February.

At the annual capping ceremony for nursing students, a surprise award was presented to Virginia Sims, director of the Nursing Department for the past 11 years. Dr. I. Lynd Esch spoke on “The Art of Healing,” and Dr. Gene E. Sease performed the capping ceremony of the 23 students who satisfactorily completed their first semester in the nursing program.

The college cap for nurses done in bronze contained an inscription recognizing Miss Sims for her contributions to the nursing profession. Miss Sims is a graduate of Tech High School, Indianapolis, and was a Central student from 1933-36. She graduated from the I.U. Training School for Nurses and received her B.S. in nursing education from I.U. She received her M.S. in guidance and adult education at Butler Univ., Indianapolis.

She is a member of the American Nurses Assoc., the National League for Nursing, the American National Red Cross, the Indiana State Board for Nurse Registration and Education, and numerous other organizations.

Prior to joining IC’s faculty, Miss Sims served as assistant head nurse in pediatrics at the I.U. Medical Center, an instructor in science at Union Hospital, Terre Haute, Ind., and assistant director of nursing at Community Hospital in Indianapolis.
SEVEN ALUMS WIN HONOR

Seven alumni of Indiana Central College will be listed in the 1970 edition of Outstanding Young Men of America. The men chosen are between 21 and 35 years old and were selected on the basis of service to others, professional excellence, business advancement, charitable activities, and civic and professional recognition.

Those listed are:

Eugene W. Lausch, '60, administrator, division of code enforcement, Department of Metropolitan Development, Indianapolis. Home: 4202 Kessler Blvd., N. Dr., Indianapolis.

Phillip E. Roberts, '64, assistant director of purchasing and procurement, Deaconess Hospital, Evansville, Ind. Home: R.R. 2, Newburgh, Ind.

A biographical sketch featuring the accomplishments of these alums will be listed among approximately 5,000 young men of outstanding rank throughout the country. John Putman, president of the Outstanding Americans Foundation which sponsors the award, has said: "It is the purpose of Outstanding Young Men of America to recognize and honor the young men in our country who are working toward excellence in their careers and community service. It is these young men who will soon be leaders of our country."

YOUR PRESIDENT REFLECTS

It has been an honor to serve as president of the Alumni Association for the past year. Your board of directors has given generously of its time to further the aims and ideals you have established.

The board has met three times since the last annual meeting — one of those was an all-day meeting. Committees have met many times to fulfill their assignments and report to the board. We have attempted to have a closer relationship between our association and the administration of the college.

We have taken steps toward establishing a stronger placement program at the college. It was felt that a greater service could be provided to you who have been graduates for several years and are faced with a job change. Not only should this office be willing to help you in relocating, but much effort will need to be given to this program to inform prospective employers that Indiana Central College is the best place to contact for a top individual.

The Constitution Revision Committee has worked for two years with your board to develop a document more in keeping with a growing membership and challenging times. The final revision will be presented to you for ratification at the annual meeting on Alumni Day, June 6, 1970.

I am happy to inform you that your giving to the college through the areas of E.P.I.C., Annual Roll Call, and the Fellows Program has been increasing. If you have not joined this faithful band of supporters, I invite you to do so.

The staff in the Alumni Office has been just great in helping improve and carry out the program of your association. To them and all the rest of you who have helped I want to say, "Thanks!"

Alumni President

Students Build Dome

While college and university campuses across the nation devoted April 22 to an environmental teach-in, IC students took a look at the future. A 6½-foot dome housed information on alternative life styles. The dome was designed and built by students through a study of geodesy—a branch of applied mathematics. The structure is a replica of dwellings which are springing up around the country and particularly in the southwest. The dwellings are normally constructed of automobile tops—nonrecyclable material which when cut to size may be attached to a wooden frame to form the dome-like structure. This particular project was undertaken by the Alternatives Committee which was headed by Cathy Knecht, a senior from Dayton, O. The dome was the focal point for activity in the student concourse of Schwitzer Center.

In addition to Kathy's committee, eight other student groups did an in-depth study of ecological problems. Displays were set up to demonstrate the dangers of pollution and to provide information on ways to combat it. The student activities were designed to be educational and informative. They proved to be just that. Students and interested community people swarmed the concourse area all day and evening on April 22. The dome with its roomy interior and tape-recorded music was a gathering place.

The freshman class contributed to the day's activities by presenting an hour-long convocation program. Original poetry and popular music lamenting the environmental problems set the stage for a slide presentation. Slides showed pollution within a quarter mile of the campus. Ushers for this program were complete with gas masks donated by the U.S. Naval Reserve Training Center in Indianapolis.

Friel Serves in Vietnam

George G. Friel '66 has been promoted to the rank of Captain in the U.S. Air Force. He is serving with the 35th Avionics Maintenance Squadron in Phan Rang, Republic of Vietnam. His duties involve avionics and electronics maintenance on the F-100. There are 90 planes to be maintained and several other support aircraft.

George and his wife, Joyce (Bonner '68), were previously stationed at Loring AFB, Maine. Joyce lives in Greenwood and is kept busy caring for their new baby, Dirk Christian, born April 1, 1970.

Captain Friel was involved in a recent collection of funds from officers stationed at Phan Rang. Money was collected to provide scholarships for needy students. Free education is provided through the sixth grade only. The funds which were collected will facilitate higher education for students at the Thap Chaw School in the village of Phan Rang.

Friel will be discharged from the service in Nov., 1970, upon his return from Vietnam. He plans to return to teaching and coaching after arriving home.

Rodebaugh Takes Position

Richard M. Rodebaugh '66 received his Ph.D. in organic chemistry from the University of Nebraska in Jan., 1970. He has taken a position with Parke, Davis & Company, a drug firm in Ann Arbor, Mich. Dr. Rodebaugh, age 25, works in the organic chemistry section of the firm's research laboratories.

Dick is a member of numerous scientific societies and associations. He served as a National Science Foundation trainee at the University of Nebraska before joining Parke-Davis. His wife is the former Patricia (Shirley '69). The family lives at 641 Wharton Ave., Ypsilanti, MI 48197.

59 Make Dean's List

The Dean's List is an honor given to students who carry at least 15 credit hours and achieve an academic index of 10.5 on a 12-point scale. During the first semester of 1969-70, 59 students were named to this select list.

Four of the 59 were children of alumni. They are:

Robert Biggs, son of Doit '45 and Elnor (Uncapher '45) Biggs, R. R. I., Westfield, Ill.;

Roger Core, son of Gordon '43 and Odessa Core '44, 113 Farrer Blvd., Dayton, O.;

Norman Geible, son of Merrell '44 and Lois (Fulton '46) Geible, 2420 Edgelea Dr., Lafayette, Ind.;

Donna Stone, daughter of Philip '42 and Clare (Jacobs '44) Stone, 367 S. 22nd St., Terre Haute, Ind.

STAFF CHANGES...

Lynn's wife, Janis, is a graduate of Hanover College. They are the proud parents of a new baby girl, Larissa Lyn.

Assuming the duties as director of admissions is Dave Huffman '64. Dave is presently associate director of admissions. He received a master of science degree in guidance and mathematics at Butler in 1969. Previously he had taught and coached at North Miami High School for two years. Huffman is married to Marcia (White '63). They have a daughter, Jennifer, who is four.

Charles Richard (Dick) Nyers '66 will become head football coach next fall. Nyers compiled an outstanding record during the 10 years he was coach at Carmel High School. His teams won 69 games, lost 24, and tied 5. His 1964 and 1965 teams were undefeated and had a 23-game winning streak. The past two seasons he has been defense coach at Ball State Univ.

After a successful career in athletics at IC, Nyers played two seasons with the Baltimore Colts of the NFL. Nyers earned a master of science degree at Butler Univ. in 1965. He and his wife, Susan Jane, have two children, Melinda Lois, 8, and Bradley Richard, 5.

William P. (Bill) Bless '63 will assist Nyers with his coaching duties. In addition, Bless will become head track coach. Bless taught and coached at Greensburg and Whiteland High Schools. His five-year football coaching record is 26-21-1, and his four-season track mark is 29-10-1. Bless received a master of science degree from I.U. in 1969. He and his wife, Beverly, have three children: Jennie Lynne, 9; William Mark, 8; and Bradley Richard, 5.

Willie R. Martin '62, head track coach and a football assistant at IC for the past two years, will become assistant dean of men and an admissions counselor with the start of the 1970-71 school year. He also will give part-time assistance to Nyers. Martin received a master of science degree from I.U. in 1967. In the interim between his graduation from and return to Central, he was a member of the coaching staff at Indianapolis Attucks High School. He taught physical education, health and safety, and was assistant football coach and head wrestling coach. Martin and his wife, Marva (Ellis), are the parents of one daughter, Vickie.
COLLEGE PRESENTS LECTURES

The Showers Lectures, named in honor of the late Bishop J. Balmer Showers, a former trustee of IC, featured Bishop Gerald Kennedy of the Los Angeles area of the UM Church. Bishop Kennedy spoke on the general theme "The Gospel Now."

Bishop Kennedy is a noted preacher, critic, lecturer, and author. He has written more than a score of books, is a contributing editor of "Together," UM family magazine, and frequently contributes articles to other religious journals. For over a year he has been preaching regularly at the First UM of Theology at Claremont, Cal. Showers, a former trustee of IC, featured Bishop Gerald Kennedy of the Los Angeles area of the UM Church. Bishop Kennedy spoke on the general theme "The Gospel Now."

Kennedy was elected a bishop in 1948 at the age of 40, then the youngest person to be elevated to the Methodist episcopacy. He earned a bachelor of divinity from the University of the Pacific, master of arts and bachelor of divinity from Pacific School of Religion; University of the Pacific; School of Theology at Claremont, Cal.; Goodwill Industries of Southern California; Methodist Hospital of Southern California; and Pacific Homes, a Methodist agency operating retirement homes in Arizona, California, and Hawaii.

The ninth annual Sutphin Lectures in the Humanities featured Dr. H. J. Anatole Jaro of Vienna, a political commentator and news analyst for the Austrian Broadcasting Co. His series of three lectures was given April 15 and 16. His talks on "Backstage of World History" presented an intimate glimpse into the private thoughts of world leaders. His other lectures were entitled: "Violent Commentator" and "Close to the Iron Curtain."

Dr. Jaro is making a two-month tour of 15 UM-related universities and colleges in the U.S. He is sponsored by the United Methodist Board of Education and the Association of Colleges and Universities for International-Intercultural Studies. Dr. Jaro was born in the U.S. but received his higher education at universities in Berlin and Paris. Recognized in Europe as an authority on America, he produces broadcast shows dealing with the positive side of American life, trying to give Europeans a better understanding of the U.S. culture.

The Sutphin Lectures were made possible by the generosity of Samuel B. Sutphin of the Beveridge Paper Co., 717 W. Washington St., Indpls., Ind.

Students Become Teachers

IC will add 75 persons to the ranks of the teaching profession at the end of June, 1970. Under the synoptic program in which students take professional education courses for the first half of the semester, student teachers teach for a full day. This full-time teaching provides experience in teaching in an accredited school and under an approved supervising teacher. Student teachers experience a full-time teaching load and are available for departmental meetings, extracurricular activities of the school, and other after-school obligations not experienced while Central students were on a half-day teaching program.

Of the 75 students enrolled in supervised teaching in the Indianapolis and suburban schools, 27 are majoring in elementary education and 48 are involved in secondary education.

Two children of alumni are among the student teachers this semester. They are: Robert Howe, son of William P. Howe '43; and Barbara Lawrence, daughter of Wilmer '53 and Hope Lawrence '64.

Fellows Add Four

With the addition of four new members, Dr. Charles W. Dill, alumni Fellows chairman, now reports a total of 159 Alumni Fellows. There have been 14 alumni who have joined in the Fellows program since the start of the fund year on July 1, 1969. By committing themselves to an annual contribution of $100 or more, these Fellows have expanded the outreach of the Indiana Central program.

Latest additions to the Fellows program are:

- James Lansinger '50
- Ivan Nading '60
- Steve '66 and Sarah (Hiatt '69)
- Maple
- Arthur A. Key '58

A most tangible display of concern for the future of higher education can be found in the expansion of the Fellows program. The Fellows of Indiana Central continue to provide a base of support for meeting the day-to-day needs of Indiana Central. Expanded programs in student aid, library facilities, and faculty development can be planned because of the annual commitment of Fellows members.

An invitation to all alumni has been extended from the 159 members of the Fellows program. When your income level will permit you to evidence a deep concern for your alma mater, write the Alumni Office for information about the Fellows of IC. We are expecting the 160th member any day now. It could be you.

Coe Earns Wings

Patricia Ann Coe '67, has been awarded the silver wings of an American Airlines stewardess. She is assigned to flight duty out of New York City.

She is a graduate of Arsenal Technical High School. Prior to joining American Airlines, she was a secretary at Methodist Hospital, Indpls. Pat is the daughter of Charles Acton, 2330 Guilford, Indpls., and Mrs. Dorothy Bridges, 3156 Washington Blvd., Indpls.
TAX TALK
by Arnold Hodgson

People do not give to worthy causes primarily because of tax benefits. They give because they want to help others. The Congress, over the years, has recognized the value of private philanthropy through special tax incentives. This fits in well with the American system of private enterprise, where individuals and firms want to have a choice as to where their donations will go.

The Tax Reform Act of 1969 has retained, in respect to charitable giving, some earlier provisions, changed others and added much that is new. Some of them are summarized below.

The Outright Gift. We all make outright gifts to our favorite charities. The new law continues to provide charitable gift deductions. This, of course, reduces the cost of the gift to the donor. It is the most common type of contribution to Indiana Central College. Roll Call, Fellows, and E.P.I.C. are typical outright gifts.

"Capital Gain" Gifts. When securities or real estate have increased in value, and have been held more than six months, the full present fair market value may be applied on a gift. In most cases the donor will escape the capital gains tax charged if the property were sold, rather than given to the College. This reduces the cost of the gift.

More Generous Charitable Deductions. This applies to larger gifts. Formerly, the maximum deductible as a charitable contribution in any one year was 30% of the donor's adjusted gross income. Under the new law the limit has been increased to 50% with some exceptions.

The "five-year carryover" has been retained. This means that if you cannot because of the percentage limitation mentioned above, use up all your charitable deduction the first year, you can carry forward deductions for five years. One of our alumni who took out a very large gift annuity is doing just that.

The Gift Annuity. This is a favorite with those of us in the upper age brackets since the older you are the larger percentage per year you receive on your annuity agreement. There is an immediate charitable tax deduction. Your income is assured, the greater part of your income is tax free. For example, a man 83 years of age receives 7.9% annually of the amount of his annuity agreement, and 86% of the income from this source is tax free. The gift annuity is part gift and part investment and you receive a charitable tax deduction for the gift portion.

The Unitrust. A new type of life income plan is the charitable remainder Unitrust. The income is on a different basis than the former life income contract, where the donor's income depended upon the earnings of pooled funds. In the unitrust a fixed percentage is agreed on in advance (not less than 5%) and this is applied to the fair market value of the trust's assets annually. For example, if the percentage were 6% on a unitrust originally valued at $10,000, the donor would receive $600 the first year. If the next year the assets were valued at $11,000, the donor would receive 6% of this amount or $660.

Even though in a particular year the earnings of the unitrust were below 6%, the donor would receive the stated percentage. This type of trust could be an effective hedge against inflation.

Space does not permit a description of other plans, such as the annuity trust and pooled life income agreements, which will be treated in a later issue.

In these new plans for charitable giving, there is still the matter of "how much immediate charitable deduction do I receive." In the very near future the Treasury is expected to issue new regulations and tables to implement these aspects of the law. We hope to report them to you in the next issue of Alumni News.

In the meantime do not hesitate to ask the Development Department for more detailed information on the implications of the new tax law as it affects giving to your alma mater.

Purdue Admits IC Science Majors

Three Indiana College seniors have been notified of their admission to the Purdue University School of Science for graduate study in the department of geosciences.

Robert N. Green of Twelve Mile, Ind., will work toward a master of science degree in atmospheric science. The physics major was awarded a National Air Pollution Control Administration traineeship which will provide $2,500 a calendar year, full tuition and fees. His studies will concern the role of meteorological processes in the control of atmospheric pollution.

Joseph L. Goss of Brownstown, a mathematics major, was awarded a halftime teaching assistantship in meteorology laboratories which will provide remission of tuition and fees except for $60 a semester and pay $260 a month while he pursues graduate study.

Cain Authors Book

Dr. Benjamin H. Cain '22 reports his 55 years as pastor, conference superintendent, and general church secretary in "From Plow to Pulpit."

This is a most readable book giving the story of his early life as one of a large family of boys and girls living on a small farm, his early conviction that he must preach, his struggle to get an education and his pulpit ministry.

This fourth book written by Dr. Cain not only gives an interesting account of his service to the church but also relates two love affairs. His first wife was Lona Bertha (Randall '22), who died Oct. 13, 1944.

Long-time friends of Indiana Central will appreciate his paragraph entitled, "An Appreciation of IC." He writes:

If it had not been for the labors and sacrifices of President I. J. Good, we would not have had a college very long. . . . Social life of the school was clean and enjoyable. . . . I served 12 years on President Good's cabinet and was a college trustee for 18 years. I was honored with the D.D. degree in 1937. Today the college is highly efficient. It has climbed to great heights on the ladder of Christian religion under the leadership of Dr. I. Lynd Esch.

IC PLAYERS GO ABROAD

The Indiana Central College Players have accepted an invitation from the American Theatre Festival in Great Britain to present their production of Hamlet this summer in the land where William Shakespeare wrote the tragedy. The troupe will present Hamlet in Northern England and Southern Scotland for two weeks. The actors will use the same costumes they wore at IC in Oct. A stage set matching the one used in Ransburg Auditorium will be constructed for their use in Great Britain.

The invitation arose when, unknown to the college, a representative of the American Theatre Festival attended one of the Hamlet performances and turned in a report to ATF. The students and Williams will leave Detroit July 15, fly to Manchester, and proceed to Kendall, England. They will return Aug. 5. Prior to their return they will visit Stratford-on-Avon and London.

Each member of the cast will pay part of his expenses, but most of the tour has been underwritten by friends of IC. A special benefit performance of Antigone was held on Sat., April 25, to help defray expenses.

ESCH RECEIVES RECOGNITION

Dr. I. Lynd Esch receives a plaque from the American Chemical Society, a group he has spoken to annually during his 25 years of service to IC. The award is presented by Ralph A. Coddington as Dr. Richard Rapala, chairman of the Indiana Section of the ACS, looks on.

 Among many honors Dr. Esch will receive between now and June 30, 1970, when he retires, is an award presented by the American Chemical Society. Dr. Esch has spoken to the ACS representatives each year for the past 25 years. Dr. Robert M. Brooker, chairman of the Science and Mathematics Division at IC, says that Dr. Esch's presentations to this group have drawn capacity crowds—the largest of any speaker addressing the ACS.

In addition to the recognition for Dr. Esch which will be given by numerous groups on the campus, city-wide recognition by various organizations is being planned.

Another recent honor for Dr. Esch was the Award of Merit for Indiana which was presented by the Tri-State Hospital Assembly, Chicago, Ill. This award is presented annually to the Hoosier who has done the most in the health-care field. Dr. Esch serves as chairman of the board of directors of University Heights Hospital, serves on the advisory board of St. Francis Hospital, and is a member of the board of directors of Community Hospital in Indianapolis.

Grads On Increase

Approximately 275 people will receive degrees at commencement on June 7, 1970. This figure may be compared to the 10 students receiving degrees at commencement in 1920. In 1945, when Dr. I. Lynd Esch assumed the presidency, the college graduated only 25 students.

If you have diaries, photographs, or other items concerning Indiana Central, these may make a meaningful addition to the college archives. Simply notify the Alumni Office, and we will be happy to make arrangements.

MATCHING GIFTS MEAN MORE

Since the General Electric Company launched its highly imaginative Corporate Alumnum Program in 1955, the concept of matching gifts as a useful form of aid to education by business and industry has been adopted by hundreds of companies.

According to the “scoreboard” maintained by the American Alumni Council, the count of corporations that have agreed to match their employees’ gifts in support of education now stands at 404. On the roster are a wide variety of companies, ranging from industrial giants to small research organizations. Included are banks, food processing companies, advertising agencies, retailers, manufacturers, and a host of other industries and concerns. In establishing their programs, all appear to have had one common aim: to encourage their employees and alumni in general to join with industry in providing significant financial support to education.

Of all the many useful and imaginative ways in which corporations are rendering assistance to universities, colleges and schools these days, the matching gift concept seems to have the widest current appeal. Some companies are making their first cautious moves in support of education by agreeing to set up such a plan; the majority include this approach as one part of a comprehensive aid-to-education program.

Perhaps the most encouraging development has been the decision taken by so many companies to lift the restrictions which tended to keep their programs from realizing full potential. Eligibility of donors in the early stages was often limited to long-term employees who were degree-holders. To qualify, colleges had to be four-year, degree-granting and fully accredited institutions. Now most companies have revised their eligibility standards to include virtually all employees and to match gifts to virtually all universities, colleges and junior colleges in good standing—and frequently to independent secondary schools as well.

In addition, maximum limits on the size of the gift to be matched, and the number of institutions to which an individual employee can give, have been raised; certification processes have been simplified; more companies each year are willing to provide employee-alumni lists to alumni and development officers; and full details of programs have been circulated more widely throughout companies to insure that those eligible know about the opportunities and take the necessary steps to make their gifts and have them matched.

Many Indiana Central alumni are taking advantage of matching gift programs to double the size of their contributions. Such programs often allow a matching gift when either husband or wife are employed regardless of which one attended the college. For complete information on companies which have a matching gift program, contact the Alumni Office, Indiana Central College.

Hayes Describes New Approach

Rev. William A. Hayes ’50 is administrative director of St. Mark’s Church in Kansas City, Mo.

This is an unusual position and an unusual church, for St. Marks is an amazing example of inter-church cooperation. There are four major religious bodies — the United Presbyterian Church, the United Church of Christ, the Roman Catholic Church, and the Episcopal Church — that have joined together to build a single building which is jointly staffed and supported.

St. Marks is not a merger for the four communions mutually recognize and respect any real differences in church structure, doctrinal belief, or sacramental life that may exist among them. For example, on Sundays a Catholic Mass is held at 9:00 a.m., followed by a Protestant service at 11:00 a.m.

Most of the time, however, St. Marks operates as one church in its community program of service and outreach. It has as pastors a Catholic priest, an Episcopal priest, a Presbyterian minister, and a United Church of Christ minister. The congregation began its work in a new architectural wonder of a church in the black inner-city of Kansas City.

Prior to going to Kansas City, the Rev. Hayes served as pastor of Lloyd’s Memorial United Church of Christ, Buffalo, N.Y.

Summer and Evening Programs Meet Needs

The summer and evening programs available this year offer something for everyone. Incoming freshmen may transfer to another institution. Most important, it gives the youth insight into college life. The student is encouraged to live on campus and to make full use of library and laboratory facilities. Course matter is designed to appeal to the student interested in either computer science or the behavioral sciences. The six-week program will begin June 15.

The student wanting to strengthen basic abilities needed in college work may also enroll for non-credit work. Courses are offered on Tuesday and Thursday evening for six evenings. “Preparation for College” will be offered from July 14 to July 30; “Review of English Grammar” runs from Aug. 11 to Aug. 27. These non-credit courses are offered by the college’s Center for Continuing Education. These same courses offered last summer attracted enrollees representing as many as 16 colleges.

Students interested in botany and chemistry may enroll in one of two five-week sessions running concurrently with the regular summer session programs. Each of the sessions constitutes a full semester’s work. This permits a student to earn 10 semester hours of laboratory science to apply toward his degree. The first session will be June 15 to July 17; the second, July 20 to Aug. 21.

Approximately 30 instructors will be involved in the courses offered in the Evening Division summer program. Classes begin June 15 and end Aug. 7. Graduate courses offered during the summer are:

- Background and Antecedents of 20th Cent. (501)
- Urbanization and Transition in American Society (506)
- Spenser and Milton (530)
- History of the Two Centuries (540)
- American Education (541)

In addition to these courses, a student may arrange to work on his research project to meet degree requirements. This Master of Arts degree program, under the direction of Dr. Leonard T. Grant, enables a student to enroll for part-time graduate study.

A highlight of the summer offerings is the foreign travel tour and seminar which is scheduled for June 10 through July 9. Dr. Marge Miller, chairman of the Foreign Language Department, and Earl G. Snellberger, assistant professor of art, will lead the four-week tour of Europe.

Baseball at Indiana Central finally got its start last March and Coach Bill Bright and his diamondmen looked to get off to a quick start. Things didn't get started too well as the Hounds dropped six of their first seven.

It all began when Louisville's Cardinals came to Indianapolis on March 21. The Hounds were able to defeat the visitors, but suddenly the "luck" began and the second game was called a tie because of darkness.

Then IC went down south to Georgia to play Berry College and Georgia Tech. Needles to say, Central received no southern hospitality — losing five.

Back home in Indiana, things started to look better as Bright's youngsters and veterans combined to split a doubleheader with Eastern Illinois, falling 4-2 in the first game and winning the second 2-1 with a fine freshman pitching job by New Palestine's Gary Judy. Judy got the complete game victory over the Panthers.

The first week in April brought disaster for the baseballers as the Quakers of Earlham took two Hoosier Conference wins against IC, 2-1 and 5-3.

Tri-State's Trojans came to University Heights on April 7 and the Hounds took two games from the visitors, but suddenly the "luck" disappeared.

SPORTS . . .

Two Jims — Jim McFarland and Jim Kistler — finished out the outfield with Schrink. Kistler batted .265 last season and is fair on the defensive side. McFarland is a 5-7 junior and a hometown boy.

Of course, pitching is always important and the Hound staff was well equipped with talent in '70. Bill Smock, Hedges, Judy, Don Hecklinski, Jeff McGuire and Jerry Remble handled the throwing service. Smock and Hedges were the only veterans on the young hurling unit.

Hecklinski is probably Bright's most promising prospect. The 6-2 right-hander did fine work for South Bend St. Joseph's last year as a prepster.

Looking at the Hound's season, defending NCAA small college champ Illinois State battled Central in a big doubleheader this year. Others on the schedule were Purdue-Calumet, Marian, Purdue-Lafayette, Wabash, Franklin, Indiana State, Taylor, Anderson, Manchester, and Hanover. The IC sluggers had 35 games on the line this year with the NAIA District 21 playoffs on May 15.

A VOICE IS HEARD

Perhaps the most familiar voice heard, aside from that of Tom Carnegie and Tony Hinkle, coming from the Hinkle Field House during the high school tournaments is that of a Centralite, Ivan Moreman '50. For some half-dozen years Ivan, a member of the Athletic Department of Arsenal Technical High School, has introduced the players and coaches at the sectional, regional, semi-final and final tournaments.

His is a late evening job. Yet the next morning, Sunday, he may be seen in the college church ushering the 9:00 a.m. worshipers to their seats and passing the offering plate.

Champs Tee Off

Indiana Central's golfers have started their defense of the Hoosier College Conference championship with a tougher season schedule to face. The squad is talented and the nucleus of coach Ken Partridge's team is from the junior class. In fact there are no seniors on the team. Franklin and Hanover will give the Greyhounds the most trouble in the HCC title chase; but as coach Partridge remarked, "We're still the champs until someone beats us." The final decision comes at the HCC meet on May 15.

Nicoson Makes Hall of Fame

Angus Nicoson, athletic director and head basketball coach of the Greyhounds since 1947-48, was inducted into the NAIA Basketball Hall of Fame in March, 1970. In a ceremony at the annual NAIA-Hillyard Hall of Fame luncheon at the Hotel Muehlebach in Kansas City, Mo., Nicoson was awarded a plaque honoring him "for meritorious service to NAIA basketball."

Nick has won 391 games and lost 288 for a .555 percentage. His teams have played in 14 District 21 NAIA playoffs and have earned the right to represent Indiana in the national tournament at Kansas City six times.

Track Talk

Coach Willie Martin's hopes for track season suffered a severe setback at the end of the first semester. Six of his cinder hopefuls fell victim to NAIA eligibility rulings and were lost for the season. In spite of this, the tracksters have sufficient individual talent to improve on last year's fifth place finish if injuries do not overrule. The field events will be stronger overall and two college records were cracked in early meets. If Central can overcome the lack of depth problems by HCC meet time on May 16, the Greyhounds could be in the thick of the conference battle.
