Students near $25,000 mark in Alumni Phonathon

About 60 student volunteers, making calls to ICU alumni on six nights in October and November, raised about $24,800 in pledges. The students called from a phone bank in Schwitzer Center on campus. The team at right, starting with the fellow in the "Gootchie" T-shirt at top and moving clockwise, is comprised of: Greg Stolle, John Thibo, Myra Montgomery, Sharon Broadlick, Lila Van Oort, Gail Reed, Chris Purdue, Terri McGath, Ron Shrack, Tammy King and Dennis Reinbold. The couple in the middle are Jan Lane and Brad Martin.
Project in Peru
An exciting work experience trip to Peru will be sponsored by ICU's International Program April 24 to May 20. Dr. Charles Guthrie and Reverend Dave Owen will lead approximately 15 students through this learning/service adventure. The trip will be spent at a rural development project helping to build an agricultural training center. The remaining program includes an urban living experience in Lima and a trip to Cusco, ancient capital of the Inca Empire.

From the vice president's desk

While ICU President Gene E. Sease is on sabbatical, Dr. Lynn Youngblood, vice president, will assume many of his duties. Dr. Sease has been approved for sabbatical leave since 1975, but has never had the time. Now that he is winding down, he is availing himself of the opportunity to spend four months, from November to March, traveling and lecturing internationally, in cooperation with the Office of the United States Department of Information. --Editor.

An administrator's first love?

As I write this column in early November, the clock has just struck midnight, I'm trying to play the role of "acting president" during President Sease's sabbatical, I am tired from a long day of doing a bit of his job... and a bit of mine... and yet I'm "high as a kite." I've just finished grading a major examination from my Pre-Calculus class, a group of 16 students, predominantly bright-eyed, bushy-tailed freshmen, who have given this peripatetic administrator a new lease on life! It's not that the exam grades were that great—there were four A's, but there were also two F's! But the joy of working with students eager to learn, students from all walks of life, has reminded me once again of what education is all about and that the university does not exist as a place to provide jobs for administrators and faculty.

When I first contemplated teaching a course this semester, I hesitated for fear that "covering" for the president's job as well as my own would consume too much time. But I quickly realized that President Sease has taught courses regularly and still dispatched his job very well. In fact, I suspect that one of the unique aspects of Indiana Central is that in addition to the obvious outstanding quality of our full-time faculty, a number of administrators teach classes in our Day Division, a commitment which is not part of their contractual arrangement, nor for which they receive any compensation.

Other administrators in the classroom this semester include Associate Academic Dean Noel Baker (Concepts of Liberal Arts), Alumni Director Keith Van Deman (Typing), Placement Director Diane Metheny (Concepts of Liberal Arts), Center for Continuing Education Director Ken Partridge (Introduction to Management), and Head Librarian Florabelle Wilson (Concepts of Liberal Arts). Administrators who don't happen to be teaching this semester, but have with some regularity in the past, include Controller Robert Barrick (Accounting) and Treasurer/Business Manager Ken Hottell (Typing). It is hoped that added advantages to having administrators in the classroom include their enhanced abilities to better relate not only to students but to empathize with the regular faculty and their particular challenges.

But beneath it all, the underlying reason for administrators teaching is that the classroom is the place where they fulfill the need to interact with young people.

If there's a better group of kids anywhere than this year's freshman class of 400, someone will have to prove it to me. My course is comprised of a cross section of that group and just as on my exam, there are a wide variety of abilities and interests represented in the class. But the pleasure of working with young people, getting inside their lives—I can't admit it to my class now for fear that they will become complacent about the entire academic process and assume that I will grade them all too generously—but they have each enriched my life. I'll tell them that on the last day of the semester. What a pleasure it has been!

Auditions for "Becket" open to alumni

The ICU Theatre, under the direction of Dr. Richard A. Williams, will produce the award-winning drama, Becket, by Jean Anouilh, as its next production. Performances will be given in Ransburg Auditorium Friday and Saturday, February 11 and 12, at 8 p.m., and on Sunday, February 13, at 3 p.m. There will also be an audience dress rehearsal on Thursday evening, February 10, for area high schools and invited guests.

Auditions for this production, which calls for 24 men and four women, will be held on Monday and Tuesday evenings, December 6 and 7, from 7 to 10 p.m., in Rehearsal Hall (Esch Hall Room 001). Because of the size of the cast it may be necessary to extend auditions to include Wednesday evening, December 8. As is the case with so many plays, there are unfortunately only a few female roles, but we do hope that many of our alumnae will audition.

Dr. Williams has been hesitating to produce this play because of the size of the male cast, but with auditions now being open to area alumni and the general public, the chances of being able to put together an outstanding cast are very good. Becket is a great play; indeed it is a classic in our time. Its message is one that is not only relevant to our day, but is especially appropriate for a church-related university to produce. The play deals with the relationship between Thomas Becket, who became Archbishop of Canterbury, and the primitive-minded giant, Henry, who was King of England. Anyone having questions should call Dr. Williams at (317)788-3226. Those interested in working on the technical end of the production should call Mr. James Ream, technical director, at (317)788-3265.

The box office will open for Becket on January 31, at 1 p.m. Box office hours will be from 1 to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday until opening night. Adult tickets will sell for $4 and student tickets will be $3. Group rates will be available for groups of 20 or more. Reservations should be paid for in advance. Unpaid reservations will not be held past 5 p.m. February 11 for any of the performances.

We sincerely hope that all of you will want to participate in Becket, either as a member of the production or as a member of the audience.
Let's get acquainted
The ICU Office of Admissions will host a "Let's Get Acquainted" Program on Thursday, December 9, from 8-9 p.m. in Schwitzer Center. Representatives from the Admissions Office, Financial Aid, and ICU faculty will present a program from each of their perspectives. An informal question-and-answer session will follow the formal presentation. Refreshments will be served and reservations are requested but not required. For more information, write or call 788-3216.

ICU represented at high school Career Days
Area high schools welcomed at least four members of Indiana Central's faculty and staff at Career Days in October. Three members of the music department visited high schools: Paul Krasnovsky went to Perry Meridian, George Welmer was invited by Arsenal Tech, and James Lamberson spoke at Southport. Public Relations Director Carolyn Sfredo addressed students at Perry Meridian and Southport.

Ever considered running for office?
Elections for new members of the Alumni Board of Directors are coming up in the next few months, so those alumni interested in being considered for the Board should submit a biographical sketch to the Alumni Office by January 15, 1983. Five directors are elected each year for a four-year term, with three meetings scheduled per year. Two alumni trustees must also be elected to three-year terms.

People on campus

Dr. Ione Boodt, assistant professor of mathematics, presented "Computer Literacy at the College Level," at the fall meeting of the Indiana Regional Mathematics Consortium at IU Bloomington on October 15.

Dr. Ken Borden, who chairs the ICU chemistry department, is working at Dow Chemical during a one-semester sabbatical leave from Central. He hopes to gain insight into the roles and responsibilities of industrial chemists while he works on a research project, and expects to be better able to prepare his students for careers in industrial laboratories.

Dr. Al Brinson spoke on the topic, "Economics: Bridging the Gap," at an Indiana Vocational Conference. He also has critiqued an economics general business textbook for South-Western Publishing Company. Dr. Brinson is an associate professor of business administration.

Dr. Pat Cook and Dr. Nancy O'Dell, co-directors of the Miriam Bender Diagnostic Center at ICU, began their own television show November 6. "Info for Living" is a half-hour program on Channel 4-Indianapolis, aired every other Saturday at 9 a.m. The theme of the presentations is information that is relatively new and not generally known, and that may make living somewhat easier and more fulfilling. "Info for Living" goes by cable to seven states, and when satellite coverage is included in late spring, will be carried to 13 states along the East Coast and in the Midwest.

Dr. David Huffman, dean for Student Services, and Dr. Lynn Youngblood, ICU vice president, have joined the centennial year operating fund campaign of the Indianapolis Museum of Art. They will be soliciting gifts to the IMA from the business community as part of the business and industry phase of the campaign.

Dr. John McIlvried, assistant professor of behavioral science, presented a paper at a meeting of the American Psychological Association in Washington, D.C. The paper was entitled, "Comparison of Spatial Perspective Abilities in Younger and Older Adults."

Dr. James Riggs, associate professor of history and political science, again served as political analyst on election night for WTHR-Channel 13. He also appeared on "Newscenter 13-Extra" in October, and along with Dr. George Humbarger, director of the master's in business administration program, participated in the Indiana Academy of the Social Sciences in October. Dr. Humbarger presided at the Wabash College luncheon meeting; Dr. Riggs spoke in an international studies section meeting on the topic, "International Terrorism: The Reagan Perspective."
Education department re-accredited
The National Council for Accreditation of Teacher Education recently evaluated and granted accreditation to ICU's teacher education program. Department chairman Dr. Norman Willey, along with the education department faculty, submitted a 156-page report in advance of the NCATE visitation. Accreditation by NCATE certifies that the institution's programs for preparing teachers and other professional school personnel meet Council standards.

Dialogues on disarmament
A nuclear disarmament discussion group has evolved on ICU's campus. The group hopes to become an information-gathering body, and is considering ways of obtaining information and fostering campus discussion and awareness of nuclear-related issues. So far there has been more faculty/staff participation than student interest though the group hopes that as discussion increases, so will student participation. Recent meetings have included informal dialogues and plans for a possible symposium.

ICU augments guitar program
The ICU Department of Music announces that the classical guitar program has been expanded as of the 1982-83 school year by offering a degree in guitar performance. According to Professor James Lamberson, who chairs the department, "With the increased interest in the classical guitar, it is a welcome addition to the ICU curriculum."

Sulaiman Zai has designed and will be implementing the degree program. He will be assisted by Joy Hague, who has taught guitar at the university for several years. They will also be teaching noncredit guitar courses. Mr. Zai has just returned from Australia, where he spent a year performing and teaching. Previously, he taught at Indiana University School of Music where he also participated in the prestigious Artist Diploma Program and studied musical interpretation under world-renowned cellist Jan0 Starker. In conjunction with Zai's solo and concerto appearances here and abroad, including numerous radio and television broadcasts, he has directed master classes.

In November, the Indianapolis Museum of Art and Indiana Society of Classic Guitar presented Mr. Zai in solo concert, followed by a master class.

Clayfest returns to Ransburg gallery
The Leah Ransburg Art Gallery, in cooperation with the Woodsmall Foundation, hosted "Clayfest '82," an exhibition of ceramic works by Indiana artists, from October 30 to November 18.

Works included sculptural and functional pieces using diverse ceramic techniques. Materials from porcelain to stoneware were displayed using various glazes and decorating techniques.

Judging of the pieces took place October 3 with Barbara Tipton, associate editor for Ceramics Monthly magazine, and Joe Zeller, associate professor of art at Ohio University in Athens, Ohio, serving as judges. Awards were presented at the show's opening ceremonies on October 30. Winners included: Marge Levy, Chandler Dayton, Jeffery Chapp, Leanne Ellis, Janet Seward, Mark Richardson, Ron Kovatch, Margie Marx, and Les Miley.

Alumni will travel to EPCOT Center
The ICU Alumni Association will sponsor a trip to Disney World and the new EPCOT Center in Orlando, Florida, for alumni and their families.

This mini-vacation of five days and four nights includes round trip air fare from Indy to Orlando via Delta Airlines, three days' admission to Walt Disney World and EPCOT Center, four nights' accommodation at the Ramada Inn Southwest, one day's shuttle pass and admission to Wet 'n' Wild or lunch at Disney's famous Magic Kingdom. All transportation, baggage handling, insurance, and taxes are also included.

Tentative plans are now being made for a late June or early July travel date. Plan now to join us and bring the whole family for this super vacation! For more information, contact the Alumni Office at 317-788-3295. Limited space is available.

Ski at Crystal Mountain, MI!
Cross country and downhill!
ICU alumni are invited to spend February 18, 19, 20, and 21 at Crystal Mountain, Michigan, for a four-day weekend of skiing. The alumni association has secured various lodging facilities: group chalets, condominiums, and motel rooms. Crystal’s 20 slopes offer beginner-to-expert gradations of difficulty; lifts and rope tows are offered; slopes are lit for night skiing until 11 p.m.; equipment is available for rental. An alumni get-together is scheduled for lunch on Saturday at the lodge, and an evening party is possible at one of the chalets. For reservation information, call the alumni office at 788-3295 (area 317). But hurry—last year, 66 people went to Crystal Mountain, leaving behind the people who called too late to be included on anything but the waiting list!

Note: The above dates are different from those in the last Alumni News.
