Meet the new News

As I sat down at the typewriter to introduce this publication, I tentatively wrote several approaches:

No, no mistake—this is the ICU Alumni News!

With this issue of the ICU Alumni News, we are proud to unveil its new publications program.

The new ICU Alumni News: fresher news, more often.

Yes, that's right—the Alumni News, a newsletter!

While none of these had the impact I'd hoped for, the five of them together did several things I did like: Some introduced the casual, light style which I hope will characterize the newsletter; one mentioned that the newsletter is part of a new publications program; and one gave a reason that we have undertaken to change the News from a quarterly magazine to a newsletter issued six times a year.

As noted in a recent Alumni News (Spring 1982), the publications committee of the Alumni Board of Directors (most consistently Gene Lausch, John Ransburg, and Jim Glass) met with the editor often over the past several years to see if the magazine was doing its job, and if not, to determine what could be done to improve it. They studied other magazines; consulted surveys; evaluated formats, content, layout, timeliness, writing, and photography; and examined costs and goals.

Finally, in February 1982 the committee proposed its new package in its final form, and the Board gave its approval.

Summarizing the new program:

- To make the news in the magazine more current and timely, the Alumni News has become an eight-page newsletter appearing six times a year.
- The Alumni News will concern itself with material that is brief and news-oriented; content will include: alumni events, board activities, faculty and staff activities, schedules of events on campus, student news and accomplishments, sports and other extracurricular activities, class news, and the letter from ICU’s president.
- Individual brochures and flyers announcing such alumni events as Alumni Day and Homecoming have been discontinued, with notice of these events to appear in the News.

See how people flip over Homecoming? Don't miss it this year! The campus is changing again, and there's lots to do! (See back page.)

- A 20-page magazine is being created. Entitled Indiana Central, the new quarterly publication will contain more substantive material in an effort to provide alumni with writing that is thought-provoking, meaningful, and enjoyable to read, drawing on Indiana Central University's resources and perspectives. Its contents will include: academics, campus life, community programs, faculty, staff, student and alumni profiles, informative articles by faculty and alumni, and letters to the editor.

We are proud that we are able to offer this package with no increased cost to the university, while greatly increasing the service to alumni.

Potential Joy, who majors in English Alpha Epsilon freshman honors society, at XU, recognizing academic sewer on the Affirmative Action and president's desk

Joy Partridge named Esch Scholar

Senior Joy Partridge has been announced the 1982-83 Esch Scholar at ICU, recognizing academic achievement, service and leadership potential. Joy, who majors in English and minors in business and psychology, has earned a cumulative grade point average of 11.91. She is listed in Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities, was named to the Phi Alpha Epsilon freshman honor society, served on the Affirmative Action and Convocation committees, and is a Presidential Aide.

Wishnevski goes pro

Senior Mike Wishnevski has been drafted in the second round of the major league baseball amateur draft by the Seattle Mariners. On Seattle's Class A farm club in Wisconsin, the Valparaiso native is hitting over .400. Although the decision to quit school to pursue his life-long dream was a tough one, baseball coach Bob Tremain and football coach Bill Bless agree it was an offer he couldn't refuse. Mike will finish his business degree in the off season.

Senior is congressional intern

Senior Kyle Malone of Gary has just completed a Congressional Summer Internship in Washington, D.C. The political science major worked in the office of Congressman Adam Benjamin Jr. of Indiana's first district. Of his experience Kyle said, "It's one thing to learn it in a classroom, but it's a totally different thing to be there in the middle of the political process where the laws are made. It was a very positive experience all the way around."

From the president's desk

On July 1, Joanne and I began our fifteenth year with Indiana Central University. It scarcely seems possible; the years have come and gone quickly. We are even more convinced now than we were in 1968 that the smaller independent universities have an extremely important role to play on the higher education scene. Indiana Central continues to be among the leaders!

In recent months, I have read with interest varying views of the college/university presidency. There are obviously many styles of leadership among the persons who hold these positions. In the May/June 1982 issue of AGB Reports, a publication of the Association of Governing Boards of Universities and Colleges, the following article appeared under the title, "The First College President."

America's first college president, Nathaniel Eaton, did not exactly set an example for those who have come after, though he showed certain qualities of firmness, strength and quick thinking that might be envied. Samuel Eliot Morison tells Eaton's story in The Founding of Harvard College (1935), quoting from original sources:

"The first man who was called to preside there...Mr. Nathaniel Eaton...proved fitter to have been an officer in the inquisition or master of a house of correction than an instructor of Christian youth" (William Hubbard, Harvard 1642).

"Mr. Nathaniel Eaton, being accused for cruel and barbaros beating of [his assistant] Mr. N. Briscoe, and for other neglecting and misuseing of his schollers, it was ordered that Mr. Eaton should be discharged from keeping of schoale with us without licence; and Mr. Eaton is fined to the countrey 661 13s 4d..." (Sentence of the General Court of September 4, 1639).

"Three constables sent after [Eaton] by Governor Winthrop arrested him on shore. Eaton 'acknowledged his great sin in flying, etc., and promised (as he was a Christian man) he would return,' but begged leave to fetch his personal belongings from the vessel. The amiable emissaries escorted him aboard and ashore in the ship's boat. When the boat touched the beach, Eaton politely allowed two of his guardians to step ashore first, quickly ordered the boatmen to shove off, threw overboard the third constable, and scrambled aboard the ship, which promptly set sail for Virginia...." (Morison, quoting Winthrop's Journal.)

The style of President Eaton is not one which is coveted by this writer. In my judgment, a university president should be a dreamer, planner, motivator, manager, counselor, scholar-teacher, interpreter, innovator, statesman, steward, and efficiency engineer. Among those characteristics which should be avoided are the roles of tyrant, despot, autocrat, task master, stuffed shirt, cynic, puppet, and czar.

My personal goals include eliminating red-tape, reducing memos, stressing the importance of persons, making the best use of each day, increasing the visibility of the university and assuming the role of quarterback using the best human resources of all the other team members.

Indiana Central has had four distinguished presidents who preceded me and to whom I owe much. The last two of them, Presidents Good and Esch, spanned 54 years of this university's history. They provided wise and effective leadership during difficult times.

These, too, are challenging days for institutions like ICU. I keep praying for the grace and wisdom to be the kind of president which I should be and to avoid the roles which are less desirable. But above all else, we hope to project for this university a much stronger and more viable future than either we enjoy today or were provided with during our yesterdays.
Class of 1929 reaches goal
On its 50th reunion, the Class of 1929 set a goal of $2,500 for a class gift. The sum would establish a book endowment for the annual purchase of physical therapy books from the interest earned on the fund. The 1929 class has now surpassed its goal and will leave the university a lasting gift in honor of the members of the class.

Plan to attend your class reunion in:
May, 1983 if you were in the class of 1933, '38, '43, '48, '53, '58, '63, '68, '73, or '78.
May, 1984 if you were in the class of 1934, '39, '44, '49, '54, '59, '64, '69, '74, or '79.
May, 1985 if you were in the class of 1935, '40, '45, '50, '55, '60, '65, '70, '75, or '80.
Class reunions are always held on Alumni Day in May, the day preceding ICU's Commencement. Plan now to attend your special reunion.

Capital campaign receives Kresge challenge grant
President Gene E. Sease announced the awarding of a challenge grant by The Kresge Foundation of Troy, Michigan, in the amount of $250,000. The grant is toward construction costs of the university's new $6,000,000 Physical Fitness Center that will be completed in July, 1983.

Funds provided by The Kresge Foundation are in the form of a challenge grant which requires Indiana Central University to raise the funds necessary to complete the project by early 1983. The Indiana Central University grant is one of 132 Kresge Foundation grants approved totaling $28,260,000 in 32 states and the District of Columbia. The Kresge Foundation was created by the personal gifts of Sebastian S. Kresge. Foundation grants are made to institutions in the areas of higher education, health care and related services, the arts and humanities, social services, science, conservation and religion.

The Center, being built by the F.A. Wilhelm Company, will house the university's growing physical therapy program. It is part of a $10,000,000 campaign at Indiana Central which includes new data processing facilities, the renovation of Good Hall to make it accessible for the physically handicapped, a new university snack bar, the renovation of Schwitzer Center, and a new all-weather surface running track. The program also includes endowment funds for financial aid to students and sufficient endowment to provide for the maintenance and operation of the new Physical Fitness Center.
