The finishing touch

ICU President Gene E. Sease (top), Indianapolis Power and Light President Zane Todd, and Indiana’s Senator Richard Lugar place the final three letters on the exterior of the Ruth Lilly Center for Health and Fitness. The event culminated the day of opportunity for the local media to become acquainted with the facility. There was some (apparently) good-natured kidding about which of these three gentlemen would be the first to test the scaffolding, but after Dr. Sease led the way as a good host should, the others followed without incident.

On needing each other

I had the pleasure today of speaking in one of our state’s strong high schools. While there is nothing unusual to report about a high school speaking experience, I mention this one in the Alumni News because of something that happened.

As I walked down the corridor toward the auditorium, a lady was waiting for me who indicated that, while she had seen me on television on numerous occasions, she was awaiting my visit to the high school today for a personal greeting. She reported that we had something in common—namely, that we had graduated from the same small college in Pennsylvania—Juniata College. While we had never formally met, and while she had graduated a number of years before me and we had no reason to know each other there, there was a bond that immediately tied us together because we had graduated from the same college.

Naturally, this got me to thinking. There is a unique relationship and a lifetime bond of friendship between and among graduates of Indiana Central University. While students who are members of the same class get to know each other and members of classes who graduate in close proximity, there is still that mysterious bond that cuts across the years and the decades even though the individuals may have never met. Joanne and I observe it as we move around the nation meeting Indiana Central alumni. Folks may live miles apart in states like Florida, Colorado, or California, but when they come together in an alumni area club meeting, even though years and miles separate them, it takes but minutes to begin reflecting on the traditions, personalities, programs, and activities, of the university of which they are a part.

Indiana Central continues to attract large numbers of second- and third-generation students of alumni. It is not unusual at all to find entire families who are committed to ICU. At church last Sunday, I chatted with three small girls, daughters of a husband-and-wife alumni team, who forthrightly told me that they would be seeing me at Indiana Central when they got old enough to attend.

Why do I write all of this? Simply to encourage ICU associations all across the world. If, as you read in an Alumni News article or newspaper or magazine that an ICU grad has accomplished something or is in your vicinity, why not write a note and identify yourself as a graduate of Indiana Central and a fellow member of the Alumni Club. In days like these when serious questions have been raised about loyalties that folks have to institutions, we need to underscore the importance of loyalty to ICU, both in our relationships with each other and with our families.

My new-found friend, an alumna of my alma mater, taught me a valuable lesson I have too long overlooked. It is important that we keep in touch with fellow alumni and that we strengthen the ties of loyalty to our alma mater. We need each other!

ICU Alumni News

Editor: Rolf-Peter Noot ’77
Director of Publications

The ICU Alumni News is published six times a year in the interest of Indiana Central University by the Office of Alumni Relations, Keith Van Deman, Director. Correspondence pertaining to the Alumni News should be addressed to the editor.
Run for your Board!

If you are interested in serving on the ICU Alumni Association's Board of Directors, please send a letter with a brief biographical sketch to Alumni Director Keith Van Deman. The Alumni Board meets three times each year on the university's campus and handles the business and many activities to serve alumni. All interested candidates should submit a letter prior to February 1 for the Election Committee's consideration.

Guidelines For Ruth Lilly Center

Concept
The Ruth Lilly Center fulfills a university goal of helping students, faculty, staff, interested alumni, and community members develop lifelong personal fitness programs. The Center houses five general program areas: physical therapy instruction; physical education classes; intramural sports; intercollegiate sports; and open gym casual play for full-time day division students, faculty, staff, card-bearing alumni, and community members during designated hours.

Community and Alumni use
The Center and pool will be open to the community and alumni on a membership basis. Community members and alumni holding membership may share our facilities during designated times. All persons must show proper I.D. in order to gain admittance to the Center.

Exceptions to Basic Schedule
During winter season (approximately December 1 to March 15), Monday and Wednesday evenings will be scheduled for intramural games in both gymnasiums.

The building will be closed November 22 to November 28, 1983; December 18, 1983, to January 10, 1984; April 15 to April 22, 1984.

Both main and auxiliary gyms will be closed from 4 p.m. to 6:30 p.m. October 15, 1983, to March 10, 1984, for use by intercollegiate teams.

Home scheduled athletic events will necessitate closing the facilities at times to be posted.

Attire
Swimsuits will be required in the pool (no cut-offs or gym shorts permitted). Gym shoes must be carried into gym. Gym shoes worn off the streets into the gym will not be permitted on the gym floor or racquetball courts. Black-soled shoes that leave marks on the floor will not be permitted.

Lockers
Locker space is available for use. Persons desiring a locker will need to bring their own locks. Locks cannot be permanently left on a locker; they are to be used and removed each session of usage.

Racquetball Court Scheduling
Courts may be reserved for one-hour blocks of time. (1) President's Club, (2) Associates Club, (3) Fellows Club, (4) Ruth Lilly members may reserve slots that remain open after that time. Walk-in time is available only if court is not reserved.

Alumni/Community Usage Fees
- President's Club: No charge
- Associates Club: No charge
- Fellows Club: No charge until June 30, 1984 (Beginning July 1, 1984, a $25 annual Center user fee will be charged)

1983 has truly been a "Golden Year" for Helen I. and Dr. Homer W. Achor '31. Their fiftieth wedding anniversary was observed with the reaffirmation of their vows. WISH-TV taped the observance and presented portions of the tapes in a special program entitled, "A Family Portrait: With This Ring" Monday, June 27. In addition, the Achors joined a 17-day Miller Tour to Alaska. Another highlight of the year for Homer came on August 2 when he joined the "Hole-In-One" club of the Rocky Ford Par 3 Golf Course of Columbus, at hole number 7!

Congratulations to E. Craig and Eva (Traylor) Brandenburg, who celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary on August 21.

Indy Top Dog Banquet

This annual banquet is always a fun rivalry between the alumni of Indiana Central and Butler universities. Prior to the Saturday football clash at Key Stadium, the senior players, cheerleaders, and football coaches are the guests of honor of the Alumni “C” Association, as the players, coaches, and even university presidents trade verbal barbs about their teams being “Top Dog” in Indiana. This year’s referee (Master of Ceremonies) will be Mayor William H. Hudnut III.

All alumni and their spouses are invited to attend this semi-formal served banquet at the beautiful Murat Temple. Guaranteed to be a classy and enjoyable event for the hundreds who attend, a cash bar will be available at 5:30 p.m., with dinner being served at 6:30. ICU’s Central Singers will be the featured after-dinner entertainment in a new and lively presentation. Cost of the banquet is $12.50 per person, payable in advance. Reservations are required. Send your check, made payable to Indiana Central University, to the ICU Alumni Office marked for the Indy Top Dog Banquet. Your tickets will be held at the door.
