LADIES AND MENS QUARTETTES MAKE EXTENSIVE TOURS DURING VACATION

Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin Cities Visited, Greet Singers With Good Audiences

One peculiarity will be noted in the new study room...the girls are from northern and southern Indiana, and there will be evidences of the fact that many student churches hold a variety of services during the summer months.

This "vacation," consisting of Kenneth Jenkins, first tenor; Orville Hawkins, second tenor and manager, Donald Perkins, tenor; Ervin Taylor, bass, and Robert Eldredge, pianist, met June 16, after a few days of preparation, for a trip to the Indiana Central. After a week on the road they would be more familiar with the slogan "Lip, Pat, Chime, Two-Bliss and Cathouse," respectively. The quartette were: Orville Hawkins; June 16-19, 1926; Willis Childs, Wednesday; 16-19, 1926; Henry Crebs, Thursday; 16-19, 1926; Frederick Heath, Friday; 16-19, 1926; and William Penick, Saturday; 16-19, 1926.

The quartette was a quartette in the true sense of the word. None of the members were new to the group, as the quartette had been together for several years.

The program consisted of sacred, secular, and comic material, and the quartette was well received by the audiences.

The quartette returned to the campus Tuesday, June 21, after a successful tour. All of the vacancies filled and some new members added to the curriculum.

Lois Perkins, Former Student, to Be Director

Indiana Central College is fortunate this year in having among its student group Lois Perkins, a young woman who is a very talented musician and who has had several years' experience in band work.

One of her most recent achievements was in leading the Oblong Public Schools, which was quite an undertaking for her, as she was only a freshman at the time.

Lois Perkins was chosen as the director of the Indiana Central Band, and has charge of the band since its formation.

ADVICE FROM AN ALUMNUS
To the New Student:
This is possibly your first year away from college, and for many it is a new life, a life full of new experiences and adventures. Many of you will find the transition difficult, but if you take the time to get to know your advisor, and will make the move easier.

Others will face each new experience with enthusiasm and will exercise such judgment in forming new relationships. The transition need have no fear as to their safety and success, but can find itself in their new environment.

3. Don’t think that I am one of those "wise leaders" who think he has all the answers, but take the few minutes to learn your way on the campus, but consider me as a loyal student, after all, in this age of computerization the student life, reforms, and adaptations are in constant motion toward that goal.

of the school, grades were given. Grading is to be given to each of the students for work creditively done. The official list of those whose work was returned to the graded was presented to the class and those who were successful were notified by the instructor. The class was thus enabled, none were to read the list of grades for the work of the semester.

Never to be forgotten are the choir service and the orchestra which made one realize more easily the importance of music in the daily life of the student. The gymnasium opened the way for the challenging work with physical education. The gymnasium challenge for leadership was made in the reality of the lives of many of the pupils.

The parties which closed the days' activities were to make less serious the more serious work. To win all of the school spirit the following events were presented to the students:

- The NorthWestern District leadershoo
- The Northwestern District leadership training session for the student body.
- A few little smiles.
- A new semester opens with several new members.
