REV. EPHRAIM D. LOWE, ALUMNUS, IS HONORED

The Reverend Ephraim D. Lowe, pastor of the Olive Branch Christian Church of Indianapolis, graduated from Indiana Central College in 1927, having taken his college course while holding the pastorate of his church. At the same time he graduated with honors. The church, under his leadership, had phenomenal growth, having had an average of 100 seniors a year in his ministry.

Recently Reverend Lowe was chosen as president of the Indiana Christian Missionary Association to take the place of Dr. G. L. Hoover who is retiring at the end of the year. The position which Reverend Lowe will fill is recognized as the highest in the group of the denominations.

Those of us who know Mr. Lowe as a student and have watched his work in the Olive Branch Christian Church are sure that he will fulfill his new position with honor, and he has the best wishes of his many Central friends in the future.

Lowe since graduation from I. C. C. has done graduate study at Washington University, Indianapolis, and Chicago University.

During his years in the ministry 2,500 people have been received into the church.

He has served twice as President of the board of directors and once as president of the Indiana Christian Missionary Association. In addition he holds many "old offices." to the state and national organizations of his denomination.

Lowe was chosen for his work in Christian Church Union, although he had not applied himself.

Central Band Holds Cicero Meeting

Giving the password, "Happy New Year," in Latin, the members of the Latin Club were admitted to the first club meeting of the year. The meeting was held Tuesday, January 3, in the reception room of Dalley Hall.

"During the roll, each student answered by giving a quotation in Latin, " said the business meeting was his and followed by a program.

The main theme of the program was "January's Famous Senes, Cicero," and three-minute talks concerning the life and times of Cicero were given by seven club members. Those speaking and the subjects of their talks were: "Violet Throne, ""Roman New Year"; "Playtory, ""Janus, Famous Senes"; Mildred McKesson, "Cicero and Mark Tudor"; Marion Trandell, "A Cicero's Home," Helen Peth, "Cicero and Modern Times"; Charles McClure, "Cicero as an Orator"; Margaret Montgomery, "Cicero as a Poet."

Another feature of the program was the reading of "The Dream of a Country House" by John Andrew and Dulc Cook. John Andrew as Cicero and Dulc Cook as George Washington spoke from Miss Fannen's "Rome," and the skit was broadcast through a small radio system to the club members.

Games were played and refreshments were served. With the arrival of refreshments, an old Latin custom was carried out. In the days of the Romans, called "strenae," were exchanged among the people, and the Latin Club members exchanged candy canes in the same fashion.

election of officers will be held at the next meeting.

LEAP FOR 'EM GIRLS DURING LEAP WEEK!
Sadie Hawkins' Day to Be Observed Also

By HALLIE DAVIS

"There's nothing like it to say. To leap for 'em girls is a real 'em girls' some women's only chance and a lonesome man's joy."

Sadie Hawkins' Day will be leap week. Its official beginning is on Thursday morning, February 6. At that time every one of the female sex should be "on form," financially and physically, for a whole week of gentlemanlike rivalry.

Of course, girls, you must be on your best behavior. That goes without saying. But the men from man's side of the equation should "jump like a jack rabbit, take the scissors and any other instruments of Ladysmith." If perchance you should walk a young woman up to her dormitory and fail to talk this over-the-mars, it would be wise to return the favor at least on the girl's part.

Although the girls are not yet completely mature, there are some interesting things to be forecast.

There isn't a girl who does not relate to leap week to "the best new year's presents-day." Sadie Hawkins' Day!"

This is leap week, and the mountains for the sake of those girls who had not the usual feminine wiles. This is leap week for the 13,000 full-time students who live on campus and the 34,000 part-time students who live on one line and the available women on one hand and the available men on the other. This is leap week for the men who have been caught up in the snares of the girls. This is leap week for the men who are going to make the best use of leap week for the girls who are going to make the best use of leap week.

We are civilized people making our way or, as the phrase indicates, we are making our way. We are so far as to have and hold for one night only (eh, unhappy day). This will be an Elysian land for a Long Live Sadie Hawkins' Day."

The grand finale of the week will be Wednesday, February 14. Then is the sweethearts banquet. The girls get to pay and buy and take care of the banquet. The men take care of the girls' places—"the girls, the fellows, and the fellows do not care for the girls."

If perchance you have enjoyed the Thanksgiving and Christmas bonanzas, but they are nothing compared with this one.

Leap week will soon be here— leap for 'em girls, and "catch a man."

SHADOW

"The way ahead is dark—so dark I scarce see a dot of the path. Where next may I pass with safety through the path? The Light is shining on my right, my left, but oh, dark shadow!"

The quick thought came and went. And when I turned around I found to my surprise that my path was all my own. —Mar.

ALUMNI NOTES

By Miss Cravens

In spite of the extremely cold weather, our homecoming game this year was as successful as we have had for some time, it seemed to me. Several alumni were here who had not shown themselves on the campus for some years. The alumni dinner was well attended, though the number of alumni who came was several times greater than the number at the dinner.

The exchange of greetings and conversation after the game was quite as animated as the game. Every one did his part to make it a gala day for one and all, and so long did we tarry that the jester winked the lights on us.

Now you Mr. Kloe will ordain those lights to be left on till morning as that any or all of you may visit after the game. Our next game is on Saturday, February 24, and I am sorry that some of you could not get your last chance to see us.

We will expect you next year.

We wish it were possible to tell you about all of the returning alumni, but they were too modest to have a note about themselves.

Dramatic Notes

Nearly everyone is acquainted with the famous romance of Robert Brown-ning and Elizabeth Barrett. We get the dashy young hero as he gave his love and poems to the invalidated Eliz-abeth Barrett in the pharmacy, "Barretts of Wimpole Street." Elizabeth, a poetess, seemed to have gained no sparkle after meeting the famed poet. The friendship of these two poet buds soon ripened into true love. Because, Papa Barret disproved of the match, he sent Elizabeth for parsley in the garden, particularly Elizabeth, it was necessary that Elizabeth and Wimpole elope.

For many years requests have been made to give a play in allusion to the love story, and the production will be written concerning the married life of Robert and Elizabeth. It is entitled "Wimpole Street," the next production of the Collegiate Dramatic Club, is a de- cidedly lighthearted and human document throbbing with the spirit of its greatful heroine and romantic hero. The two characters have been seen in their daily lives, composing the poetry which made them famous, loving each other with the sweet simplicity that endows and abounds alightness to the two characters.

"I have gained her!" her soul's own, and now, grown perfect,
I shall love my life's remainder."

David Livergood, a senior member of Alpha Phi Omega, is directing the production. The curtain will rise at the evening of April 5 M. W. & F. 3:00.

A tea-time play entitled "Breakfast" by George Cook was presented in the dramatic club's Thursday evening, Janu- ary 23. The director of this play said, "The names of the cast were Leon Willhite, Helen Finch, Marilolli Dilson, William Hart, Betty Jo Bennett and Leon Biggs.

CHAPEL NOTES

Devery Whitwell, superintendent of the Tennessee Conference, who was holding evangelical meetings at the Little River Methodist Church, gave an inspiring message on "Playing the Game of Life Fairly." "We must play the game of life fairly," he said, "before (1) our family name; (2) what we might make for our country; (3) what we might make for the church; (4) the faith of our parents; (5) Christ, our Savior, and all that he be for us.

Miss Virginia Cravens, member of the faculty, presented, on the screen, "The American Mansions of Famous People," giving a description of homes from both the eastern and western ranges.

The Rev. June Cravens, business man and teacher of the largest boy's class in America, explained the method he is using to teach Recreation.

Gaining permission to build a boys' class at the First United Brethren Church, he began with seven boys and in six years has grown to 60 boys. The present time there are 235 on the roll, from which an average of 100 attend regularly. He says that his yearly amounts to about $600, half of which is given to the church and the other half to care for the class activities.

Each boy gives a pledge. Besides the class in athletics, there is another in athletic games. There are twenty-five basketball teams, of which nine are proceed in the basketball competition. Seven of those nine are leading in the county and the other two are in second place.

"The aim of the church," said Mr. Cravens, "is to teach the boys to Christ."

Music students have the charge of the music which followed the program: (1) A Banjo Song, vocal, Derrill California, "Green River"; Numbers 3, 4 by the 'string' quartet composed of Mary Allen, Mabel, Anna Mary, Glick, Ada Mae, and Lawrence Taylor, and (2) George Riley song "Woman So Tot." 11:30.

In a speech-arts program, three boys, Daise Perry, Scott Blake, and H. A. Young, recited a group of poems by the negro writ- ers, Dunbar, Hughes, and Johnson. The performance was short, meaningful poems and a sermon about "The Bible.
