WE SNOOP TO CONQUER

By G. I. TOLDE

This column is dedicated to those who will be new here, especially those without experience. We think this little poem is very apropos at this time:

Finals, finals everywhere,
With drops and droplets of ink.
And never a word leave the room
And allow a move to play!

Our office bookkeeper thinks it would be very nice to work in the office at Dayton after her graduation from Indiana Central. Borrowing the words of Kenneth Kraft, "We know why, don't we?"

Wavelena entered a drug store hurriedly and asked for a dozen quinine pills to take with her to Africa.

"Do you want them put in a box, lady?" asked the clerk as he counted them.

"Oh, no, certainly not," replied Wavelena, "I was thinking of rolling them home.

Dr. Haramy: "There's a student in this class who's making a fool of himself. Now when he's finished, I'll begin."

Notice: $500 reward to the person who can find out what happened after the intermediation. For further information see the guy who wears the robin-egg blue trousers.

Miss Feemster: What does rex fugit mean?

Violet T. "The king flies."

Miss Feemster: "Change it to perfect tense by adding the past participle.

Violet: "The king has flies."

And while we're still on the subject of Latin:

"Oh, shocks! Latin is easy," boasted Margaret Montgomery.

"Portia dixit in orio: forty shocks in a row."

"Panna sing is gua is some last."

"Boni legi Caesaris: bonus leges of Caesar."

Miss Blue: "Yesterday I saw five men standing under one umbrella and not one of them got a drop of water on himself."

Katy: "Big umbrella."

Miss Blue: "Not them! Rainin'!"

Congratulations, Roy, on being voted the most outstanding freshman boy. We know you're worthy of the honor.

It has often been said that just gripping one more time will mean the difference. But I'm not sure that this is true in every case.

And then there was the freshman who sent his tracers to the Associated Press.

Famous Sayings

Scandal is when nobody does anything and somebody tells it. Ignorance is when you don't know a thing and somebody finds it out.

A singer's voice may have a good range and yet not be able to warm his audience.

At last we have discovered who the man in the 1908 blue trousers was.

Lucille: "Were you sore at the umpire?"

Don: "Oh, I was just out at first."

Mark: "This coffee pot leaks."

Aunt Marie: "Why don't you fix it?"

Mark: "I can't. It's full of coffee."

Aunt Marie: "Why don't you fix it when it's empty?"

Mark: "What's the use, it doesn't leak then."

Se's June 15 for Dr. Sample. Best wishes from the faculty and student body!

Well, students, I guess it's too long until next September."

PREMINT'S NOTES

Thursday, June 6, ends the thirty-fifth year of college work at I. C. C. and the twenty-fifth of my presidency. It has been another good year with good cooperation and fellowship. As we look back over the years we are inclined to overlook many of the tribulations and remember the victories and successes and accomplishments.

How many there are who are glad that I. C. C. had a part in shaping their lives! These 35 years are just a prelude to greater things in the future. No one doubts that all the efforts for building a better world need to be doubled and even multiplied many times.

Commencement Day, June 6, will be different this year. The commencement program will come at five o'clock in the cool of the evening. At the noon hour and during the afternoon the alumni, former students and friends of the college will have more appropriate time for fellowship than has ever been provided before. The trustees will have opportunity at the noon hour and during a part of the afternoon to enjoy the general fellowship. Dr. J. Gordon Howard will be the commencement speaker.

The records show that more than 200 high school graduates have already applied for entrance to the freshman class next fall. Some of these will make complete arrangements, but the indications are there that there will be a considerable increase in student attendance next fall. Pastors and alumni are more active in enlisting students than ever before. We are expecting that this will result in a freshman class of 200 or more of the best type of young people. The members of the present student body also will have much to do with enlisting new students.

I am exceedingly grateful to Bishop Pout, the conference superintendents, the pastors, the faculty members, students and many friends of the college who have been so loyal and have helped to make this the great year that it has been.

The summer session of nine weeks begins Monday, June 10. Many teachers who had the two-year course should be here to continue their work toward their degrees. Also many of the present students will find it advantageous to advance their college standing by taking courses this summer.

The following is a digest of reasons given by I. C. C. students in their applications for admission to the college this fall:

I. C. C. is a friendly college where you get acquainted with practically all the teachers and students and find them willing to help you.

The standards of college work are kept on a high level while at the same time the social and moral standards are given equal emphasis.

There is a wide choice of courses and majors providing variety and broad preparation.

There are so many different student activities and organizations that no student can participate in as many as he would like because of lack of sufficient time.

The music, organizations, athletics, athletic sports, Christian Associations, Volunteers, literary societies, departmental clubs, etc., provide abundantly for physical, social and cultural growth.

The intra-mural sports are given emphasis as well as the intercollegiate so that sports may be shared by all.

The expenses at I. C. C. are comparatively low, giving an opportunity to many good students who otherwise would be barred from college work.

The college itself and the city of Indianapolis afford many opportunities for work for those who need to earn a part of their expenses.

There is liberal scholarship allowance for good students even though the total expense is lower than the expense in many colleges after deducting scholarship aid.

The music room make a great contribution to social contacts and friendships.

The fact that the college insists on high moral standards of the students actually works great advantages, one of which is the employability of I. C. C. graduates.

The high types of character of student life and training of I. C. C. students is proved by the unusual success of our graduates when they go to the universities for additional or graduate study.
