THE MOST FREQUENTED SPOT ON CAMPUS

Evidences of the little room in the corner of the Ad Building basement can be seen on almost any hand on campus. This room is called the College Bookstore. At the beginning of each semester, Freshmen go on a search for text books line up while the bookstore clerks are busy with the double duty. Textbooks of almost every size and color are handed over the counter to students in need. Such necessary and useful articles as notebooks, paper, pencils and fountain pens are also sold in quantities.

This semester the book store is managed by Devon Robbins and his new book girl, Birdie Oldaker and Wilma Spray. Candy, cookies and cold drinks are on hand daily for the non-book-fac-ters and for those who don’t mind a little extra weight.

During their free periods the book store becomes a rendezvous for all the students. There are people who do not like to talk about their opinions and talk things over. After the mailman comes, the book store is temporarily turned into a post office. The clerks work hurriedly behind locked doors putting stamps on packages, while the anxious students’ eyes are glued to the window.

At the next class-intermission, the stairs to the post office are crowded with persons who are hunting for their letters and mail. It sets the day right if a letter or a package slip is found in one’s box.

Most students make several trips daily to the book store and post office, and it is unnecessary to force people to go through the mail box.

JUST LOOKING
By I. C. U.

Well, this is the Valedictory Oration for yours truly in this column. We've tried hard to keep you in the frame of mind, how well we have succeeded we will never know. Thank goodness we have.

Here's to the future columnists, may they keep you smiling.

The constant search for something new for you reminds us of Johnny and his arithmetic: "Johnny: Say! I can't get these problems. It's something about finding the lowest common denominator."

Pop: Great Scott! Haven't they found that thing yet? Why, we were hunting for it when I was a boy...

Smack

Fortune Teller: This bump on your head shows the standards upon which Indiana got the rough spots.

Client: That's right. I got that by putting my finger in the shaft to see if the drum was coming and it wasn't.

Squeaking Himself

Prof. Stoneburner, in this Psychological exam, I want you all to draw a ring.

Kenny drew a ring, and Prof. Stoneburner: I told you to draw a ring, and you have drawn a square. You better learn that.

Kenny: Mine is a boxing ring.

Er

Former Mistress: I should like to give you a good recommendation, but my conscience won't let me.

I wonder how I can put it in a nice way?

Maid: You might say I got the meals the same as I got my pay.

For Reference

A rather shabby looking man applied for a gardener's job at Boxter's lawn. How long were you at your last place?

Tax Collector: Yes, sir; and I'm here for an eminent judge and twelve other very important people.

Were you recommended there? Yes, sir, an eminent judge and twelve other gentlemen recommended me there.

As the celebrated soprano began to sing, little Johnny became greatly interested in the gestures of the orchestra director.

Johnny: What's that man shaking his stick at her for?

Mother: Shh—He's not shaking his stick at her.

Johnny: Then what in the world is he hollering about?

Consolation

Wife: John, there is a thief up there, there are burglars in the pantry and they're eating all my pies.

John: What do we care, as long as they don't die in the house.

On Looking Back

Lot's wife looked back and turned into a pillar of salt.

Several men have declared she had nothing on their wives, because when they ever took off, they had a telegraph pole or lamp post with out fall.

Stone: What's the matter, Dale?

Dale: I am so worried. I wrote two notes, one to my English teacher asking if I were a fool, and the other asking my girl if she would marry me. While I was out someone telephoned 'Yes!' and I don't know which of them it was!

Goal for Baseball: An Undefeated Nine

Alva Ward, one of Central’s “C” letter girls, who graduated with the class of ’33 and played on the Greyhound baseball squad three years, dropped a second place finish in the Big Ten, in which he faced the opposing batters in several encounters and was credited with twoingenious saves as well as his college career. His letter reads:

“You are in the Reflector is always read with interest—especially by members of I.C.C. fans’ basketball squad.”

“Now while the boys are warming up by shells by placing a horseshoe around in the gym, find then a goal which is shot. The home Economics Department under the efficient leadership of Miss Mary Husky, instructor, has made and is making marked progress.

In Foods Class, the girls have enjoyed the study and preparation of vegetables, fruits, and salads; in addition, a movie entitled "Citrus Fruits" proved to be very interesting as well as beneficial. The new topic about to be studied is "Vegetables.

The girls are looking forward to a trip to Kingman’s, where they hope to view the process of meat, slaughter- ing and packing.

Advanced Clothing Class members have their own problems, as pertains to principles of line, color, design, and aesthetic values in general. Miss Johnson, of Ayres, entertained the girls a few weeks ago with a fabric show and spring style forecast. At present, construction of their summer wear is underway on their new garments, which range from cotton pajamas to wool dresses.

The advanced students in this department are finishing their work by participating in the "Household Management Class," where the economic use of kitchen equipment, and the correct standards, for furnishing a home are studied. To date, the girls have enjoyed the study of the kitchen arrangement and its
