Twentv-Three Students Honored on March 1

With President Good leading the procession of caps and gowns, the annual Honors Day program was held in Kephart Memorial Auditorium on March 1 with nine persons receiving honors and fourteen receiving commendations.

The procession was played by Agnes Ann Jordan of Indianapolis, Wenda Budaj, Lillian, after which R. V. Davis offered the invocation. The mixed quartet consisting of Helen June Whith of Brook, Agnes Ann Jordan of Indianapolis, Glenn Gellin of Decatur, Ill. and Euguene Moore of Danville, III. with Jean Miller of Bourbon accompanying them, sang "Stare깨" by Offenbach.

The address was given by Ralph V. O'Neill, who recently installed as pastor of the Memorial Presbyterian church of Indianapolis. He is a graduate of this institution. He spoke upon "Wisdom Built a House of Tlullers," in which he said that the honored ones should take their responsibility seriously, for wisdom is more than mere brains.

President Good presented certificates to: High honors, class of 1944—Agnes June Alvard, Mary Etta Gulin, Merle Daniel Gerlach, Ben- nett Kenneth Garrett, Loisne LaVerne McRae, of the Arts Depart- ment, made a few comments about the pictures and called attention to different schools of painting.

The exhibit was opened to the public from Feb. 25 to March 1. We now have another picture from the Kephart Art Salon in the association room and hope to have another exhibit room.

Dr. Stoneburner Leaves Washington for Work

Dr. W. Earl Stoneburner, former professor of education, will complete a government assignment in Washington, D. C., March 15. The course which began February 14 had to meet only the art of giving aptitude tests, interviewing, and act- ing as an educational adviser. On the completion of the training Dr. Stoneburner will be sent to a veterans' hospital here in Indianapolis. His work will be mostly in the line of setting up the department of rehabilita- tion and that he will not remain at one hospital after the work is going well there with the discharged ser- vant.

Dr. Stoneburner likes his work. At first he was afraid he would not pass the rigid physical examination; but the examining physician said if he had a little more weight, he'd be all right.

Dr. Stoneburner received his bachelor of science degree from Indiana Central College, his master's degree in education from Indiana University, and has taught at the College since 1929.

A Word From Our President

Does anyone remember how one-sided the war seemed when the German could attack British, French, Polish, and Russian armies with unexpected numbers of tanks which could cut through the defending armies and cut them to pieces, and then throw them into utter confusion and panic with bombs and machine guns fired from the air? We have seen, during the 20th of August, when German bombers made their attacks on London and wiped out Coventry? We wondered how long the British could hold out. How tremendously things have changed since then!

Now, the German armies are being cut up and made powerless. They are being assailed in the countries they have overrun. They have been driven out of Africa and are fighting defensively in Italy. They are wondering where they must be ready first to meet a million or two million Allied soldiers. The tide is turning, and for all of them that chance of bombers are over German cities this night after night, bringing such devastation as was hardly dreamed of in the pattern set by themselves in the obliteration of Coventry. The destruction of German cities with their plane factories sharply reducing the production of the only effective weapon against the rapidly increasing numbers of Allied bombers, while at the same time the German planes in use are being shot out of the air, must bring dismay and a sense of utter futility to the Germans.

How long can the German leaders or their people continue to hope for a victory when their armies are retreating and the production facilities in the homeland are being blasted out of existence? The eventual outcome surely can be forecast now. It can be a matter of months instead of years, and the dropping of atomic bombs over Germany will not prolong the resistance to include the unnecessary sacrifice not only of hundreds of thousands of additional Russians and Germans, but also Americans, British, and French on a new Western front. It is possible that this great folly will soon end and that we can have a world with less greed and war and that there may be a lasting peace.

The Board of Administration meeting in Dayton, Ohio, on February 16 and 17 was devoted to the discussion of the budget and plans for all church forces. The financial reports were exceptional. The Seminary, Otterbein Home, Publishing House, and other departments of work have made remarkable gains. York College is in better condition financially than ever before in its history, and the Board of Administration is doing its utmost to make all that is possible for the colleges to strengthen their positions. All the colleges have their plans laid for their financial efforts. We are fortunate at I.C.C. for being already far along in the Victory Campaign.

While attending the Board meeting in Dayton, it was a great privilege to be the guest of the I.C.C. alumni and their wives at a dinner in the dining room of Bonnebrake Seminary at noon on Thursday, the 17th. It was a good dinner, a happy fellowship, an inspiring visit, and it helped to lend encouragement to our efforts to strengthen the work of the I.C.C. It seems a quiet way of presenting the material for these intensive courses.

"Dear Miss Weaver:

Greetings from Indiana. Please pass on to all of my friends there my regards and best wishes. I have seen a considerable portion of the countryside of England and find it very interesting, although rather long. It certainly amazes me that the grass, hedges, and trees are so green and colorful, particularly at this winter season. Since being here, I have had the opportunity of visiting in several English homes, and of course, friendly people.

I have no news of any friends I have met. They are doing very well, we continue to have cold weather, and we certainly are having a splendid winter.

Yours truly,

[Signature]"

At the meeting of the General Board of Administration at Dayton, a strong resolution was adopted urging that the Bishops, conference superintendents, pastors, and all the church forces make a special effort to secure the enrollment of many more United Brethren young people in our colleges. The young people and we have the colleges, and surely the time is not too late for the campus campaigns. We should have 200 freshmen here next fall and I am convinced that we can have many if we work unitedly to enlist them.

On Friday, April 21, at 2:30 p.m., the Commencement exercises will be held in the college auditorium. The Board of Trustees will meet on the previous day and during the forenoon before commencement. The graduating class consists of thirty-five members this year. Except for the absence of our soldier boys, the class would number sixty-five or more.

The fifth of the classes which should hold a five-year reunion at some time in the near future is that of 1925. It is hoped that the members will return in large numbers. In past years The Reflector has asked that the names of these classes would send in some information about themselves. We regret to inform you that no information has been sent, the only excuse that we can think of is that they are very modest.

MUSICKLY BLESSED

Down through the ages people have been searching for something, which means that they have been seeking what others called fame, sometimes power, sometimes happiness. Whatever we are looking for, it seems to us that we always do find the most remarkable thing in poetry, music, and literature. From the earliest days of man, we hear of very brilliant students more than four years to dig down the wealth of musical resources to be found in the library shelves. I wonder just how many of us have read the biographies of Wagner or Tolstoykhsky who have studied the symphony scores and the many operatic scores; have delved into the pages of the many broadsides and dictionary and have searched through the music reference books to discover what type of songs and hymns are played; have missed the musical Turkey to end out what is happening in the world of music.

Here in America do not always take advantage of what is before us. We talk about what is done in Europe, and often we do not have to go as far as Europe to see a thing. We waste a great deal of time, and yet ask the assistants to show you where all this material is. She will be glad to do it, and you will be glad she did. When you have completely exhausted this treasure chest of knowledge, the man on the hill in the forty-room mansion or the person who owns ten thousand dollars a month. You will have to have a heightened awareness of the way of life. In fact, you will be the highest number on earth, music.

College Choir Journeys to Hoosierland It was a cold, gray morning when the members of the University of Indiana College choir gathered in the Union's auditorium. The choir stood out of doors for a few minutes before entering. The weather was somewhat milder. After eating heartily of a good breakfast, the choir went on its way to Terre Haute, Ind. by the opposite sex. After dinner, the members were all snuggled in the blankets of their cars and rode back to Indiana in the Kephalone.
