The Reflector
Monthly Publication of Indiana Central College

Vol. 23
Indiana, Indiana, December 17, 1945
No. 4

Combined Choirs Present Messiah
By Hazel Coehran

Members of the college chapel choir, the college glee club, and the Glee Club Alumni Association presented Handel's "Messiah," in part, Friday evening, December 16, in Kephart Memorial Auditorium. The program was under the direction of Professor Mark L. Padgett. His wife, Miss Anna Mary Glick, teacher of piano in the department of music, was accompanist. The solo recitatives and arias were sung by leading cantor and church soloists of Indiana. The following were featured: Miss L. Moore Augsburger, soprano; Ruth Bucher, contralto; David Star Jones, baritone; and John White, bass.

The production was a special program in the Indiana Central Auditorium series. The program was as follows:

1. Comfort Ye, My People (Tenor)
   By Handel
   Featuring Miss Anna Mary Glick, teacher of piano in the department of music

2. The Lord's Prayer
   By William Boyce
   Featuring Miss Anna Mary Glick, teacher of piano in the department of music

3. And the Glory of the Lord (Bass)
   By William Boyce
   Featuring Miss Anna Mary Glick, teacher of piano in the department of music

4. O Come, All Ye Faithful (Bass, Tenor, and Soprano)
   By Handel
   Featuring Miss Anna Mary Glick, teacher of piano in the department of music

5. Jingle Bells
   By C. W. Dafoe
   Featuring Miss Anna Mary Glick, teacher of piano in the department of music

6. Toccata
   By Handel
   Featuring Miss Anna Mary Glick, teacher of piano in the department of music

7. O God, Our Help in Ages Past
   By Henry Smart
   Featuring Miss Anna Mary Glick, teacher of piano in the department of music

8. The Lord's Prayer
   By William Boyce
   Featuring Miss Anna Mary Glick, teacher of piano in the department of music

9. The Water Is Wide
   By Arthur Seymour Sullivan
   Featuring Miss Anna Mary Glick, teacher of piano in the department of music

10. Hallelujah Chorus
    By Handel
    Featuring Miss Anna Mary Glick, teacher of piano in the department of music

The program concluded with a selection by the college choir. The concert was directed by Professor Mark L. Padgett, and Miss Anna Mary Glick, teacher of piano in the department of music, was accompanist.

Vance Speaks in Chapel

Russell Vance, War II veteran, told some of his experiences in France and Germany during the chapel Friday, December 16, among other things he did to assist the cause of the Allies. He also spoke of his friendly reception in Luxemburg and of the affection shown toward Americans by liberated Russian prisoners.

The college orchestra presented its first concert of the year Sunday afternoon, December 9, in Kephart Memorial Auditorium. The forty-piece orchestra played to a full house composed of students, faculty, alumni, and the community. The orchestra consists of all the music students in the college.

First Concert Played for Four Years

One of the highlights of the program was the Concerto in D minor by Brahms, presented by Miss Jane Miller, pianist, assisted by Miss Anna Mary Glick. Miss Jane Miller, pianist, assisted by Miss Anna Mary Glick.

We, the students of Indiana Central College are proud of the achievements of our orchestra and of Professor Stocks for a job well done.

The members of the orchestra are: first violin, Mrs. Allene B. Dennis, Mrs. Ralph Stocks; second violin, Miss Helen Cory, Mrs. Robert Stock, Putty Lou Street, and Miss Elizabeth Dunham; Mrs. Ralph Stocks, Mrs. Anna Mary Glick, Mrs. Robert Stock, Putty Lou Street, and Miss Elizabeth Dunham; Mrs. Ralph Stocks, Putty Lou Street, and Miss Elizabeth Dunham; Mrs. Ralph Stocks.

Frontman Class Elects Warheit

Frontman class members elected officers for the regular meeting, Tuesday, December 14. George Warheit was elected president, Russell Vance, vice-president, Miss Ruby Miller, secretary, and Alexander E. Cook, treasurer.

Prof. Davis in his capacity as first-year chairman, looked forward to the meeting and minutes of previous meetings were read by Miss Ruby Miller, temporary secretary. The slate was presented by Prof. Davis. Candidates nominated by ballot at the previous meeting were Warheit and Walter Smith, president; Alexander and Jorey Pomer, vice-president; Miss Ruby Miller, secretary, Thomas Schmitz, and Joe Middendorf, treasurer. The meeting adjourned.

Eastman Will Appear Jan. 11

Dr. Fred Eastman, widely known dramatics, writer and lecturer, will come to the college January 11. Eastman will lecture in the auditorium of the college beginning at 8:30 p.m.

Eastman appears in Chicago the third week of January, and will also be heard in Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

The college orchestra presented its first concert of the year Sunday afternoon, December 9, in Kephart Memorial Auditorium. The forty-piece orchestra played to a full house composed of students, faculty, alumni, and the community. The orchestra consists of all the music students in the college.

First Concert Played for Four Years

One of the highlights of the program was the Concerto in D minor by Brahms, presented by Miss Jane Miller, pianist, assisting Miss Anna Mary Glick.
The Reflector

Published Monthly Through the School Year By Indiana Central College, Indianapolis.

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF

V. L. HECHT

EDITORIAL STAFF

Society Editor...FLORENCE HERDOON
Sports Editor...ROBERT H. PEARSON
Arts Editor...W. LYNN HENRY
Book Review Editor..COOKE S. FOWLER
Faculty Advisor.Mrs. LOLA L. PENCE

Address All Correspondence and Contributions To:

THE REFLECTOR

Indiana Central College
Indianapolis, Indiana

The Reflector "the sound of the earth; but if the sail have lost its power, where shall it be found?" In the hard, cold, revealing light of present fact we are perilously close to losing our savour. In olden times when a knight wished to retake his castle, no matter what the offense—an insult to his religion or an attack on his feudal enemies—when the challenge was thrown down at his gate, the answer was that the castle must be taken or he must be allowed to accept the challenge. As the sail of the earth it seems to me that the Christian church in our time must either accept the challenge of our contemporary culture or lose its savour in the modern world.

Peace was well to define our "savour" as students of Indiana Central College. By two great factors, and by no means, the church may be considered as a godly part to the spirit of the age.

The second factor, and probably most important in the eyes of the Christian church in the future, as students of Indiana Central College, has been other generations who have done other things. If there seems very unreal just then for the Christian, the future in the heart of the earth is not too distant from the universities back home. The faculty is drawn from institutions in the States and over a hundred schools are represented. It is a normal load of three courses: English literature, which enables me to renew my acquaintance with Byron and Shelley's "Stabat Mater," and the number of our contemporaries, is that we are college students. In the past both of these factors have been tremendous in making the reforms in our culture. We cannot see the associations of the time has come when we can no longer point with much pride to either of those disappearing features. Ideologically, Christian- tian college education is not as influential, as important to man's future, as they ever were. Further, it is a two in one situation should produce an individual capable of intelligent, progressive, and living. Practically, both of them are proving to be intelligent in dealing with the complex problems of our modern, civilization.

We can no longer rest on the laurels of our "good name"; we must accept the challenge and by our "savour" adjust this dis- tinct difference between practice and theory, and have turned almost necessarily to us that this is a time of decision. Doubtless, indeed, there have been other generations who have been aware, and rightly so, that they were living through a period of great change. Who can deny that the past two and a half centuries of the eighteenth century was a time of great change? Two of the most influential revolutions in the history of the world were going on at the same time. One, the American, and the other, the French. So it has been during the past thirty years. Two of the most turbulent and momentous changes in the history of the race have been wrought. To us and to our posterity will lie the task to determine, as the salt of the earth the future of our hands.

In practice Christian principles have had two thousand years to prove themselves. That they have not succeeded is not the fault of the principles. The faith has been with humanity. The adherents of the Christian religion have been the leaders of Christianity to their own selfish, evil purposes, and the leader has allowed them to cor- rupt this greatest of all religions into a club for some, a sewing circle for housewives and a date bureau for young people. So it is in the religious fields. To a great extent colleges and universities still serve their purposes. No intelligent person can deny the influence of higher learning in our public life. But, is the influence the right kind of influence? Is the church a member of this group? Is it not the church the greatest advantage. The; in- group has the wisdom, the ambi- tious men are in our hands. There is in our hands. The second factor, and probably most important in the eyes of the Christian church in the future, as students of Indiana Central College, has been other generations who have done other things. If there seems very unreal just then for the Christian, the future in the heart of the earth is not too distant from the universities back home. The faculty is drawn from institutions in the States and over a hundred schools are represented. It is a normal load of three courses: English literature, which enables me to renew my acquaintance with Byron and Shelley's "Stabat Mater," and the number of our contemporaries, is that we are college students. In the past both of these factors have been tremendous in making the reforms in our culture. We cannot see the associations of the time has come when we can no longer point with much pride to either of those disappearing features. Ideologically, Christian- tian college education is not as influential, as important to man's future, as they ever were. Further, it is a two in one situation should produce an individual capable of intelligent, progressive, and living. Practically, both of them are proving to be intelligent in dealing with the complex problems of our modern, civilization.

We can no longer rest on the laurels of our "good name"; we must accept the challenge and by our "savour" adjust this dis- tinct difference between practice and theory, and have turned almost necessarily to us that this is a time of decision. Doubtless, indeed, there have been other generations who have been aware, and rightly so, that they were living through a period of great change. Who can deny that the past two and a half centuries of the eighteenth century was a time of great change? Two of the most influential revolutions in the history of the world were going on at the same time. One, the American, and the other, the French. So it has been during the past thirty years. Two of the most turbulent and momentous changes in the history of the race have been wrought. To us and to our posterity will lie the task to determine, as the salt of the earth the future of our hands.

In practice Christian principles have had two thousand years to prove themselves. That they have not succeeded is not the fault of the principles. The faith has been with humanity. The adherents of the Christian religion have been the leaders of Christianity to their own selfish, evil purposes, and the leader has allowed them to cor-rupt this greatest of all religions into a club for some, a sewing circle for housewives and a date bureau for young people. So it is in the religious fields. To a great extent colleges and universities still serve their purposes. No intelligent person can deny the influence of higher learning in our public life. But, is the influence the right kind of influence? Is the church a member of this group? Is it not the church the greatest advantage. The; in- group has the wisdom, the ambi-
Campus Notes

By Shirley Belcher

September 12, 1958

100 girls, guys and gals, what would you have like to have old Santa place under your Christmas tree?

Dear Santa:

I am a tremendous sleepless high school student and have a little stocking I would like you to place with a little frosh who will awaken me at 5:36 each morning.

Julia Miller

You, with a full jack, are constantly at rest under my

Christmas tree.

Willingly Allison.

I have always wanted a print and, dear Santa, please make it the cuddle size.

Bill Moos.

A box six feet in length, tied with a huge red ribbon, and labeled "From Iowa State University" will make my days merry and bright.

Ann Cory.

My heart leaps up when I behold

alleys or streets.

Helen Whaley.

So much has happened recently

which makes it very difficult for me to decide. But, I just want you to know that I am the happiest in my life under my Christmas tree.

Jean Colbeck.

I would like to have a Boy Scout knife. This would enable me to teach my Boy Scouts the art of whittling.

Nathan Woodson.

My wish, dear Santa, is a very Happy New Year for the members and friends of Indiana Central College.

Shelby Bolles.

Students Give Children's Party

Students of the College will sponsor a Christmas party for 43 underprivileged children of the University, High school grade school Tuesday, December 13. This party is for the chilren, and refreshments will be served.

Lena Mannon, Beth Halse, Patricia Fackler, Maxine Henry, Virginia Johnson, and Pat Anderson are in charge of the entertainment.

Seniors, Juniors Get Outfits

The senior girls came out in their class dresses at dinner Monday, December 5. The dresses on the junior girls were:

red lined in a basic shirtwaist pattern with details fitting according to personal taste. Eight girls have these dresses. One senior fellow has the traditional color-corded corduroy pants.

Tuesday, December 6, the Junior girls wore their gray Bonita wool skirt for the first time. The skirts are made in various styles. Seven junior girls have this class distinction.

Jesse Miller Speaks To IRO

The International Relations Club met at the home of Dr. and Mrs. DeVries Thursday, December 8, at 7 p.m.

Mrs. Nellie Mason was offered a scholarship last summer to the University of Miami, in Coral Gables, Florida, where she will do designs and receive scholarships for them. It was necessary for her to leave New York shortly after the offer was denied and she was unable to accept it. The school asked permission for the new advertising, and the plate and book cover by Mr. Masson are on display in New York, and in her art department.

Campus Notes

By Shirley Belcher

September 12, 1958

100 girls, guys and gals, what would you have like to have old Santa place under your Christmas tree?

Dear Santa:

I am a tremendous sleepless high school student and have a little stocking I would like you to place with a little frosh who will awaken me at 5:36 each morning.

Julia Miller

You, with a full jack, are constantly at rest under my

Christmas tree.

Willingly Allison.

I have always wanted a print and, dear Santa, please make it the cuddle size.

Bill Moos.

A box six feet in length, tied with a huge red ribbon, and labeled "From Iowa State University" will make my days merry and bright.

Ann Cory.

My heart leaps up when I behold

alleys or streets.

Helen Whaley.

So much has happened recently

which makes it very difficult for me to decide. But, I just want you to know that I am the happiest in my life under my Christmas tree.

Jean Colbeck.

I would like to have a Boy Scout knife. This would enable me to teach my Boy Scouts the art of whittling.

Nathan Woodson.

My wish, dear Santa, is a very Happy New Year for the members and friends of Indiana Central College.

Shelby Bolles.

Students Give Children's Party

Students of the College will sponsor a Christmas party for 43 underprivileged children of the University, High school grade school Tuesday, December 13. This party is for the chil-

ren, and refreshments will be served.

Lena Mannon, Beth Halse, Patricia Fackler, Maxine Henry, Virginia Johnson, and Pat Anderson are in charge of the entertainment.

Seniors, Juniors Get Outfits

The senior girls came out in their class dresses at dinner Monday, December 5. The dresses on the junior girls were:

red lined in a basic shirtwaist pattern with details fitting according to personal taste. Eight girls have these dresses. One senior fellow has the traditional color-corded corduroy pants.

Tuesday, December 6, the Junior girls wore their gray Bonita wool skirt for the first time. The skirts are made in various styles. Seven junior girls have this class distinction.

Jesse Miller Speaks To IRO

The International Relations Club met at the home of Dr. and Mrs. DeVries Thursday, December 8, at 7 p.m.

Mrs. Nellie Mason was offered a scholarship last summer to the University of Miami, in Coral Gables, Florida, where she will do designs and receive scholarships for them. It was necessary for her to leave New York shortly after the offer was denied and she was unable to accept it. The school asked permission for the new advertising, and the plate and book cover by Mr. Masson are on display in New York, and in her art department.

Campus Notes

By Shirley Belcher

September 12, 1958

100 girls, guys and gals, what would you have like to have old Santa place under your Christmas tree?

Dear Santa:

I am a tremendous sleepless high school student and have a little stocking I would like you to place with a little frosh who will awaken me at 5:36 each morning.

Julia Miller

You, with a full jack, are constantly at rest under my

Christmas tree.

Willingly Allison.

I have always wanted a print and, dear Santa, please make it the cuddle size.

Bill Moos.

A box six feet in length, tied with a huge red ribbon, and labeled "From Iowa State University" will make my days merry and bright.

Ann Cory.

My heart leaps up when I behold

alleys or streets.

Helen Whaley.

So much has happened recently

which makes it very dif-
MINISTERIAL STUDENTS

Miss Cravens, Our Versatile Dean

By Madonna Pugett

Miss Virginia Cravens, Dean of Women and house mother to the girls of New Hall dormitory, was born in a house near Nashville, Indiana, in the southern part of Washington County, Indiana. After an active life as a newspaper publisher and editor, she entered the state legislature, later to become a member of the state legislature. Her mother was known for her contributions to the community. Perhaps that is where Miss Cravens got her love of entertaining. She was in Illinois for nine years, serving as president of Sigma Zeta, the National Honor Society. Then she moved to Indiana Central, where she was the Phi Beta Kappa honor society advisor. Miss Cravens attended State Normal School at Terre Haute, and later received her A.B. degree from DePauw University in Greencastle, where she won the Phi Beta Kappa honors and organized the Phi Alpha Gamma Delta, a national sorority. She graduated from DePauw University, and received her master’s degree in English from the latter institution in 1936. Her undergraduate minor was Latin and Greek.

Miss Cravens taught a country school in Washington County and later taught in Orange County, Indiana. In the fall of 1923, she was principal of in the Orange County, Indiana. In the fall of 1923, she was principal of North Liberty High School. At Hardinsburg, her husband, John A. Cravens, was principal of Hardinsburg High School. After the school year, she traveled extensively, visiting England, Scotland, France, Switzerland, Italy, Holland, and Belgium. She returned from her travels after five years, and returned to Hardinsburg where she taught for another five years. After that, she returned to Indiana Central, where she taught for nine years and served as president of Sigma Zeta, the National Honor Society. Miss Cravens was a newspaper publisher and editor, and was also a member of the state legislature. She was known for her contributions to the community and for her love of entertaining.