As In Autumn So In Life

by Bill Schmidt, Religion Editor

Resigning to the last powers of Nature, crisp maple leaves announce the arrival of autumn as they fall to rest on the earth. Millions of leaves which on a single tree have been separated from their life blood. The wind rip the leaves from the limbs. Nature turns off the floor of nourishment, thus painting the leaves in dull shades. The leaves scatter. Some, if properly guided, will be led into fields of usefulness. Perhaps they will rise to restate, while others remain that production against winter's storms for small shrubs. Then, too, they may be completely wasted by being sent up in a puff of smoke.

Realty, leaves can remind us of people. Apparently there are times in most of our lives when we will be torn from our life blood. Autumn arrives for everyone. Often we leave our source of spiritual and intellectual nourishment in search of a more appealing reservoir. Teenagers can lose contact with home and church. And, too, perhaps a widespread feeling of helplessness, the desire to be useful to mankind. Too frequently, unfortunately, we can find the help—perhaps just a kind word—that can show us the way to usefulness. Even more would be the case of those of us who are led away from the church by desire to help others. So, too, are our opportunities to serve. Like the leaves, those opportunities have gone up in smoke.
