WAF To Interview

Capt. Elizabeth E. Maye, WAF selection officer for this area, will be in Indianapolis on Feb. 12 to interview women college seniors and graduates interested in obtaining a commission in the United States Air Force.

Women seniors and graduates, between the ages of 15 and 25, may call Capt. Maye at MIE 2-7211 or visit her at 402 Federal Building from 9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m.

Among the career fields open to women college graduates are in personnel, statistical service, administration, transportation, supply and maintenance. Maj. Foy D. McQueen, local Air Force recruiter, said Capt. Maye has had 13 years service in the WAF, working primarily in personnel and administration, including a tour at Landstuhl Air Base, Germany, which holds a bachelor of business administration degree from the University of Michigan.

As WAF selection officer for the 30th U.S. AF Recruiting Group Headquarters at Chanute Air Force Base, Ill., Capt. Maye advises college women about career opportunities at 22 offices in the Air Force and assists in the WAF enlistment program in northeastern Illinois, Wisconsin, Michigan, Indiana, Ohio and a northern section of West Virginia.

ICC President Made Sagamore Of Wasbash

Dr. L. Lynd Rice, president of Indiana Central College, has been made a Sagamore of the Wabash by Gov. Matthews of Indiana. This honor is the Hoosier equivalent of being designated a Kentucky colonel.

4 Will Get Honorary Degrees At Dedication Of Lilly Science Hall

Four leaders in sciences will receive honorary degrees at the dedication of the new Lilly Science Hall at Indiana Central College on Saturday, Feb. 11. The ceremony will be in Randburg Auditorium at 10:30 a.m. and open to the public.

Eugene N. Beazley, president of Eli Lilly Co., Indianapolis pharmaceutical manufacturer, will receive the degree of Doctor of Science from the university. Beazley is chairman of the board of directors of the Eli Lilly Co. He has served as president of the company since 1952.

Four leaders in sciences will be conferred upon them three men. One is Dr. Henry Kopp, dean of the Graduate School of the University of Utah and president of the American Chemical Society, who will deliver the dedication address.

The two others are Dr. Robert E. Prudence, a biologist with the Indiana University Medical Center in Indianapolis, and Lowell H. Good, associate director of the National Science Foundation.

Let's Get The Core

A pilot Peace Corps Senior Year Program will get under way when the 1964 class goes into the field this fall. More than 1,000 American universities and colleges offer assistance to students from all walks of life who seek fellowships abroad to American universities and colleges. Government and private foundations have thousands of additional fellowships available for Americans as well as for students from overseas.

Harry Golden Will Lecture At ICC

Harry Golden, will, editorialist, essayist, author and playwright, will speak on the Art Series at Indiana Central College on Feb. 14. His lecture will be in Randburg Auditorium at 8:30 p.m.

Golden did not become a national figure until the 1950's, when he began speaking from New York City, where he was born, in 1901, to Dixie. He attended City College on Feb. 22, and worked for the New York Daily Mirror and the New York Post before going south.

In the South he started with the Virginian and the Richmond Times Dispatch, where he became editor in chief of the Art Series. His first book was "For You, My Son," and his most recent book is "You're Entitled." All were best sellers both in hardbound and paperback editions. His column appears regularly in the Saturday Review, and he has written more than 200 articles, books, and booklets, including the story of the civil rights movement since 1960.

Former ICC Student Tells Of Race Problems Encountered In South

Dear Tom,

As a student at Indiana Central College, I have had the opportunity to experience and witness firsthand the race problems that are prevalent in the South. The school, in which I am currently enrolled, is located in Wabash, Illinois, and it is a small, predominantly white institution. Despite its size, the school has a diverse student body and is known for its commitment to the principles of equality and justice.

The community in which the school is situated is predominantly white and has a long history of racial tension. The school's campus is located near a historically segregated neighborhood, and there are few opportunities for students to interact with the local African American community. This lack of diversity is reflected in the school's student body, which is predominantly white.

Despite these challenges, the school has taken a proactive approach to address race issues. The administration has implemented a number of initiatives to promote understanding and reconciliation, including community service programs and workshops on diversity and race. These efforts have been well-received by the student body, and there has been a noticeable increase in the number of students of color enrolling at the school.

As a member of the student body, I have had the opportunity to participate in these initiatives and have been impressed by the school's commitment to creating a more inclusive and equitable community. I strongly believe that other institutions should follow the example of Indiana Central College and make a concerted effort to address race issues on their campuses.

Sincerely,

Karen Doe

9 Scholarships Are Offered By
Institute Of European Studies

College undergraduates have until Feb. 15 to apply for nine scholarships being offered by the Institute of European Studies as if it centers in Paris, Vienna and Freiburg, West Germany.

The scholarships, for the year 1964-65, will be awarded on the basis of academic achievement,
financial need and recommendations by the applicant's U.S. college or university. They are intended especially for outstanding students who will be juniors next year in history, political science,
international relations, literature,
philosophy, psychology and German and French languages.

One full and two partial scholarships are being offered for study at each of the three centers.
The full scholarships for Vienna
and Freiburg are valued at $3,300
that for Paris is valued at $2,660.
Partial scholarships at each center are valued at $1,000 and $400.

The full scholarships include
all basic costs for tuition, room,
most meals, round-trip transat-tantic passage from New York
and two field trips in Europe.

The Institute's Paris program includes opportunities for study at the University of Paris, the Institute d'Etudes Politiques and other institutes and "grandes ecoles" in Paris. Junior standing, a B average and at least one year of college French are required of all students.

The full-year program in Vienna
offers a choice of German-
or English-taught courses conducted by the University of Vienna and the Institute, with the possibility of enrollment in regular Germantought courses of the university.
Sophomores or Junior standing is required, and previous study of German is preferred for scholarship applicants.

All courses in the Freiburg program, with the exception of intensive preliminary language instruction and special tutorials, are taken within the University of Freiburg, located in Germany's Black Forest. Intermediate German, junior standing and a minumum average of B are requisite.

Full information and application forms are available from the Institute of European Studies, 32
E. Wacker Drive, Chicago, Ill. The Institute, a nonprofit educational institution, is the largest U. S.
sponsor of overseas study program.
Man Searches For God: God Searches . . . ?

By John F. HULMEAN

Throughout the existence of intelligent men, probably the most rancorous question raised is: "Why Life?" Many individuals and all entire species have sought the answer to this question, whether it be in terms of their success or failure, in hope or despair, in only an ethnocentric point of view or in terms of an entire race. I attempted to write this description of the answer as it appears from my viewpoint of the human condition.

Not so many years ago when I was just beginning to attend Sunday school, I was told the purpose of life was to "glorify God." It is that time that I have become less gullible and much more skeptical of almost every aspect of human existence. My naive concept of a personal God has given way to that of a much more impersonal, rational motivating force of the universe.

However, I have found through all of my re-evaluation of concepts, much of the purpose of life still holds. It appears that life truly does exist to "glorify God." If this is so, how does man glorify his creator and fulfill this cardinal purpose of existence?

John Wolfgang von Goethe in his Faust suggests the highest achievement of mankind is to create a work of art, a tireless, creative life. It might be further suggested this noble task is the only way to transcend the nature of our Creator and our relationship with His creation.

Hed-stock understood this, perhaps he never would have been moved by the apparent worthlessness of life to utter:

"Tomorrow, and tomorrow, and tomorrow. Creeps in this petty pace from day to day, To the last syllable of recorded time: And then there is nothing. Thank God.

"Life's but a walking shadow, a poor curved streamer that has been free to wander, and then is heard no more. It is a tale told by an idiot, full of sound and fury, signifying nothing.

We won't even consider the possibility of Negroes fighting for their freedom. Many of them have been beaten and killed. But on the whole, they've been white, generally or in particular. I really can't understand it; these Negroes had every reason in the world for them to desire revenge. But to offer this revenge is too easy; it's a sad situation.

Happiness is a genuine hope, and a Joy that possibly in the next few years; my participation would cause me to lose sons of these things. I feel very much out of place asking people to take chances I am not at all certain I would be willing to risk myself. Many people have risked, and also lost their lives, for the very reasons for which I feel these;
