Schwitzer Center Underway

Gift Makes Building Possible By Fall Of 65

Indiana Central College announces that its new Student Union Building, the Schwitzer Center, has been made possible by a gift from Louis Schwitzer, president of the Schwitzer Corporation, one of the nation's leading manufacturers of highly engineered and precision products for the automotive and aerospace industries.

Schwitzer was born in Austria and earned seven degrees in electrical and mechanical engineering at the Universities of Darmstadt, Heidelberg and Berlin. He came to the United States after the first World War, and joined the engineering staff of the Motor Transport Co. He is interested in automobiles and motorboat racing. He won the first race held by the Indianapolis Motor Speedway — 3 to 1, a match in which he covered 5 minutes, 12.5 seconds. He also participated in the second race of the 1930s in the first 500-mile contest in 1931. He became a member of the Speed- way Hall of Fame in 1933, and was chairman of the Indianapolis Motor Speedway from 1938 to 1946.

Schwitzer designed and developed the superchargers for the En- gineers in World War I and World War II, and won the Harnor Award. In 1940, he purchased the property where the Indiana Academy of Science is located, and was a member of the board of the Academy of Science, Indiana Junior Academy of Science, and the Young Democrats. He also has been a member of the Indiana Bar Association, the Indiana State Bar Association, and the Young Republican Party.

Dr. Robert Brooker is chairman of the program committee. Speeches, films and reports by college professors and high school teachers are included in the schedule. The specific topics will emerge from these general subject areas: anthropology, botany, chemistry, entomology, geography and philosophies of science, and the effect of these subject areas on plant taxonomy, soil and science and technology.

Also on Saturday, Oct. 29, the Indiana Junior Academy of Science will hold its annual meeting. High school students will present papers on a variety of topics in mathematics. Both Academies will have luncheons and business meetings.

Rathbone Opens Artists Series

Basil Rathbone, one of the most distinguished performers of the stage and the screen, will open the 1964-65 Artist Series program on Friday, Nov. 6, at Indiana Central College. The program will be held in Hamberg Auditorium at 8:20 p.m.

Since this is the first year the world is celebrating the 400th anniversary of William Shakespeare's birth, Mr. Rathbone will present scenes from the Bard's plays in "William Shakespeare — 400th." This actor strongly believes that the "play may be the thing, but the audience is pretty important too." Audience identification to the drama or play is the major de- termination of the success of a produc- tion. One may easily see this production to work as Mr. Rath- bone is one of the foremost interpreters of Shakespeare; he has played 25 roles in 23 of the playwright's dramas.

Presenting the United States in 1922, Basil Rathbone has been one of Hollywood and Broad- way's busiest performers. Among his more recent engagements was his appearance at the White House Inception for the Grand Duchess of Luxembourg last April.

An elderly farmer was relaxing on his porch one evening, enjoying a glass of iced tea and listening to the sounds of the neighborhood. The moon was shining brightly, and a gentle breeze was rustling the leaves in the trees. Suddenly, the farmer heard a noise coming from the woods behind his house.

"Well, well," he thought to himself, "something's about to happen.

As the farmer finished his tea, he reached for his shotgun and prepared for an unexpected visitor. He walked to the edge of the porch, his heart pounding with anticipation. The sound grew louder, and the farmer could make out the sound of footsteps approaching.

"Who's there?" he called out, his voice echoing through the quiet night.

"Hello, Mr. Farmer," a soft voice replied. "I'm here on business.

The farmer turned around to find a young man standing on the porch. He was dressed in a suit and carrying a briefcase.

"I'm sorry to disturb you, but I need to speak with you about something important," the young man said.

"What is it?" the farmer asked, his curiosity piqued.

"It's about your farm," the young man explained. "We're here from the government, and we need to discuss a new program that will help farmers like you.

The farmer was skeptical. He had heard about programs before, and most of them had been a waste of time. But the young man seemed genuine, and the farmer decided to give him a chance.

"Let's talk," the farmer said, extending his hand to the young man.

As the two men walked into the farmhouse, the farmer couldn't help but feel a sense of excitement. He had never been involved in politics before, but he was ready to learn more about this new program and see if it could benefit his family.

Coad-Confab Expresses Opinions?

It seems to be a long way from those early days of 'junk day' meal tickets, but even more strange is the distance between the two concepts. What is love? How would you know the right girl? When should your personal values be in conflict with your major's—How can you discover the facts about what is important, interesting, to you when you have the right to vote? How are you personally involved—other facets of national interest.

The question, What happened to the Bears? led to a discussion of pro-football and baseball. The discussion then moved in another turn with a question about the popular social life. A shift to more ideas on campus styles and why blue jeans and white shoes are no longer in.

Since the group of students who took part in the Coad Conflagration, Oct. 20, were from Indiana Central College, the talk was naturally of interest to its next point—the rise of IFC to a place of prominence in the Midwest as a prestigious college. While discussing Central, the students seemed to be expressing their desire for closer student-faculty relationships, to have more say in the running of things, and a desire for more opportunities for students to be involved in the running of the college.

The 1961-62 season for the Indiana Central College Artist Series begins Nov. 6. The only difference this year will be the absence of the Canadian Players.

ICC students have enjoyed the Players for four consecutive seasons, but because of a union conflict, the troupe of actors will be unable to tour the United States. The importance of the Players was to have given "A Midsummer Night's Dream." The Future Perez, a member of the Artist Series Planning Committee, said the change in program required the re-printing of five thousand publicity brochures. This was an addition to the re-printing of tickets for the first performance.
