Poet John Knoepfle To Appear On Campus

Indiana Central College is delighted to bring the distinguished poet Mr. John Knoepfle, to the campus Thursday and Friday, Nov. 4 and 5, for the Sutphin Lectures.

Mr. Knoepfle was born in Cincinnati, Ohio, where he obtained his Master's degree from Xavier University. He has taught English for eight years at Ohio State University, Southern Illinois University, and Maryville College, near St. Louis, Missouri.

One of Mr. Knoepfle's numerous contributions to the literary world is the compilation of the portraits of seventy aged rivermen into fifty-one-hour tapes. In all, his work has been published in at least 20 magazines and books including "The Yale Review," "Western Humanities Review," and "Poetry Northwest." He has written articles for "The Shakespeare Newsletter," "The Library Association Quarterly," and "Midwestern Writers Studies Journal." Mr. Knoepfle has presented his works in reading tours in Japan as well as in college and universities, has contributed in four anthologies, and is co-author of two books, and author of "Rivers into Islands: Poems by John Knoepfle.

Mr. Knoepfle will appear at 9:30 a.m. in the convocation session in Recital Hall of Fine Arts Center on Thursday, Nov. 4, and at 7 p.m. on Thursday, Nov. 4. Also on Thursday Mr. Knoepfle will be reading to college and high school English teachers.

Enrollments Reach New Heights In Both Day, Evening Schools

Enrollment this year soared beyond all previous highs in both day and evening schools. There are 240 more students this year than there were last year; there are 1,732 evening students, compared to 1,532 last year.

Ohio College To Host Seminar On Middle East

An inter-collegiate conference on the Middle East will be conducted Friday and Saturday, Nov. 5 and 6 at the Ohio College of Education, located in Cincinnati, Ohio. It is hoped that the seminar will attract students and professors from many campuses.

The speakers at the conference include the following: Edwin M. Hislop, director of the Near East Institute; John S. Badeau-Director of Middle East Institute of Columbia University; President of American University of Beirut, and former Ambassador to U. A. R.; E. Talat – Ambassador to U. S. from the State of Kuwait; J. Roche – Director of Near East Affairs, U. S. State Department; and F. Colley Young – Chairman of the Department of Oriental Studies, Princeton University.

Aimed at a more responsible understanding of the Middle East, the conference will also present the opportunity for each delegate to participate in vital international discussions concerning specific problems in that area of the world.

Total registration for the conference will be $10. If anyone from Indiana Central is interested in attending, contact Chris Plutahardt for further details.

Halloween Ball Promises Treat – No Ghostly Tricks

Have you ever been served refreshments by a live “monster”? Or have you recently found yourself placed in a “pleasant” atmosphere of goblets, witches, and ghosts. Better still, have you on occasion encountered a live witch who, after receiving refreshments, seemed to have been served?

For a night of real enjoyment and for a chance to experience the things mentioned above, the Senior Class invites you to attend the Halloween Ball – Saturday, Oct. 30 from 9 to 12 p.m. True, the dance will take place in the college cafeteria. However, Lee Hare, president of the Senior Class, says, “We hope to render the cafeteria noscriminable.”

And true, the “monsters” will be costumed, but “you” will have a chance to wear that new party dress or that new sport-coat. The attire is described as semi-formal.

Meit Chance and the Niteletes will be on hand to provide entertainment. Those of you who attended the Sweetheart Dance last year will remember that the music and arrangements were just right. They stirred such response that we decided to ask them back.

This Halloween Ball, equivalent to the annual Homecoming dance (which was not held this year due to the performance of the New Crispy Almonds), promises to be one of the biggest events of the present school year. We extend a special invitation to the freshmen sophomores! and juniors!

Tickets will go on sale today, Oct. 27, in the student lounge, only $3 per couple. Get your ticket today!

Gallery Features French Artists

Forty-seven drawings by 18 modern French artists are on view in the art gallery in the Administration Building from Oct. 18 through Nov. 4. Mr. Gerald G. Boyce, Art Department chairperson, described them as reproductions of works ranging from impressionism to Picasso. For the week of Oct. 24 the art gallery will be open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.
I would like to give another challenge. What made that conversation so successful? Of course, Dr. Baker deserves most of the credit. A vital and sincere speaker will get and keep his audience's attention. The student body would be privileged if every speaker accepted the challenge to present such a forceful, meaningful message.

While advocating such improved production, I also challenge the student body to support the speaker, to react to what he says, then, to act on his suggestions.

Convocation will be an important part of every student's year if the speaker accepts his duty to do his best and if the student accepts his responsibility to support the speaker.

TAKING CAMPUS PULSE

Low Blood Pressure?

Taking the pulse of the campus and editorializing the resulting blood pressure isn't always an easy task. Sometimes there's nothing going on. For example, during the past two weeks very few people have complained either about school life or school policy. Everything is rosy!

Of course, Lambda Chi Alpha and Phi Omega had a minor disagreement about which organization should dig the foundation for our new sign, but the hole was dug. Students still complained about the clocks not being synchronized in the various buildings. Buxton residents wished that a new phone was available. In general, students would be privileged if people would do something worthwhile.

Yet, elsewhere, Rhodesia's idea of U. D. L. placed Britain in a position she had not seen since 1776, soldiers lost their lives in Viet Nam while Americans burned draft cards in demonstrations against the war, a special session of the General Assembly searched for an acceptable reapportionment plan; construction of the IU center displaced more and more inner-city families without providing a place for them to go, debate continued on the plans for the Indianapolis freeway system, and Hanna Avenue didn't come any closer to its promised grade separation.

It isn't easy to editorialize in a college without problems, but it is more unfortunate that everyone can't be as free from worry and as unconcerned as we are.
Seniors Win Class Stunts

The Senior Class traditionally won the class stunts on Oct. 20 with the skit entitled "Curse You, Jack Dafton," written by John Brunner.

Maxine Haycox narrated the serious portion of the skit. Her co-stars were Bob Deny, Jack Dafton, Barh Bean, Neil; Lea Harman, Dudley Knight. In the various commercials were Jane Wilcox, Linda Harris, Anita Reitze, Linda Miller, Steve Lemme, Dick Elmore and Steve Maple.

The final stunt of the evening, "The Red San Francisco," was written by Stan Atkins and Dennis Shock. The cast consisted of narrator, Roger Wathen; Sam; Nell; Tanya; and Tom Young. Others who were in the stunt were Maxine Alls, secretary; Dennis Stone, professor; Tom Hall, Chuck Whiting; Dennis Steak and tomatoes as football players.

"Bus of Fools," the Sophomore Class stunt, was written by Greg Minifie and Diar of Callie; Michael, Don Bruce and Tom Williams were the participating cast.

The Senior stunt of the evening, "A Lasting Impression," was written and directed by the Senior class committee. Keith Fredreich and John Everitt starred.

Jo Ellen Warner and Steve Dalez, stunts co-chairmen, entertained with wit and charmingly missed stunts. Tom Williams and Scott O'Malley sang while waiting for the decision of the judges. Judges for the stunts were Mrs. Hilda Bruce, Mr. John Swank, and Mr. Leonard Pearson.

Comedy Charms People

"As You Like It," a play which reveals William Shakespeare's as a master of comedy and farce, was presented at Indiana Central College Oct. 23 in Ransburg Auditorium by the National Shakespeare Company.

The audience of approximately 200 was responsive and very enthused to the enthusiasm of the performance. The spirited and high-born Rosalind of the comedy was brilliantly portrayed by Elaitee Sukka, who is also one of the executive producers of the group. Playing opposite Miss Sukka was Leonard Arnold as the gentleman and desperate Orlando. Rosalind and Orlando fall in love at first sight early in the plot. However, the clever Shakespeare creates an entertaining story with much action and many "shamans" before the lovers meet again and are married.

"As You Like It" is a dramatization of a pastoral tale. Shakespeare borrowed his play basically from a story by Thomas Lodge. Shakespeare created a number of new characters of which Audrey, Touchstone and Jaques are some of the most interesting. Neil Flannigan as Touchstone and Howard Chamberlin as Jaques were particularly well done, as was shown by the audience's ready response.

The actors' responses to one another's lines was excellent. Characterization, especially by those who portrayed two parts, was very vivid. Lines flowed smoothly except for an occasional fumble. scenery was attractive and costumes especially colorful.

Ending with the country dance as plays so often did in the times, "As You Like It" closes on a note of galap and laughter. Realistic celibates the epilogue, usually given by actors now.

The National Shakespeare Company pany was organized in 1961 and operates out of New York. Its first season was a four-weeks tour with an N.A. degree. This season's 25-week tour takes the company from coast to coast and border to border.

Soc. Students Meet, Discuss At Henricks Home

by J. W. P.

The graduates of the English Department of Indiana Central College met Oct. 23 in Apartment 18 for a breakfast and discussion. There were approximately 12 of these graduates present, including Mrs. W. B. Nave, a graduate of Indiana Central and is now teaching English at Greenfield.

The breakfast was served by Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Nave and was followed by a discussion of the past, present and future of English education in the area.

The discussion was led by Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Nave.
Trojan 4th Period Halts Greyhounds

by Elmore Taylor

Trojan's, losers of three games, finally scored their first victory of the season by downing Indiana Central 22-13 on the last play of an exciting game Saturday night.

The Greyhounds had been a force in the conference and for the most part were ranked near the top of the conference. However, the Trojans scored late in the game for the first time this season.

Parents Attend Annual Dad's Day Program

The Dad's Day program was held Saturday, October 22. The theme was "As You Like It" featuring 1st lady of National Shakespeare Company.

CLASS OF 1969

Frosh Pull Tag-Of-War

The 1969 freshman-sophomore tug-of-war was not held on the practice field but in the gymnasium. The event was planned. The two teams of ten men each were pulled against each other over a 40-foot wide mud puddle beneath the construction of the new gym which is just for the pullers. A large cheer rose from the crowd of freshman girls who were out to be of encouragement and support for their freshman boys.

WOmen's Sports

The women's tennis team competed against Indiana Central College on Oct. 21. The team lost the match, thus extending the conference record to 0-6.

Frosh Pull Tag-Of-War

Fresh produce a winning pull as they outmaneuver the sophomores in the annual Tag-Of-War on Oct. 15.
