Esch Announces Retirement, Sease To Become President

Dr. I. Lynd Esch, president of Indiana Central College since its establishment at the close of the 1960 spring semester that he would retire from the United Methodist liberal arts college in June, 1970.

Following the statement of Dr. Esch's retirement, Dr. L. H. Huff, President of Dayton, Ohio, president of the college trustees, paid tribute to Dr. Esch's outstanding leadership ship during his quarter century as president; and also announced that the Board of Trustees has elected a successor to the president. He is Dr. Gene E. Sease, a native of Portage, Pennsylvania, who came to the Indiana Central staff last June at the invitation of the college's trustees. He was selected by the board's Committee on Continuing Administration, which conducted a search for a new administrator during the past two years. He came to the college in a newly-created position of administrative assistant to the president. Along with Dr. Huff and members of the committee, included Bishop R. H. Mueller, the Rev. H. Orval Moore, and Dr. Ed- win C. Philp, all of Indianapolis; Dr. V. A. Carlson, Locustport; Mr. Gordon France, Anderson; and Mr. Paul Honan, Lebanon.

A graduate of Juniata College, Huntingdon, Pennsylvania, he earned the bachelor of divinity and master of theology degrees at Pittsburgh Theological Seminary and master of education and doctor of philosophy degrees at the University of Pittsburgh, where he was on the graduate faculty in 1962-68. He has contributed to various books and magazines and last year co-authored a theological dictionary, "The Christian Wordbook," which Abingdon Press is reprinting this year.

The leadership abilities of Dr. Sease have been recognized in the United Methodist Church, where he is secretary of its denominational Board of Education, a member of the Department of Ministry, the Department of Educational Institutions, the Division of Higher Education, the Committee on Confirmation Resources, and the Commission on Study the Ministry. He is also secretary of the Commission on Entertainment and Program, which plans for the church's General Conferences every four years.

Dr. Sease has been a delegate to the last two General Conferences and will be a delegate to the forthcoming sessions at Baltimore next April. He has traveled throughout Europe, the Middle East, and the Far East, and in 1966 was a missioner to the Philippines, where he lectured at colleges, universities, seminaries, and seminars for pastors and community leaders. He is active in Masonic circles al- low.

Prior to coming to Indiana Central, he was a conference superintendent in the Western Pennsylvania Conferences of the Evangelical United Brethren Church, now the United Methodist Church. Previously he had been a pastor at Glasgow, Pa., (1949-51), and a pastor at Indiana, Pa., a suburb of Pittsburgh, (1951-62). He was elected a conference director (1960). The 35-year-old president-elect is married to the former Joanne Cherry of Bellwood, Pa. They have three children: David, 14; Daniel, 11; and Cheryl, 7. The family lives on Radcliffe Avenue in the Brown- days Hills section of Indianapolis.

Under Dr. Esch's presidency, seven new buildings were built on the ICC campus and an eight is under construction. The college has grown during this period from fewer than 300 students to the present enrollment of more than 1,200 in the day division, 1,300 in the evening division, and 125 in the graduate division. Approximately 1,000 others have been enrolled in this year in courses through the college's Center for Industrial Relations and Continuing Education.

President Invites Ministerial Students

All ministerial students at I.C.C. are invited to the home of Presi- dent Esch on Thursday evening, September 18, at 7:00 o'clock. The purpose of the meeting is to get acquainted and to share in common interest and concerns.

Eight Student Leaders Interviewed About Duties

Eight student leaders of I.C.C. wish to extend to you a hand of welcome on Registration Day. During the summer months, the REFLECTOR staff asked each leader to comment personally on his respective duties and responsibilities of the office to which he was appointed or elected for the 1969-70 school year.

Phyllis Cook and Charlotte Downin, co-editors of the REFLECTOR, believe that "the two things the journalist's work is facts and writing. The journalist who interprets what has happened or will happen is not made public until the crown- ing ceremony at the conclusion of the fall semester.

"The girl agrees the best quality of a fellow student's desire and an ability to write. Curiosity, a tolerance of objective observation, a sociable personality, and a temperament to work under pressure are also important ingredients."

The REFLECTOR is a biweekly newspaper and has a staff of 40 students. The REFLECTOR staff includes Vicki Bryant, news editor; Doug London, art editor; and sports editor. The staff also includes nine columnists and 10 reporters. Anyone wishing to work on the staff should contact the editors.

"We encourage public opinion in the form of letters to the editors. Any student is welcome to write, and because we have to have the best college newspaper that we can, we consider a letter from any student."

George Gordon, Social Activities Vice-President, states that "the activities for this year will include the Sweetheart Dance, in February, and the Prom, at the beginning of next semester."

Paul Thomas is editor of the ORACLE. He states, "The ORAC- LIE is the book which records and sometimes interprets what has happened or will happen, the events of the preceding year. It also interprets as it reflects the emotions, the ideas, and the special moments of Indiana Central College. For the student journalist who takes a sneak peak of their first year in college.

"The 1969 ORACLE will be the first yearbook published. By having the fall delivery this year, we can have the complete story of the following year. The second yearbook will be the fall delivery plan."

The ORACLE staff consists of Cynthia Losier, copy editor; Julie Aderholt, layout editor; Roger Hen- derson, business manager. And Paul Thomas is the editor. Harold Moore is the chief photographer. Other members of this key staff of the 1970 ORACLE include:

Nancy Gill, May Queen, states, "May Festival is considered to be the biggest event of the school year. Our ocean of students and the May Queen and her court. An elaborate smorgasbord is planned for the evening meal."

"The climax of May Festival is the Grand Coronation, when the reigning May Queen and her court. An elaborate smorgasbord is planned for the evening meal."

"The climax of May Festival is the Grand Coronation, when the reigning May Queen and her court. An elaborate smorgasbord is planned for the evening meal."

Steven Miller, Vice-President of Religious Activities, declares, "Re- lieved. Since the conference and moments of inspiration to the student. The In-between moments were planned as an integral part of the student's education."

"I have been happy with the cooperation of all students the 1969-70 school year promises to be one of the best Central College years ever."
Editors Speak
CURSE OF THE COLLEGE

Co-Editors Disagree
On Students' Rights

In 1789, the leaders of the middle class in France prepared to sweep away the old regime with its inequalities and abuses. The revolution in France did not bring about a social Utopia, but it did bring about a new social order, the middle class.

Today a new class is emerging. This is the youth class. It is a more youthful exuberance, an adolescent stage of maturity, a flight from reality on alcohol and drugs, or a new standard of sex and morals. Yes, it is more than any of these approaches that attempt to explain the young.

The Editors examine their purposes, professors to re-examine their careers, adults to re-examine their consciences.

Yes, students are rebelling. Meldon Levine, a law graduate from Harvard, stated, "I have asked many of my classmates what they wanted me to say today. 'Talk with them about hypocrisy,' most of them said. 'Tell them they have broken the best heads in the country... Tell them they have destroyed our confidence and lost our respect.'"

American youth are demanding on-campus reforms, improving education so that the student isn't a mere number. He is an individual with beliefs and convictions that should be heard. We are dissatisfied with the idea of a student being a mere robot. There should be a change in curriculum, and the colleges and universities should be self-governed by the students. We have ideas on Vietnam, poverty, welfare, and the ghettos that deserve to be heard. Students are more active in government positions. It's even possible to understand, though not to condone, some of the absurd black demands and black terrorism that would turn our system into a national tragedy.

The situation is complex. No doubt there are many ingredients. But while this is all puzzling and lamenting about it, it would be wise for them to search their own conscience and show today's youth some evidence that the rights and dignities of the young are important too.

H hoops for Governor Reagan! At last someone has enough courage to "tell it like it is." This is a far more change from the usual subservient acceptance of many of the college officials when dealing with these rebellious students of the campus.

The deliberate disruption of the college's normal routine and the malicious destruction of school property merits only immediate punitive action by the institution's administration, in accordance with the college's own rules and standards.

Each college has a tradition, a heritage, and an established right to have its own governing and administrative authorities impress upon every new enrollee exactly what is expected of him during his four year tenure.

If a student should decide at the time of enrollment that he is not willing to uphold these standards, then he should immediately sign the admittance papers. This college is not for him.

It is a privilege to attend college, and this earned right should be maintained by respecting administrative authority.

Of course, peaceful demonstrations should definitely be expected. But we should be sure to protest against a particular college rule or standard, his rights of freedom of speech and freedom of assembly, so long as he does not abuse these rights by stepping outside the realm of civil law and order, should be guaranteed. Students should be able to request an audience with the college officials in a peaceable manner, and any reasonable entreaty from either side should be heard.

However, passive resistance and submissive toleration by the administrative authorities, in response to militant, re-

The Forum

Beginning with the September 25 issue of the Reflection, a question and answer column will appear regularly in each publication. THE FORUM is designed to bring the ties of communication between student, faculty, and administration closer together. The Editors of the Reflection ask that if anyone should have a question concerning policy, format, routine, or event here at Indiana Central College, the student is invited to ask THE FORUM. Each question and its respective answer will appear in the following issue of the Reflection. Please submit all questions to The Editors, c/o Reflection, Campus Mail. Thank You.

The Reflection

Published at Indiana Central College.

1. Question: What is your policy on...?
2. What do you think about...?
3. What will happen if...?

Questions are answered in the order received, and are only meant to the "in." The reflection is a forum of reading, listening, and appreciating other people; even people that are different from ourselves. The questions have been planned in the hope that everyone who reads this column and gets to know one another.

The ID will appear in every issue of the Reflection, I'll keep you informed on what's happening if you'll keep me informed on what you want to happen.

Welcome back to the "icy cube" (IC - Indiana Central College Campus) and a special greeting to all new freshmen and transfer students. Once again the campus is alive and well. Only those of us who spend the entire twelve months of the year here can really appreciate the difference between the near isolation and solitude of mid-August as contrasted to the clammers of the period surrounding registration day in early September.

We anticipate an exciting and unique year here at ICC, a prediction which does not require the use of everyday ball since every year on a college campus is full of events which should result in a great deal of self-satisfaction for a considerable number of people.

Some of these events can be foretold as special musical and dramatic presentations, athletic contests, and involvement in government political campaigns, classes and organizations. However, just to mention a few. The Central student body as well as the Administration and the faculty are privileged to witness the most elaborate and impressive student drama production ever presented on our campus when Hamlet is presented in three acts and four scenes with music and dance interludes. The presentation is sponsored by the department of Speech and Theater and will be performed in the auditorium of the municipal, 110th in the Shade. Not since the days of the spring musical of a similar theme and fancy in the late 50's and early 60's has ICC perhaps undertaken such a combined effort which brought together several departments and involved most of the campus in earlier years.

This year, as always and for the opening football game with Butler University on September 20. We haven't faced a single member of the Butler team since their last visit to a major spectator sport in nearby Indiana. It seems only fitting that we are more to "put a feather in our cap" from an athletic and public relations standpoint that our campus is in major town rivalries.

It is likely that this year will be unique in another way since President Enos has announced that he will be closing the well-attended SCCS and be coming to the IC. Each, who in his twenty-sixth year as ICC's president has the distinction of being dean of all Indiana colleges and university chief administrators.

Another interest that marks the upcoming year involves the discussion among the students, faculty, and administration of a new calendar which would represent a departure from the traditional nine-month plan as we now know it. If such a change is effected, perhaps for the first time, student groups would be given the freedom to discuss and plan their own calendars. The central calendar is now the most Draconian of the ICC. We would suggest the student groups meet with the administration and have an open discussion involving the coordination of the fall and spring semesters. Perhaps eventually a new calendar will be adopted for the campus.

It is reasonable to anticipate that the most significant change ever introduced on the ICC campus would be an urgent student group to discuss and formulate a plan for a "short term" into our academic year. In the place of shorter terms which now total seven months, it would be reasonable to anticipate a four-month period during the summer months. (The school is roughly twenty-five percent small dormitory housing at present.)

At the end of the meeting of the central administration committee has been meeting throughout the summer, but at the most recent of these meetings came to the conclusion that we could not proceed without consultation of the student body. A major point of debate was the short term should be placed between the two longer terms or at the end. In other words, if such a plan is implemented should it be for the Fall or for the Spring? in any event, students should benefit from a change in many ways. One of the obvious advantages of either plan would be that the first term would end the first week of Christmas vacation, thus no longer to be completed during the break nor would there be necessary to "hove-up" for the examination. Students will have the opportunity to travel, to do research, or to seek employment. No students who do not wish to stay at home and make their voices heard.

So it's time to be an interesting year! It is my fervent hope that the freshman realize it can be an interesting four years and we will be willing to pay the price of admission.

One of the greatest adjustments that needs to be made is knowing how to handle an unstructured time. Ironically, most freshmen who have been in high school for four years do not have as much to do when they leave high school as they were in high school. Students will have the freedom to decide the future and we must not be able to assume responsibility for themselves and their free time.

Finally, may I be able to offer the Admissions Office express my gratitude to the student body for the outstanding cooperation and student recruitment. When acting as host to visitors and guests, we constantly manage to bear them comfortably pertaining to the financial aspect of our college and we are always ready to throw the difference which we almost take for granted. A recent questionnaire administered to the incoming class indicated that our current student body is recruiting more than our interest generated in progressive students. Please do not hesitate to contact us or report to us if you would like to correspond with or send pertinent information to any individual that might have a possible interest in ICC. Our door is always open and you are glad to have the chance to visit and be able to make this decision.

Hamlet Try-outs

As the first production of the fall 1970 season, the Indiana Central Players will present HAMLET, by William Shakespeare, on the evenings of November 13, 14, 15 and 16 at 8:00 p.m. in the Rehearsal Hall. These tryouts are open to all students and will be conducted by Dr. Gene Ryberg. The students who have been involved in the productions of the past years will be given the opportunity to try out for the roles of their choice.

On October 2nd (September 28th in Ransburg Auditorium) the tryouts will be held in Ransburg Auditorium on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday evenings (September 28-30) from 7:00 to 10:00 p.m. The first meeting of the cast and Production staff will be held on Friday evening, September 12th at 7:00 p.m. in the Rehearsal Hall. These tryouts are open to all students and will be conducted by Dr. Gene Ryberg. The students who have been involved in the productions of the past years will be given the opportunity to try out for the roles of their choice.

The cheerleading and clapping, the posters, the fight song, everything in the plan, is to be "the team" instead of "our team" or "they team" but "we lost." It is this type of reaction which shows a lack of "school spirit." I am not saying that our teams are incapable of playing a good game or losing a game and that we should lose or not be proud of our teams. However, if the Football, Basketball, Track, Wrestling, Tennis, Baseball, Golf, or other team is not doing well, if they do not look as though they can be the best in the first place, suddenly it becomes a burden to make it to the games. Suddenly it's "the team" instead of "our team" or "they lost" not "we lost."

The point of course is this: It is always easy to follow, to attend the games and to be excited. It is always easy to follow the rules and of losing a game that we should have won. And, I'm not saying that we can't criticize bad calls, poor plays, or poor sportsmanship. However, I think that regardless of the won-loss record we can and should always be proud of our teams.

The football team is here in August and September practicing in the hot sun for long hours. The basketball team practices 2 to 3 hours an evening during the season. Our wrestlers strive themselves in order to make a certain weight class. The baseball team gives up part of its Easter Vacation to make it Spring trip. Our cross-country team runs as much as 20 to 30 miles in practice for every mile they run in competition. And, these things are done WIN OR LOSE!

The men and women who participate in our sports program sacrifice time; study time, time for relaxation, time with their families or friends. And, I'm not saying that we can't criticize bad calls, poor plays, or poor sportsmanship. However, I think that regardless of the won-loss record we can and should always be proud of our teams.

The Real Story of the People’s Park Controversy

There is one subject which stands out as probably the most vexing and frustrating of all to people in Berkeley — the “people’s park” controversy across the bay in Berkeley...

Is the University of California at Berkeley the natural successor of the free-campus jumper? Did the university arbitrarily and unreasonably interfere in the controversial attempt to establish a neighborhood park on the Scripps property? This is a question which has been asked of me and my associates not only by the people of California — the “people’s park” controversy...

the question is an obvious one, yes, and the challenge to us is to establish contact with those frustrated young people and join in finding answers before they fall to the mob and their consequences may exceed anything we have experienced for some time. they no longer bother to vote in student elections. so that other tiny group with its revolutionary purpose elects the student body. officers and editors who proceed to speak in the name of the university. this generation, better informed, more aware, deserves much more.

U.S. News and World Report:

While Senators and Representatives enjoy an unusual summer break, Richard the year, the time is now to search for a solution to the President's growing problem with Congress.

Differences between the White House and Capitol Hill developed in recent weeks. The White House has reached out in many directions, often crossing party lines.

As examples:

Congress and the President are at odds over spending and how to pay the national debt.

The Administration's Safeguard against-balistic-missile program is over its first hurdle but is still a long way from being fully functional with congressional backing.

The military establishment is under heavy attack in Congress. The current issue is not a truce, but a truce.

The complex of foreign affairs is drawing increasing fire. The Senate is seeking to reassert its traditional role in the United States' relations with other countries.

Major presidential recommendations on welfare, tax sharing, public education, and other subjects are expected to be put aside for the present and dealt with in the next session.

All the evidence indicates that Nixon's problems with Congress are going to get worse before it gets better. The problem will become more acute as we approach the elections in 1972.

See here, God, and all your deputies of death:

The President of the United States, our nearest kin, physicians and surgeons, judges, Southern sheriffs and shantytowners and drivers of automobiles:

We plan to burn our life insurance policies and stage a live-in.

If we can't get a contractual agreement on the terms of employment, what we demand is the right to die in the place of our choice.

The when is your Business; you have the final authority.

But look, God, we think you delegate authority too much.

Let your deputies catch us in hot climates, hospitals, intersections and such.

You've deputized them to have us die in places where we feel absolutely no rapport.

So, it's uncivil disobedience; but let's face it — this is no garden anymore.

I may want to die in the periodical room of the Yale Library or on the shore of Lake Michigan.
