A Portrait In Ebony

The members of the Union For Racial Understanding organization of Indiana Central have initiated the Month of April as being Black Recognition month for Central's campus. During this time we have designed a program that will focus totally on the Black man with emphasis being placed on his political, religious, cultural, historical, and economical aspects of his life. On campus we will have many speakers who will come to us to deal with these problems in various programs.

For we realize not the whole picture of the Black man has been presented in the educational curriculum of history books and others as well. Therefore we're trying to give you a little portrait of some of the aspects and the Black man and the role that he has played in the making of our history in hopes that it will tend to clear up a lot of the confusion about the Black man and, of course, make others aware of what the Black man has done in these various areas.

Thanking you in advance for your presence and participation and hoping that you will take it on your own initiative and SEIZE THE MOMENT.

Provisions of Peace Treaty

A number of college students and others have requested the views of the Department of Student Association on the Provisions of Peace Treaty which was not in keeping with the editorial policy of the paper. We apologize, but says nothing about withdrawal of the mission report says.

The commission, which has another year to offer specific recommendations to the nation, mission report to throughout Indochina under effective supervision of the implemention of any of its terms.

The provisions of this paper are in essence the same terms which have been put forward repeatedly over the past two years by the communist delegation in Paris. They have not proved acceptable to any political group in South Vietnam except the Viet Cong.

The commission headed by John D. Rockefeller III notes that at times a low birth rate is a problem and at other times population explosions cause concern.

The tension between population and the economy, population and government services, is with us at all times in different forms and degrees," the commission says. "Whether we wish to live with it, we cannot afford to ignore it."

The commission, which has another year to run, plans to offer specific recommendations on just what the policy should be in its final report.

But the panel says the nation probably will grow to 300 million people regardless of policy that may be established, with the real question whether it would level off there.

"Whether we add that fourth hundred million or not is determined by what Americans do about family size and population in the next couple of decades," the report says.

While staggering figures could be projected, the future, the report says, can be determined by only small changes in family size.

The staff of the refletor apologizes to Dr. E.A. Vondrak for the misprint of his letter March 8, it should read as follows:

To the Editor: I would like to set the record straight with reference to the March 4 front-page article about the fleximester. In designing suggested curriculum patterns for math and physics courses to be offered in succeeding semesters, I was told that I must put required courses of our department in the fleximesters for our majors. Furthermore, I was told that there are at least 50 other fields open to math and physics majors during the fleximesters. This was a minor decision. I was against it.

National Policy Must Be Formed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Commission on Population Growth and the America Future recommended Wednesday that the nation develop a policy to regulate population growth.

The recommendation for adoption of a national population-control position is contained in the commission's interim report to President Nixon summing up its first year of work.

"Despite the pervasive impact of population growth on every facet of American life, the United States has never developed a deliberate policy on the subject," the commission's interim report says.

"There is need today for the nation to consider population growth explicitly and to formulate policy for the future," the report states.

The commission headed by John D. Rockefeller III notes that at times a low birth rate is a problem and at other times population explosions cause concern.

FBLA-Phi Beta Lambda Week

Citizens, high school students, and college students throughout Indiana celebrated Governor Edgar D. Whitcomb's proclamation of "FBLA-Phi Beta Lambda Week" on March 31-4, 1971.

FBLA behalf Future Business Leaders of America – is a state and nationally affiliated organization of high school business clubs; and Phi Beta Lambda, a division of the same organization. Chapters are in some 35 high schools and 4 colleges in Indiana. The Indiana state conference was dedicated to the development of citizenship and Leadership both in the community and in the fields of work.

Phil Beta Lambda and FBLA chapters are active all year long in trying to achieve these objectives, and the year's activities are climaxd by the annual statewide leadership conference which was held at Ball State University and state-wide conference of the FBLA-Phi Beta Lambda organization was the State Conference director.

Women To Hear College Singers

The Faculty Women's Club of Indiana Central College will be entertained by the "Generation Gap," a college debutation team, at their regular monthly meeting on April 19.

The Generation Gap is a group of 4 Indiana Central students who sing for church and various groups and others throughout the state of Indiana. Their popularity has made them constantly in demand.

The meeting will be held in Schwierz Fine Arts Center at 7:30 p.m.

Symphony Flutist In Recital

Mrs. Anne Reynolds, member of the Indiana University Symphony Orchestra, will be the Flute instructor in flute at Indiana Central College, presenting a recital at Indiana Central on Monday evening, April 12. The performance was held in the Recital Hall of the Lewis Center. Assisting Mrs. Reynolds was Marilyn Schewe Marrud, Harp; Nora Courier, Flute; and piano; and Thomas Reynolds, bass.

Bless Optimistic About Season

The Indiana Central College track team has just completed its short indoor meet season, and Saturday, April 3, marked the opening of the regular outdoor season when they traveled to DePauw University.

New track coach Bill Bless says that Central's indoor records give a good indication of enthusiasm for the future. On March 15, the hounds took first place at the Midwest Intercollegiate Indoor Meet at Naperville, Illinois. In addition to the Ohio Indoor Championships at Miami University (Ohio), the Indians finished at 300 high hopes for the 46th this year.

Coach Bless also pointed to certain underclassmen who will add strength to IC's team this spring:

1. Dave Hawkins, a sophomore high hurdler from Indianapolis who ran 14.2.
2. John Stone, a freshman high jumper from Terre Haute Wiley High School.
3. Donald Smith, a freshman high hurdler from Columbus City High School. He finished 3rd at the Ohio Indoor Championships.
4. Judy O'Keefe, that Central will be quite competitive with everyone on its schedule, which is much stronger than IC's schedule in recent years.

He also points out that hitting seems to be the team's weakness, stating that a 13-point average will meet with the team's expectations.

The Indians will run in the league meet at DePauw on May 8. Coach Bless says, that while he does not know where his Greyhounds will stand in comparison to the Indiana Collegiate Conference schools, Central should be as strong as possible by May 8.

Neo-Isolationism

By FORREST BRUNER

Isolationism is no new name to Americans. We have tried it with various success throughout our history. Will President Johnson's antibombing of The War in Vietnam lead to the same thing? Will the United States be able to stay out of the conflicts of the world at large? This 1917 and the same year as a result of "It kept us out of war," was forced into World War One. Following this conflict, Wilson's peace program dovetailed over the absence of the meum alone, soon did the United States change its policies in their demand to keep out of Europe's conflicts. They demanded that we give up all United States interests beyond our borders even if it meant allowing our citizens to be mistreated throughout the world. They turned their backs on the Sudetenland, on Poland, on Central Europe. In the end they were forced to fight without the aid of the people of these areas.

At the present time this ideology of burying our heads in the sand is on the rise. It is no longer within the realm of participants who would not be great, but it is becoming a daily battle of our decent citizens who have made it known.

We could adopt this policy, but what would our future be in the world of the world would come under the domination of the rapidly growing Russian nation. It will be in a time of crises they could not carry on supplies to any nation without opposition. We find that we are not only against the United Nations but also the United Nations. We fall back on the small nations could be expected to seek solace with either the United Nations or the Soviet Union for the four, for them to do otherwise. What would the United States do in the end of the world? By itself? We could continue to struggle against economic pressure being continually weaker as Her enemies become stronger, the needs of a Gaddarmer, and take as many of the enemy to the Underworld with her as possible, in either case the world cease to exist.

Greynoheads Were Busy During Spring Vacation

With the beginning of Spring vacation on April 2, came a heavy concentration of events for Central's baseball team. During the 6 days the baseball team was in little Rock, Arkansas, Dean Bright, played 11 games, including a double header with Butler University.

Coach Bright, along with the national pitchers feels that much of this season's success will depend on the development of IC's overall pitching staff.

He also points out that hitting seems to be the team's weakness, stating that a 13-point average will meet with the team's expectations.

The hitting is being led by the returning top 3 hitters from last year.

Bishop Nicholas

To Deliver Lecture

Bishop Ray C. Nicholas, Bishop of the Pittsburg Area of the United Church, will deliver the annual Showers Lectures on the Christian Religion on April 18. 1971 at 7:30 p.m. in the auditorium of the University Church.

Bishop Nicholas is a member of the World Council of Churches and has been elected to both its policy-making Central Committee and its Executive Committee. Just recently he returned from a visit to Africa, the first trip to the continent by a United Methodist bishop, and has visited the United Methodist churches in Central Harlem.

Under his ministry, Salem Church constructed many community services which provided job training, teenage vocational and college-bound counseling, athletic teams, tutorial service, served the South Berkeley Community Church in Berkeley, California, and in 1964 was transferred to the 2300 member Salem Church in New York City, a church deeply involved in the Central Harlem Community.

Early in his ministry, Bishop Nicholas served the South Berkeley Community Church in Berkeley, California, and in 1964 was transferred to the 2300 member Salem Church in New York City, a church deeply involved in the Central Harlem Community.

The newly discovered T-R Effect has a direct impact on our understanding of what we search which they have tentatively labeled the curiosity or exploratory drive. Whereas in the past we have isolated a new element in sociological theory, this discovery points to a level of behavior at work in the structure of family, group and society which is related to the 'shock' element, the need for novelty, variety or immediate change, that is constantly present in human behavior.

The author and a graduate student at the University of Chicago have detailed the pattern of T-R behavior as a function of motivational level and have characterized the effect at each level in terms of a number of measurable characteristics which have been shown to be of theoretical and practical importance. The results of the study have been published in the Journal of Social Psychology.

The author, a graduate student at the University of Chicago, has been working with Professor D. B. Balmer Showers, a bishop of the Evangelical United Brethren Church, who has been working on the project for several years.

The telephone number is 634-6011.

Volunteer Now!

A child is waiting. Are you the one he is waiting for? A child's future can be brighter if you will choose to be his helper both in his daily and his special needs each week. Your opportunities to help a child and volunteer are endless. Volunteer in the teacher's aide, or work in special reading classes. You can help a handicapped child learn to read or many other tasks that are available. We need you. You will make all of this possible this time and in the future.

Music Course For Women

The "Magic and Mysteries of Music" is a new course to be offered in the "All-day Day on Campus" series at Indiana University. Developed by the Center for Continuing Education, it will meet for six Tuesday afternoon sessions beginning April 12 at 12:50 p.m. All programs will be held in the Recital Hall of the Leah Ramburg Fine Arts Center on campus.

Directing the course will be Dorothy Dinger, Indiana University faculty member and official pianist of the Indianapolis Symphony Orchestra.

Topics to be covered during the sessions will be: the influences of music in the everyday life of man; how music from different countries reflects the past; how music is used in education and therapy; what are musicians really like; do musicians enjoy listening to 'jive-Suit' music; what is the most meaningful expression of today's young people; is there a future for our "new" music; and discussion of aesthetic responses to music.

Young men refuse to enter the army, and if inducted refuse to fight — attacking their officers or turning to drugs to escape the war. (Thousands were arrested for jail or exile to fighting.) Opponents to the war and war-making institutions in this country are gathered to frame up. Kent State, the Chicane Moratorium, the murder of Fred Hampton, charges against Angela Davis, and various conspiracy cases.

How can we stop this war? We cannot rely on politicians like Nixon who promise peace and make war. We must act directly, since the government will not act for us. First, we can talk to friends and groups we belong to about the possibility of nonviolent protest in Vietnam, and explain why Nixon's plan means more war and worse war in Vietnam, including the possible use of nuclear weapons already stockpiled in the area, and worsening conditions of life in the U.S. for the majority of people.

Second, we must take the People's Peace Treaty to these groups — churches, social services, schools, organizations, schools, trade unions — to get their ratification of the Treaty, which will then be signed by the Vietnamese. Nobody and no group is left untouched by this war. Everyone has a responsibility to do whatever is possible to force this war to an end.

Third, we must enforce the Treaty. It will do no good to sign our declaration of peace with the Vietnamese if we do not take the steps to take our communities and places of work and study out of the war. We must say no to all the forms of U.S. aggression in Vietnam (including both legal and nonviolent, civil disobedience protests, boycotts and patrols of war industries). We must force our government to stop the war today — not tomorrow. We must act now to enforce our People's Peace Treaty in whatever way we can. Peace can come now — if we make it.
