Campus Changes Greet Students

By JOHN C. FETHEROLF

Upon returning to school this fall, Indiana Central students were greeted by many changes on campus. Each Hall is being remodeled, a new park is being constructed in the middle of the Student parking lot, many utility wires have been buried, new walkways are being laid out, and existing sidewalks have been anged down through curbs to better hand the handicapped. Other changes include raises in prices and rentals, most notably those of washers, dryers, and refrigerators. Many residents of Butlers and Wilkcs Halls returned to find that they had two roomsmates instead of one. All of these changes reflect the growth of Central, and some of the drawbacks that accompany such growth.

The each Halls renovations are the second part of a plan that was conceived several years ago by Mr. Herman Kranert, widow of the wealthy businessman, and philanthropist Herman C. Kranert, donated $3.5 million dollars to the institution for the purpose of a new library and renovations in each Hall, with the provision that the University raise another 5 million. Kranert Memorial Library was completed and dedicated in early September of 1977, and the remodeling in each began way back on this summer.

The changes in each are all in the basement of the buildings. This portion formally housed the library, a lounge, a few classrooms and offices. When construction is finished, which is supposed to be on December 31, 1978, there will be much more.

In the basement of the building will be the brain of Indiana Central, the Data Processing Center. A central control unit is to be designated only to key the computer cool, but is the provision that the main building will be the entire building. To help insure the safety of the computer, the outside area will be completely filled in. A classroom for computer courses will be located in this area.

The processing from its present location located in the basement building will probably not take place until the summer of 1979.

On the first floor of the building, however, the Admissions Department, and the Placement Office. The second and third floors will contain a new lounge, offices, conference rooms, and rest rooms. A new elevator connecting all four levels will be installed, the second and third floors will be accessible from the second floor hallway. Outside the building, the ramp leading down to the loading area on the north side of the building will be filled in, and a new one will be led up towards Schwimmer Center.

This change will enable students to use the northeast entrance of the building for the redesigned without having to detour around the ramp. It won't be there.

Another major addition to the Indiana Central campus is the mini-park. Originally President Bassa's idea, it will serve as a way of "breaking the monotony of the asphalt." It will have painted walkways connecting it with East and Lilly Halls, while traffic patterns in the lot will be redirected to make it safer for students on the walkways and in the park. The park will consist of a clock tower, lights, shrubs, and benches. "Schwimmer will be the tower, and will be hooked into the organ in Hamburg for live music, and also into a recorded music system in the Information Office. Fainting and the clock tower will have underground wiring projects also will help beautify the campus. There is one more change that is not quite so obvious.

A change that has taken place at Indiana Central is the move of Data Processing. This will be at the Indiana Central Power and Light (IPALCO) building. In all of which the move of Data Processing is to be made, the move of the Indiana Central Power and Light (IPALCO) building. In all of which the move of Data Processing is to be made, the move of the Indiana Central Power and Light (IPALCO) building. The move of Data Processing will probably not take place until the summer of 1979. As the move of Data Processing will probably not take place until the summer of 1979.

Homecoming Activities Slated

Homecoming Week is full of campus activities, according to Bob Misner, a member of the Homecoming Committee. Events begin Tuesday, Sept. 25, and wind up with the 930 Football Team challenge St. Joe at Knut Stadium Saturday night.

Tuesday, from 7-9 p.m., will be "Clark Kent" and the coronation of the IU Homecoming Queen and the Iowa, Illinois and Wisconsin football team will be "Mice and Men." The annual ice cream will be served at the "Time Out" tent at the University Park from 5-9 p.m. On Saturday morning, the annual homecoming parade will take place at 10 a.m. A skating party at the Southern Skating Center in University Park will be followed by an "Ice Cream" party at the "Time Out" tent. The Greyhound football team will visit St. Joe at Key Stadium Saturday night.

The President's Banquet will conclude the week. Saturday evening. Formal dinner is optional for the dinner dance which will be at the Indiana Athletic Club from 9-12 p.m.

Theater Department Presents "Of Mice and Men"

Play Expounds Brotherly Love

The first of four productions, "Of Mice and Men," will be presented by the Theater Department at the Performing Arts Center on September 29, October 6, 7, and 8. The program will take place each evening at 8 p.m. in Ransburg Auditorium and 3 p.m. on Sunday, Sept. 30.

John Steinbeck's play, "Of Mice and Men," is the story of two farm hands who travel and work together. The theme of brotherly love is picked up in two of the two main characters and used for each other. The story's ending leaves the audience in awe.

Doctor Richard Williams, head of Central's speech and theatre department, commented on the anticipated audience excitement. "I think they'll like it. I think the audience will identify with it from the standpoint of the brotherly love rather than from the social status of the characters.

The two leading roles are played by Dan Schraber and Derek Weber. The two characters are Joe Hamilton, John Proctor, Tom Hill, Gary Robinson, George Arndt, Bill Randolph, Carl Boss, and Kathy Reinhart. Mr. James Beamer of Central's faculty is the technical director and the position of assistant director is held by Carol Hill.

This is the first time John Steinbeck's play has been performed on Central's stage. The Reflector featured John Williams, who chose Steinbeck and he answered, "I've always wanted to do the play. It's been one of my favorites for years." "Of Mice and Men" was first a novel and later became a hit on Broadway. All full-time students, faculty, and staff will be admitted free with identification cards but they must have reservations. Tickets will be purchased at the box office between 1 p.m. and 6 p.m. daily, and 8 p.m. to 8 p.m. the night of the show. An admission charge of $1.00 per person and $2.00 for students will be collected from the remainder of the public. The doors will open at 7:30.

Three other theatre productions are being presented throughout the week. A musical comedy, "Pippin," will be done with the world department. The "Cherry Orchard" will be presented in February with a dinner-theatre comedy, "The Impossible Years." Following in March. Any interested members of the student body, faculty and staff will be invited to audition for parts in these plays.
Welcome from President Sease

A hearty welcome to all returning students and new students. We are pleased to have you on campus and hope this will be an exciting year for you.

As you have observed, a number of changes have been made over the summer months. Esch Hall is now open to the public and is available for tours during the academic year. The North Central accreditation visit held this past year resulted in accreditation at the associate, baccalaureate, and master's degree levels, for a ten-year period this maximum period given any institution; the new Heartland College Conference has been formed of seven colleges and universities with all sports except basketball and another group of institutions is considering a combined program. The University has made an arrangement with a local hospital to take an intensive look at Inland Central and what it should be ten years from now; the Evans and Lean College of Central Indiana has been given an endowed professorship with the proceeds from the estate of the late Dr. Robert F. Stotz.

A new approach to the Esch Hall parking lot and a new parking lot in the center of campus life has been made. The Savings and Loan League of Central Indiana has combined their inconvenience knowing that a modern and more efficient library is now open. When it is complete, we will be able to capitalize on the potential of the new facilities as they become available. The basement of Dailey Hall will be used for new facilities to be completed during the coming months. Esch Hall is now open for visits.

The university itself admittedly has not fully realized its potential. We will continue to work hard to make this a reality. We are aware of these needs in their attempts to encourage friends to provide funds for these needs. A major revision over the summer is the reorganization of our Student Services which now combines all of the activities from admissions through placement. The Director of the Student Services which now combines all of the activities from admissions through placement. The Director of Student Services now has the responsibility to guide the students through the entire enrollment process from start to finish. The current trend is toward greater mobility and flexibility in the educational program with our university level courses and we have been able to meet this demand.

Bookstore Announces Policy

The beginning of another school year and for many, the first time for buying college books, seemed a perfect time to explain a few policies and procedures maintained by the bookstore.

First of all, your instructors have chosen the book or books to be used in your classes. The bookstore orders these books and makes them available to students several weeks before the beginning of each semester (hurrying complications from the publishers). A booklist containing text information is also posted in and outside the bookstore a few weeks before each semester, but its publication is held as long as possible so that all information can be accurate and up to date. The bookstore sells used tests based on information that each book will in fact be used in your class. But the bookstore staff can make mistakes, and instructors do change their meeting, it is every student's responsibility to verify with the instructor the titles and usage of each textbook. Until this text is verified, nothing should be written in the books so that their immediate return will be possible. We realize that for many people, the purchase of used books has become a necessity due to skyrocketing book prices. First, we want to say that book prices are set by the publishers and this, to the surprise of many people, the bookstore makes very little profit on the sale of books.

Because of the increasing prices and the demand for used books, we have chosen two sources for our used books. This year the bookstore sent its textbook order through a national used book company. They worked the orders and shipped as many books as they had. In some cases, they were able to provide 50% or more used titles in used condition. In other cases, they could provide only a few used books. Their supply of used books is dependent on many national and local conditions that are uncontrollable by the bookstore. The bookstore's other source of used textbooks is from your fellow Indiana Central classmates. At the end of the semester, the bookstore buys from students at 50% of the current list price those books that will be used again the following semester. To aid in the buy-back process, and to provide additional service, we utilize a national used book company twice a year in mid-December and mid-May. The company is instructed to offer 50% for those texts that will be used again on our campus. In addition, they offer the currently accepted used book standard of 25% for the current list price on most other titles, provided they are salable and of current edition. The bookstore and the used book company offer you a chance to make a few dollars that you otherwise would not have. We hope that this short article answers some questions and explains the reasons why the bookstore has made certain decisions. We also hope that positive relations between you and the bookstore will continue to improve as they have over the past few years.

Never Fear, Freshmen

By BECKY BLAIR

As school begins and the activities of New Student Orientation come to an end, the new students on campus, especially the freshmen, are still making adjustments to Indian Central. The freshmen are trying to cope with the new living environment, professors, different food, and what seems to be an abundance of free time. Here is a letter from what might be a typical freshman to his parents.

Dear Mom and Dad,

Well, here I am at ICU. If I don't die from classes, I know I'll never cross Hanna Avenue. My first semester is a little overwhelming. I'm taking Introduction to Religion (which I'm forcing because the prof opens the window as soon as he walks in). I hope he doesn't continue with this practice into December. I'm also taking World Civilizations and World Literature. World Literature, the professor is giving heavy essay tests. I can't imagine how I'm going to survive. The last test that I had was in social science. The tests in this class are even worse than the ones in World Literature. I've heard that it's a major accomplishment if you can finish at least half of the test. The food here at school doesn't seem to be too bad. So far, I'm going to several banquets and the cafeteria prepared a wonderful salad bar with crisp lettuce and shining icy. All of the upper chairs have been talked to and said that the food wasn't too great. I guess it takes time before you really taste the food. Our room is nice, but it's kind of small for the three of us. I'm glad I brought my fan because it's kind of hot and smelly in there sometimes.

Everyone here seems nice and friendly. We had another dance a while ago and Schweitzer Concourse was packed with people. The scholars hired a live band.

Well, I had better get back to my reading. It seems I'm always studying with something to read. Homecoming and the President's Ball are coming up soon and I'm trying to get ahead in my work so that I can enjoy Homecoming weekend. I'll write more later. Send money.

Love,
Fred Freshman

As an upperclassman who has experienced almost every facet of this campus, I have only two words of advice that might help some members of the freshmen class that are discouraged with college so far: You'll survive.

Harrier Hounds Stacked With Vets

By Erhardt Bell

This year’s Harrier veterans are so thick on the head coach’s schedule he can barely name them all. In fact, this year’s veterans have turned out to be so many, and so varied in their experiences, that it’s almost impossible to single out the best of the bunch.

Among the veterans are: John Martin, a three-year starter at receiver; Bob Allright, a two-year starter at running back; and John Graeber, a three-year starter at defensive end. All three are returning veterans.

However, the biggest change facing the Hounds is the formation of the Heartland Conference for women’s basketball. The conference will be comprised of the following institutions: DePauw, Butler, and Indiana University.

The conference will consist of four games per year, with each team playing each other team twice. The conference will begin on Oct. 13 and end on Nov. 15.

Last year’s Harrier season was a success, with the team finishing in third place in the Heartland Conference. The team’s success was due largely to the leadership of head coach Erhard Bell. Bell is an excellent coach and has always shown his players that success can be achieved with hard work and dedication.

The team’s success has also been due to the support of the community, which has been instrumental in the team’s success.

The team’s next game is scheduled for Oct. 13 against DePauw. The game will be held at 1:00 p.m. and is expected to be a close match.

Freshmen Get The Feel Of ICU

BY BRENDA BISHOP

"Where do we go now?" The whole family gets into the act as freshmen face the commotion and confusion of orienting themselves to the campus. (Photo by Seth L. Rossman)

September 25, 1978

After months of planning and anticipation for recent high school graduates, the long awaited day finally arrived. On September 2, the new freshman class of ICU arrived for a weekend of orientation before beginning their new college life. Their first few days were filled with a variety of activities designed to acquaint the new students with the campus atmosphere and the intellectual, social, and cultural opportunities available.

Tuesday was moving day for the freshmen who will reside in the dorms during the upcoming year. The campus buzzed with activity as families of the newcomers unloaded, and orientation committee members conducted tours of the college grounds. The official schedule of activities was initiated with a formal banquet in the cafeteria. The dinner was hosted by President Susan who introduced herself to the new class with a short speech. The evening's entertainment was provided by local campus talent who participated in a "Saturday Night Live" show in Schwitzer Concourse. The performances combined comedy with some exciting guitar and vocal acts. One freshman commented that she appreciated the variety of the acts but that all the love songs made her miss her boyfriend.

Sunday's meal was a bit slower to allow freshmen a chance to relax and adjust to their new surroundings. President and Mrs. Rossman opened their home to the newcomers during the "afternoon." This reception provided the students with a chance to personally meet the President as well as other campus administrators.

New Drugs was the site for an informal question and answer session. The members of the orientation committee were on hand to share with the freshmen their experiences at ICU. Following supper was a simulation game designed to acquaint new students with one another, as well as with some of the activities and situations they will encounter during the 1978-79 school year. The fun continued at 9:00 with a dance in Schwitzer Concourse. Steve Schwartz served as DJ for the freshmen, who boogied with new-found friends.

Monday morning was devoted to the all-class meeting in the auditorium to introduce the group for future functions. The orientation session was followed by a coffee and doughnut reception, "That's all folks!" was the note of the morning.

Tuesday concluded the orientation activities. Freshmen registered, along with the rest of the student body. A class meeting in the auditorium began to organize the group for future functions. The all-school dance, featuring the music of "Maltzki," was an exciting conclusion to a busy weekend.

Reaction to the freshmen orientation program was mixed. Many new students expressed that their initial feeling about ICU was "I want to go home!" But most seemed to agree that orientation helped them to feel more sure about the campus and better adjusted to college life. The workshops were called "informative" and seemed to be a favorite and very beneficial part of the weekend. Several freshmen particularly enjoyed the dances and felt that they helped in meeting new people.

Despite the many changes in lifestyle which will have to be made, it seems the new class is looking forward to their first year of college. Orientation weekend was only the beginning. The best is yet to come.

By MELVIN RAZZAHAZ

Sometimes I had to drink PBR. Helps again fans and exercises. The one of those who are newcomers here on campus, let me introduce myself. I am Melvin R. Razzahaaza. And you’re not. During the course of the coming year I will be a Royal Pain in The Ass to anyone involved in shady activities. Usually the faculty and administrative staff. Part-time students are aware that the student body, occasionally get called on the carpet.

My summer, as always, was spent in a futile attempt to earn enough money to return to this outrageous drain on my pocketbook. To do this I spent my days peering into the bowels of internal combustion engines, dragging various heavy objects through the ground behind my 1962, and calculating the drive ratios. None of these jobs appear to be related to each other, but they are sort of. It wasn’t until I see my job keeps me in the right frame of mind for school. Here at Indiana Central, an engineering student is also required to take religion, while a student in Student Services is only required to take religion if he or she is a full-time student. I suspect that this is fair when you stop and think about it; they pay much less for the books.

Hey, did you see them dig up those sidewalks in front of the library and repair them with new concrete. I know we only get quality work done there and those were only a year or so. I think it was really great of President Steese to try to stimulate construction employment by redoing those walks. Hey, lots is off to you, Dr. Rozzaaza, maybe we can do that again next year whatever it needs or not.

I also want to publicly say how great we are for taking care of people in wheelchairs. I saw the new ramps cut across Hanna Avenue. Now we can have some form of recreation with race across the street and play “Best the Trains”. I think this was good even though it can’t get across it. There ought to be a lot less for the books, too. Hey, I really can see how much smarter ICU has made me.

That new park is nice. I really glad they took all that parking space away, but I was more impressed with that ramp that goes right through it. I drove there at 30 mph a couple of times; it’ll be better when the clock is over it–more of a challenge. We have to watch that Melvin doesn’t try getting his $5000 in royalties for this story. The Docket

By SITTHI ROSSMAN

Night class school began several college-years persons were over heard at a corner street restaurant. The conversion was attractive, since it dealt with law, but the misconceptions they demonstrated were quite scary. Enough of this conversation is to begin and attack this thing chronologically.

The error these people making was quite apparent to anyone beyond the "Jailhouse," level. Out of this mouth dribbled: "Tall tickets are illegal. They aren't done right. They have to be signed by a prosecuting attorney. Just tell 'em who they stop you and they'll have to let you go."

Error number one. The tickets you get from a police officer are not illegal, they just do not conform to what the statutes say they must state. This seems to solve the problem, but it isn't that simple.

The only way to get around that ticket is to file what is known as a "Moot" Motive product of the deciding court: Watts v. State of Indiana. No one is saying you can't do it yourself, but you won't find the "how-to" guide either. The best person to do that for you is an attorney and that ticket is going to be a big one.

The way I don't have the ticket on my record." Not so... In Marion County almost all tickets are ruled by the policeman with the prosecutor's office. (Here is that "suggestion" again.) The prosecutor's office is known to sign all tickets. Now that it is ruled, you are already out $10 or so from filing lawyer fees, and you are in the mail to appear.

Fifty to sixty a year is one extension. Now what if you still don't pay? They find convicts, so you had better have legitimate grounds and probably attorney's fees, but I'm talking business. A more important subject right now is the profit you are making behind you with red lights on top of your car. It isn't strictly illegal to yell at the lights, nor is the noise, nor the place, to try to determine your proximity with the law. The better thing is

PRACTICE HUMILITY. Remember—a policeman does NOT have to give you a ticket; he CAN put you in jail and let you bail yourself out. Sure, it is a hassle for him to do it, but he has his job—governs what he has a place for jailhouse lawyers to practice their chosen profession. Do what you want. (You will anyway.) This is just an early warning.

Anyone wanting to appeal traffic tickets can send a note to the Chief Justice of the Student Court in the Campus Mall at Bus. 484. Those examinees applies to night students as well—a night court will be held once month as needed.

What ever happened to the Student-Faculty Judicial Board as passed by Central Council last year? It was intended to give students and faculty place for grievances against each other. The whole system was well received and presented to the faculty for was that another Administration passive rumor? I assure that what is really going on here is everyone is told the students have self-government. Then the powers-that-be hope one will remember through the summer while the courts are closed, and the system is in the law.

***************

Were you one of the lucky (1) students that wanted to audit a class but received a letter from the Dean's office stating the extra time the professors have is spent in trying and requiring you to now take that course through the Continuing Education program—for more money, of course. BEWARE when and any others that I may have mentioned. Remember—don't they just say they do? I am sorry dear student, but when a university is so politically oriented they just give an answer that gives you what you thought they thought for you and they come to your doors and the system was in the law.

CLEP Exams

Montana Central participates in the College Level Examination Program (CLEP) of the College Entrance Examination Board. These examinations are available to students of all ages who have participated in a high school education and who believe that they have acquired knowledge and skills in one or more of the subject areas usually included in college credit by examination. Students and their parents are invited to the Indian Central campus to get information on CLEP, an accredited program. Parents can find ways to support the students in their chosen profession. For more information concerning CLEP tests, contact Diane Appleby, Director of Career Counseling and Placement Services...

Letter Concerning High School Day

INDIANA CENTRAL UNIVERSITY'S High School Day program is scheduled this year for Saturday, October 25. Last year we had nearly 600 students and their parents in attendance. We are inviting to the Indian Central campus. We provide an information fall, campus tours, student forum, academic and career counseling, lunch, and football game.

Thank you in advance for making this day a huge success and be honest with our guests.

Sincerely,

The Office of Admissions Staff

2. Whenever things seem to be going well, something is bound to go wrong.
3. Anytime things show improvement, you've overlooked something.
4. Once a job is fouled up, anything done to improve it only makes it worse.
5. Experience is directly proportional to the amount and value of equipment ruined.
6. If it jams, force it. If it breaks, it probably needed replacing anyway.
7. If a part can possibly be installed, incorrectly, it will be.

Career Counseling Services

True or False? The Office of Career Counseling and Placement Services is an office which only seniors visit when graduation is pending and they are looking for jobs?
False! The staff of the Office of Career Counseling and Placement Services, Diana Mekony and Becky Wykes, would like to dispel that myth about their responsibilities at Indiana Central. Although placement is a large and very important part of what the office does, it is by no means the only part, and seniors are by no means the only group who should seek assistance from the office.

The office houses the Career Information Center, a repository of such items as placement manuals, career books, placement statistic surveys, graduate school bulletins, employer recruiting brochures, and mailing list of personnel directors.

The office staff provides career counseling for any individual who is searching for a meaningful career.

The office staff provides information about testing programs used at Indiana Central University and at graduate or professional schools.

Ultimately, of course, the office staff provides assistance to students seeking jobs—part-time jobs, summer jobs, full-time jobs post-graduate jobs. In conjunction with their responsibility the office maintains inactive and active placement files of current and former students.

As you can see, the Office of Career Counseling and Placement Services has something for everyone! The office is temporarily located in the lower level of Schwartzler in the Student Services complex. The former office facilities are being remodeled and will enable the office staff to increase the services to ICU students and alumni. Stop by the office and browse—or chat—or make an appointment for a serious, in-depth discussion of goals—occupational daydreams—employment realities.
